"The Goverument of July inherited the legacy left it hy the Bourbone. It cantinued to pay to the former secret agents of the Post Office the ealaries they had received during their functions, and in the accounte of the Miaister of Foreign Affairs we find that in 1847 the secret service still paid 60,500f. as peusions to the employes of the former Cabinet Noir. From certain political trials, in which letters seized and read at the Post Office were made the hasis of the indictments, we may infer that the July monarchy employed, if not regularly, at least occasionally, when it wanted it, this arm which was thought to have been broken forever; hut nothing in the disclosures that followed the days of February proved that the Cabinet Noir had been re-established in a normal manner. It was merely a reeource in time of need, rather than an institution; and, if it was employed, it was merely in certain exceptional cases which appeared critical or dangerous."

M. Ducamp does not helieve that the Cabinet Noir now exists.

AN OLD POSTMASTER.—Samuel Whittemore was appointed postmaster at Fluvauna, Chantauqua County, N. Y., June 27, 1827, under John Quincy Adams' administration, by John McLean, Postmaeter Gencral, and has held the office ever since. W. H. Featon, Esq., who as Justice of the Peace certified to the responsibility of Whittemore's first bail bond, has also certified each subsequent bond, he having held the office of Justice from before 1827 to the present time, excepting from January to March in one year. Henry Strunk and Henry Martin, who were Whittemore's sureties in 1827, are still on his bond.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO.

What's the matter with the weather this winter? Will it ever stop snawing, and are we ever to ese the green earth again? Is this excruciatingly cold term going to continne until July? Has the acquisition of Alaska anything to do with it? Or are we imperceptibly tending toward the North Pole? Recently, before the Canada Thistle Propagating Society, on the skating rink at Idonoware, a lecturer on earthquakes and their causes showed satisfactorily to his provincial audience, by abstruse calculation, that the earth had shrunk about eighteen feet in the last decade of years; but he did not state whether the contraction was apportioned equally between the 25,000 miles that girdle the earth, whether this destruction of territory occurred in the Eastern or Weeteru hemisphere, or in both—whether it occurred in a single night, or whether it had been the gradual work of all these years. He merely etated the fact, and fortified it with figures; and, as none of his attentive, and of course intelligent, hearers expressed any donht as to its authenticity, the matter stands recorded and undisputed. Now, may not this abridgment of our sphere have something to do with the extraordinary celestial and terreetrial signs and wonders which have lately startled enlightened peoples in different parts of the world? Islands have sunk in some localities, and risen in others far away; Vesuvius has lost her best hold, by the caving in of a large portion of her crater wall; Niagara Falls, from present indications, are expected snddenly to recede at least two miles at any momeat within the next six months; and within a day or two one of our large western lakes has mysteriously emptied itself, and no one knows how or where the water has gone. Every reading body knows how the bowels of the earth, north of the equator, have lately been agitated by earthquakes, and its surface swept by typhoons and hurricanes; and it really seems plausible that this wrinkling or cruebing process, six yards wide and twenty-five thousand miles long, might have something to do with it. Just imagine a slice of this size taken out of the centre of the globe, and the severed parts coming together with magnetic velocity! It was a blessed thing it was feet instead of miles—for I am weak enough to believe that if these respectable half spheres had suddenly come together through a space of eighteen miles, there would have heen none left to record the fact, or to pick up damaged articles.

The almost continuous snow-falls, and the frightfully cold weather of which I have spoken, may possibly he attributable to the same cause; how, or why, I will not pretend to say. I only submit the suggestion. To be sure, every one in our latitude is familiar with the fact that all our winters, for several years past, have increased in length and severity, and this one may he the forerunner of a severer one to follow, to he succeeded in its turn by one still fiercer.

A few hundred years ago, *Green*land was so named on account of its verdant appearance; the soil was very fertile and highly cultivated; pretty towns and villages were scattered over its face; and, according to Icelandic authorities, it was a most desirable country to dwell in. Now it is a lost land, buried under perpetual ice and snow, and almost entirely unapproachable along its whole coast, on account of the bergs and barriers that barricade it.

All its hills are covered and its valleys filled with the accumulated freezings of several centuries, and who can tell but what the same fate is to avertake us? If the winter storms which have visited us so frequently during the present season continne much longer, there will be a covering upon the earth so thick that all the power of our northern summer sun will not suffice to melt it before another winter, with its contributions, will be on as; and, thus accumulating from year to year, our lovely land will he hidden, as is Greenland, entirely and eternally from sight, and, as a conseqaence, we will eventually become similar to the inhabitants of the bleak polar regions, among whom the adventurous and indefatigable Hall is now hybernating.

Naw, all this may sound very foolish, or very funny, or hoth; but if skeptical individuals will visit New York, a city of over a million inhabitants, at the present time, they will see ice-banks and snow-burrows numerous enough, and capacious enough, to hnt half the inhabitants in Esquimaux style, and apparently so solid and durable as to warrant the belief that they will last forever—although the city is willing and does pay $500,000 per annum for their removal. Well, now, if the great metropolis, with all its resources, can be thus crusted over in a few months, what can rnraldom expect if this thing continues a few years? I do not desire to convey the idea that we are to be converted into wearers of seals' skins, or seal and walrus eaters, very soon—and, indeed, such a thing may never happen; I have only elaborated the interrogations with which my letter opens by speculnting on what might be.

But, if such a thing were to happen, what would become af us? Deprived of the corn and hop crops, and the water all frozen, train oil would have to be our beverage—and seal soup, baked whale and walrus potpie our daily food. Horrible! Yes, and what would become of all the intellectual and industrial pursuits of the country? What would be the social condition of all classes of our people? What would become of our churches, schools, elemosynary institutions and post offices? Echo answers, what? We might manage to grow fond of the food and drink—meutal and physical energy might come to a stand still—the blue sky and the hright stars might roof in and light all the churches we would need, and supply school-rooms large enough for nature to teach in, and furnish besides facilities enough for charitable purposes; hut what could supply the place of the post office? I would not allow myself to even whisper to myself that something might be substituted for it. The very idea makes me shudder, and I will stop my imagination from wandering any farther in that direction. What! get along without post offices—those cosy, comfortable, remunerative, world-accommodating establishments, that are as familiar and essential to every honschold as bread and butter! Why, it is the chiefest of impossibles. Let us civilians all hope we will never, never be snowed under; and let postal officials be thankful they are so well hestowed, and pray to be continued so. Let them not neglect to look after their mails outdoors in stormy weather, and let them attend dutifully to business within. Let them appreciate the sober truth that they are paid money for performing each service, and let them perform their duty with alacrity, and not in a way to make many believe it is simply through courtesy. No matter how inclement the weather, let their solicitude for the service he paramount. Get away from the hot stove, and wade knee deep, if necessary, through the snow to put things through. If delays occur on the railways, let them take the trouble to find out where they are and how long they will be, so that they can give their people satisfactory information; and if they can aid and assist in any way to promote dispatch, let them go to the front, or send somebody. I have known postmasters and mail agents to stand with their coat-tails spread and their backs to the fire when they should have been very differently employed; and, although there may he no law to force officials to labor on the Sabbath, when the exigency might require it, yet I think on moral grounds it is quite as sinless as taking a sheep out of a pit, and infinitely more creditable; and, for my part, I would sooner confide in the man who breaks the Sabbath to do a good deed than in one who forbears to do it by a saltersfuge. Of course you don't understand what I mean by this, but there are those who do. I really believe that there are some men in the service who would feel perfectly indifferent were the country turned into a hage ice mountain, and all the mails frozen solid in the centre, if they could only draw their salaries, and sit over a hot fire with pipes in their mouths; hut, for the honor of it, I am satisfied the number is limited. Every man has some peculiar attribute, which is developed when the right time, place and circumstance calls it forth; and there is no time nor place that shows worth or weakness of persons employed in the mail service so palpably as along railway routes in the winter season.

Some are all energy and fire, and by their enthusiasm enlist assistance, and the work goes bravely on; others, like the poor clown, pray to Jupiter to help them, without putting their own shoulders to the wheel: or, like Micawher, wait for something to turn up, and gain for themselves the unenviable notoriety of being "poor excuses" or "Miss Nancye."

Please make some allowance for the tone of frigidity that pervades this epistle; it is written when the snow has been falling incessantly for five days, with the prospect of its continuing for a week or two longer.

MONS. TONSON.

ROMANCE OF THE POST OFFICE.

Enclosed find $1.00, for which continue THE MAIL to this office for the coming year. What a confession that text exhibits! It proves that we need THE MAIL, for it meets the requirements of the office. It epitomizes and brings to a sun-bright focus the dull regulations of the department. Aside from being an interesting sheet, it seems to be the "faderland" of benighted wanderers in the new mazes of office. Post office work, with all its fatigue, confinement and trials, has still a romance for me.

How delightful to have a person ask for how much I will sell a three cent stamp? and would I not throw off some if he put in six letters? or bring two paper stamps, and then ask me to change one for a red stamp!

How delightful, on a bitter cold day, to be called to the window, and have a man with numb hands fumbling in every pocket for the letter, finally fishing it out from a "heap" af nails, screws, twine and a jack-knife, then lick both the letter and the stamp, place the stamp on wrong side up, in the wrong corner, and cornerways, pound it down with his fist, then take it to the window to see if he had got his money's worth, hand the letter in and begin to look for the three cents. Both hands are now required to dive into the countless pockets, out again, hither and thither; and at last he pulls out from his vest pocket an old, defaced, counterfeit fifty cent shinplaster in a shapeless wad, and asks for the change—could not do it—then he dives again for his wallet and offers a $10 bill to change for three cents. It is delightful watching the process—no danger of catching cold or catching a "big" word coming out of the heart.

There is a tender pleasure when a poor, weary, sad-eyed, hard-working woman, tangling her fingers together, winding her handkerchief over and over, round and round her hands, looking in with full, beseeching eyes, in offering service.

"Well, madam, what can I do for you?"

"Please, an' will ye write to my son for me, niver a word do I hear?"

"O, yes. Give me the name of the place and tell me what you wish said."

"He lives in Ballymahackmagully, County of Moormahockingnocking, Ireland, an' you please. God bless you. Say to Jimmey that I am working as hard as iver I can to bring the childher out. Holy saints, I knew you was a kind crayture from your voice 'fore I iver hem' you epoke a word. An' what shall I pay you?"

"Twelve cents postage."

"God bless you, and when did they make it twelve cints?"

"First of January."

"God bless the man that made it twelve cints, for it's sunlight on our hard work—we can hear from home oftener. God bless the man: may the Holy Saints protect him." Eloquence from a simple, thankful heart; and as the man who invented twelve cente postage across the wide ocean is not present, THE U. S. MAIL may take the blessing.

A fellernity came in the other bitter morning: "You guv me a letter from Sally, you did. She is married and wants her feather bed. I will bring it down for you to mail to Sally." "Certainly"—for I felt assured there could not be over four pounds in any of his feather beds. Will not the route agents make the feathers fly if I ever mail Sally's feather bed!

Dear MAIL: Favor, with all your reason, intelligence and experience, the prepayment of newspaper postage at the publication office. When that has passed, P. O. work will be the ornamental branch of daily labor. If Congressmen were only P. O. clerks through February, when we must keep a "sharp look-out" for new lists of papers, they would pass that hill without debate. Keep the postage as it is—for habit is everything with the people. It would accrue just as much to the publisher, and the accounts become more accurate between the offices and the Department. Yours for the Right. SANFORD ASST.

Curious Letter Addresses.

O'er hill, through vale and bridges under,
Let this letter go like thunder;
Hurry it up, make no mistake,
And deliver it quick to Curry Blake.

What! you don't know her? what a pity!
As long as she's lived in New Haven City.
So keep still, sir, and stop your blowing,
Stuff it in the bag, and send it going.

Attend to this, please, Mr. Sperry,
And have it delivered quickly, very.
At Jones & Johnson's you will find her,
And if she scolds you, never mind her.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, MARCH, 1868.

Terms—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendatinn:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city nf New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table nf Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 250 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of the MAIL bears a number in additinn to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the snbscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the snbscriptinn for another year, when dne, if they intend ro renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 90, or any lower nnmber, will please remit at ooce.

[OFFICIAL.]

Reduction of Postage Between the United States and Canada.

The following modifications have been made in the Postal Convention between the United States and the Dominion of Canada, to take effect on the 1st of April next:

1. The anthorized weight of a single letter shall be fifteen grammes (by the metrical scale) in the United States, and half an ounce in the Dominion of Canada.

2. The postage on a single international letter shall be six cents, if prepaid at the mailing office in either country, and ten cents, if posted unpaid; and for other than single letters the same charges shall be made for each additinnal fifteen grammes or half ounce, or fraction thereof."

3. Each Post Department to retain to its own use, as at present, all the postage which it collects, whether on prepaid letters sent, or on unpaid letters received.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, February 28, 1868.

The U. S. postage on letters conveyed by the direct line nf mail steamers, under contract with the Government nf the Bahamas, between New York and Nassau, N. P., has been reduced from 5 to 3 cents per single rate of half ounce or under, to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received by said line.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Chief Clerk.

INCREASE OF POSTAGE CHARGES ON LETTERS TO THE EAST INDIES, VIA BRITISH MAIL.—We are requested to state that notice has been given by the British Post Department, that on and from the 1st of March inst., the single rate of postage for letters between the United States and the East Indies, via England, will be twenty-eight cents per half ounce when forwarded for transmission via Southampton, and thirty-six cents when intended to be sent via Marseilles—prepayment compulsory.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, February 5, 1868.

SIR. I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 31st ultimo, making inquiry respecting the treatment to be given books and other postal packets arriving in this country fully prepaid at printed matter rates, but which contain enclosures nr entries snbjecting them to letter postage, and in reply have to infnrm yon that any newspaper, book-packet, &c., received in the United States from abroad, in which a letter is concealed, or which contains any communication in writing in the natnre of a letter, nr any article subject to letter postage nnder the Postal Convention in fnrce with the country whence received, should be charged np with letter rate nf postage for collection at the office of delivery

I am, very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAIN,
Chief Clerk.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. MAIL.

Misent Letters.

Most of our readers who are postmasters have passed through the not very agreeable experience of a "hatchelling" from some indignant recipient of a letter bearing a postmark the date of which clearly proves that the delivery should have been performed from one duy to a week earlier than it actually was; and they know how difficult it is to convince the angry gentleman (or, worse still, the angry lady) that the letter has not been carelessly allowed to remain in the office of delivery during that time. To every offered explanation the answer is: "Look at the postmark, sir—that's enough for me. I've called three times a day for three days, and have been told every time that there was no letter for me; and all the time it has been lying in the pigeon-hole, where you or your clerk were too lazy to look: and I've lost a hundred dollars through your ueglect, sir; and you're not fit for yoor place, sir: and I want you to understand that the Honorable Demosthenes Bung, the Member of Congress, is my wife's cnusin, sir; and I'll be "—etc., etc. And yet the letter was delivered within an hour of its arrival; and the unhappy postmaster is deprived of the means of satisfying his inceused fellow-citizeo of the fact, because the postmaster at the office to which it was originally missent, has neglected to affix his postmark and the words "missent and forwarded," as the Regulations call upon him to do.

To those who have passed through the above experience of bearing blame which belongs elsewhere—and to those who desire to avoid such an experience—we recommend a careful observance of the Regulation referred to.

☞ There has been some complaint recently on the part of the public that the payment of money orders has been delayed by reason of the non-receipt of letters of advice by the postmasters at offices on which orders are drawn. Postmasters and clerks at money-order offices should remember that nothing is so likely to impair the confidence of the public in the money-order system, as a lack of promptness in payment, which often results in loss and inconvenience to the payees: and they should see to it that the letter of advice shall, in every case, be sent to its destination by the first mail, in order that it may reach the paying office at least as soon as the order to which it refers. To allow letters of advice to be delayed through neglect to mail them at the proper time, is "shiftlessness" of the most inexcusable kind.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

We have quite a long letter respecting the difficulty of procuring revenue stamps, in small towns. Our correspondent suggests that postmasters, in common with the rest of mankiod generally, desire to turn an honest penny, but thinks that revenne stamps afford but little opportunity. "If not, then why not?" It seems to us that postmasters, in small towns, are the very ones to keep revenne stamps for sale. Such stamps can be bought at a discount, and thus afford opportunity of turning an honest penny, though it might be a small one. There is this objection, that the revenue stamps might be confounded with postage stamps, but this could be obviated by a little ordinary care. . . . . "Can a postmaster, under any circumstances, travel in the mail-car free?" is a question asked of us. A postmaster is oot entitled, by virtue of his office, to travel in a mail-car free; but if he has charge of the mails, in the absence of the regular agent, he may, of conrse, ride free. . . . . We are asked how inexperienced parties can bring to justice offenders against the postal laws, "such as sending two or more letters fnr different persons in the same envelope," "using cancelled stamps," &c., &c. Any postmaster becoming cognizant of violations of the Post Office laws should notify the Special Agent for the district in which his office is located, nt the same time being cautious that his action in the case does not become known to the offender. . . . . We thank nur friend from the South, who wishes the new year may bring us many subscribers—as, indeed, we thank many well-wishers from all parts of the country—and we would cheerfully "say something about our worthy Postmaster General increasing the salary of poor postmasters who live where the times are mighty hard;" but, in fact, the law fixes the basis nf the salary nf postmasters, and the Postmaster General has nn discretion in the matter, farther than to adjust the salary on that basis. . . . . Tn an inquiry whether the Post Office Department will not allow stationery to a postmaster whose salary is $30 a year, we must reply that expenses are not allnwed by law to any offices of the fifth class. . . . . One inqnires, "What is to be done with the 24-cent stamps?" If you have more than there is a probability of nsing in a reasonable time, you may apply to the Third Assistaot Postmaster General for permission to return them. . . . . A new subscriber asks us to say something about box rents. This subject has received a good deal of attention from us, and yet we can say nothing plainer, or more easily understood, than what may be fnund in Chapter XLII., Regulations nf 1866, to which we refer all interested In the matter. . . . . We find an inquiry fnr a new Post Office Directory. One is in preparation, and will be issued in a short time. . . . . We have some complaints nf wrappers being received by our snbscribers with no papers inclosed. It scarcely needs nur assurance that we do not send empty wrappers, nor that our papers are so securely wrapped that they could not become separated from the wrappers but by design. Whose design this is we have no means of knowing, but we wnuld be greatly obliged to him, nr them, nnt to add insult to injury by sending wrappers when they appropriate the papers.

Registration of Letters.

The following are replies to questions which have been received on this subject dnriug the past month. We take occasion to request correspondents who send us letters in regard to registration, to separate the questions on that subject from any which they may wish to ask in relation to other postal matters:

A. Y., S——, R. I.—The P. M. at A. does not take a receipt from the P. M. at B., nor from the route agent. The P. M. at B. enters the package on his Record of Registered Matter in Transit, and he takes a receipt from the route agent.

H. W., B——, Ill., and J. C., W——, Pa.—The question raised hy yon in regard to registering mutilated currency will be submitted to the Department for decision, and we will notify you by letter of the result.

A. F. P., P——, Kon.—The name of the office from which you actually receive a registered letter—whether it be the origiual mailing office or a D. P. O.—should be entered oo your Account of Registered Letters Received. The same rule applies to ordinary unpaid letters on your Sheet of Mails Received. In both cases, be governed by the name which appears in the headings of the bills.

P. M., S——, Po.—By consultiug Chapter XIV., P. O. Laws of 1866, you will find that the Post Office Department is not responsible for lost registered letters or their contents.

A. M., S——, Ill.—In sending registered letters to a D. P. O., always direct the package envelope, and the bills, to the P. M. at the D. P. O., and not to the office of final destination. In sending ordinary letters to a D. P. O., address the package to that D. P. O.

C. M. M., W B——, Vt.—The prepaymoot of registration fees in stamps is one of the regulations of the present registration system, which went into effect June 1, 1867.

C. C. W., A——, Ill.—Send your registered matter for New York to Chicago D. P. O., in a Registered Package Envelope, directed to P. M., Chicago. Make out the bills to that office also. Do the same with your Washington matter.

R. Q. S., H—— Ky.—If you are on the line of a railroad, or send your mail direct to a railroad, you should take a receipt from the route agent for all registered matter you send. There are blank receipts for this purpose, which you can obtain by addressing the Third Assistant Postmaster General. The edition of 1866 is the latest edition of P. O. Laws and Regulations. Registration regulations are published separate. Write as above for them if you have no copy.

W. L. H., C——, N. Y.—See answer above. In regard to envelopes, see Secs. 18 and 19, P. O. Regulations of 1866.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Lost Registered Letters. — S. W. M., M——, Mo., and S. S., D——, Iowa.—" Money and other valuables sent by mail are at the risk of the owner," eveo though registered; " but in case of loss the Department will endeavor to discover the cause, and where there has been a theft, to pnnish, the offender." Sec. 456, Reg. 1866.

Returning Papers and Circulars.—H. M. S., B—— C——, Kan.—Newspapers and circulars cannot be returned on request, unless the postage for returning is prepaid.

Credit for Cancelling Stamps.—R. L. B., D—— C——, Wis.—The Postmaster who coocels the stamp is entitled to the credit for it. But if stamps are not canceled at the mailing office, the delinquent Postmaster should be reported according to Section 177, Regulations 1866.

Accounts to be Kept by Postmasters.—J. M. B., A——, N. C.—Chapters 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31 of Regulntions of 1866 give full information respecting the accounts and papers to be kept by Postmasters. If you have not got these Regulations you should apply for them at once, to the First Assistaut Postmaster-General.

County Papers.—G. K. T., M—— V——, R. I., and several others.—We cannot better reply to several inquiries on this subject, than by quoting cotirs the section bearing on it. "Bona fide snbscribers to weekly newspapers can receive the same free of postage, if they reside in the county in which the paper is printed and published, even if the office to which the paper is sent is without the coonty, provided it is the office at which they regularly receive their mail matter." Section 228, Regulations 1866. One copy means one copy of each weekly issue.

Wrapping Letters.—L. H., F——, N. Y., and T. M. C., C——, O.—Postmasters are required to wrap letters, except at offices supplied in whole or in part by railway post offices, in which case they will be governed by instructioos from the Superintendent of the railway service. "Each package contaiuing letters should be plainly directed on the outside," and though the regulations say nothing about not directing with lead pencil, yet common sense suggests that it is very inappropriate, and should never be done. Sections 88 and 94, Regulations 1866.

Supplements to Newspapers.—C. E. T., H——, B——, N. Y., and D. F., B—— S——, O.—"In all cases the added matter in the form of a supplement to a newspaper must be a genuine supplement or appendage, and of the same general character, conveying intelligence of passing events of general interest," or it will subject the whole package to letter postage; and these supplements must be folded with the regular issue, not sent separate. A hand-bill, circular or advertisement is not a genuine supplement. Section 226, Regulations 1866.

Part of a Stamp.—J. P. H., L——, Va., and H. M. R., E——, O.—A half of a stamp has no value in payment of postage—that is, the half of a two-cent or any other stamp on a letter has no value. A letter bearing a two-cent stamp and half of another should be sent to the Dead Letter Office, not being prepaid one rate.

Refused Papers.—J. M., C——, Vt., and others.—Newspapers and undelivered printed matter, "except books and unpaid foreign pamphlets, newspapers and other printed matter," must be sold at the end of each quarter, and the amount of the proceeds entered in the quarterly account. But when any newspaper or magazine, regularly sent through the mails, has been refused, or not called for for one month, the Postmaster will notify the publisher (blanks for which purpose can be obtained of the First Assistant Postmaster-General), by sending a statement of the facts to the Postmaster of the mailing office. If, after such notice, the publisher continues to send the paper or magazine, it must be kept to the end of the quarter, and then sold as "undelivered printed matter." Sections 390-91-92, Regulations 1866.

Delivering Mail Bags, &c.—W. H. J., J——, Ill.—1. If a Post Office is within a quarter of a mile of a railroad station, the railroad company should deliver the mail at the office. If more than that, it should be carried by a mail carrier or mail messenger. A Postmaster cannot draw pay for this service. Section 471, Regulations 1866. 2. The postage on stamped envelopes spoiled in directing, may be refunded according to Section 189, Regulations of 1866 Such spoiled envelopes should be sent, with a special letter, to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. The item is not to be entered in the Account Current.

Charge of Mail Bags.—J. D. K., P——, Po.—"When a mail stops over night where there is a Post Office, it must be kept in the office." Section 106, Regulations 1866.

Delivering Books to a Successor.—W. J. H., Q——, Kan.—"All instructions, circulars, and orders received by a Postmaster, also all desks, cases and other furniture and fixtures, and all books, maps, blanks, stationery, &c., which have been furnished to a Postmaster as such, must be turned over to his successor." Section 31, Regulations 1866.

Postage on Drop Letters.—E. W. E., L—— C——, Wis.—The postage on drop letters, where there is a free delivery, is two cents, at other places one cent—on circulars two cents for three. Sections 243, 250 and 251, Laws of 1866.

Forwarding Drop Letters, Newspapers, &c. — Several Inquirers. — 1. Drop letters when forwarded, must be charged the regular rate of three cents the half ounce. 2. Newspapers coonot be forwarded unless the postage for forwarding is prepaid; but if a subscriber to a regular paper moves to another place, he may have the Post Office address changed, and on producing a receipt from the former Postmaster, may receive the paper free of additional postage at the office of the new address. 3. Newspapers received in a club, cannot be forwarded free to another office.

Dead Franked Speeches.—J. R. T. C., C——, Pa.—Franked Coogressional speeches, not called for, should be sent to the Dead Letter Office.

General Account.—S. C. B., P—— C——, Pa, and J. B., L—— G——, N. Y.—1. The general account may be kept in an ordinary cash book. Books for the purpose are not furnished by the Department. 2. A post office clerk cannot draw pay as a mail messenger

Postage.—We have received so many inquiries about postage, that it would take too much space to devote a paragraph to each. Each inquirer, however, will find below, after his initials, an answer to his question. E. B. S., G—— E——, Pa.—Newspapers from England, or any part of the British Isles, are no looger chargeable with postage on delivery, unless short paid. D. B., M——, Pa., and J. R. K., K——, O.—Manuscript music is chargeable with letter postage. Section 37, Regulations 1866. J. H., M——, O.—If a transient newspaper is received at a Post Office, unpaid, the postage should be collected at the single, and not double rates. Section 150, Regulations 1866. H. B., F——, Ind.—The quarterly postage on a quarterly periodical weighing over twelve ounces, and not over sixteeo, is four cents, being one ceot for every four onnces or fraction thereof. Section 202, Regulations 1866. R. J. F., T——, Ct.—When newspapers brought out of the mail by mail carriers, are placed in a Post Office for delivery "postage must be charged and collected." Section 50, Regulations 1866. W. L., C——, O.—It is contrary to law and regulotions to deliver any mail matter on which postage has not been paid. Section 154, Regulntions 1866. We do not think that a Postmaster who adheres to this requirement need fear being removed at the instance of those whose only cause of complaint is, that he will not violate his duty and his oath. J. J. K., M——, Mo.—Circulars sent in packoges through the mail to one address, cannot afterwards be distributed through the office at which received, free of postage. F. M., G——, Mass.—Regular newspapers cannot be sent to foreign subscribers without prepayment of postage. Consult the Foreign Postage Table in THE MAIL for the rates to foreign countries. W. J. B., D—— S——, Pa.—Packoges of papers to clubs are not eotitled to pass through the mails at less than regular rntes. J. L., S—— H——, Mass.—Regular papers from Canada are chargeable with the same rates of postage as domestic papers. Section 261, Regulations 1866. M. V. B., C——, N. Y., and W. F., L——, Mass.—Transient papers from Canada are chargeable with postage at transient rates, to be collected at the office of delivery. Section 261, Regulutions 1866. T. B., N——, Conn.—Insufficieotly prepaid letters should not be mniled, if the party posting them is aware that the prepayment is insufficient. B. E. H., H——, Ill.—The postage on papers to Switzerland, via North Germnn Union direct, is ten cents each, the table in THE MAIL being correct. R. M. H., C——, Mass.—The quarterly rates of postage are allowed only on papers, &c., sent to regular subscribers from a known office of publication. Sections 201 and 202, Regulations of 1866. But by Section 225 of same regulations, news agents, under certain restrictions, have the same privilego as publishers, of mailing printed matter, the postage to be collected on delivery.

☞ William A. Thompson, convicted of robbing the lock-boxes at the Pittsburg, Pa., Post Office by means of false keys, was sentenced by Judge McCandless, in the United States District Court, on February 8, to ten years' imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

EXPENSIVE NEGLIGENCE.—Among the cases to be tried before the United States Circuit Court is one against Albert Cook, Isaac Lott, Charles C. Thurman and Elisha Taylor, the United States being plaintiff. Mr. Cook was Postmaster of his village, in Kendall County, for a time, but, becoming tired of it, resigned his position; his resignation being accepted, orders were sent for him to send his accounts to headquarters. He did so, but shortly after received notice that the account was eight cents short, to which he paid no attention. Seeing a notice that himself and bondsmen were implicated in a suit, he at once hurried to Chicago, and, employing counsel, went to the court-room and found that the Postmaster General had sued him for the eight cents. He further discovered that the clerk's costs had reached $10, and the State Attorney's $5, and that the Marshal was preparing to visit him at Kendall County, which would add $20 more to the costs. Mr. Cook confessed judgment, paid costs and left Chicago.—Chicago Post.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISOELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) also for Belgium and The Netherlands. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz. Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is ten cents per half ounce, prepayment optional; but the whole postage must be prepaid or none. Part prepayments are not recognized. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexmidretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulina, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the United States postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, two cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; and all other kinds of printed matter the same as domestic rates; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.
2. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prapaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2 and 3) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, or the Netherlands, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

4. TO THE WEST INDIA ISLANDS, EXCEPT CUBA, BY BRITISH PACKET, OR PARTLY BY BRITISH AND PARTLY BY UNITED STATES PACKET.—Newspapers 4 cents each; prepayment required. To BRITISH WEST INDIES AND CUBA.—Newspapers and other printed matter, two cents per four ounces or fraction thereof—prepayment required.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &C., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithogmphs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be cobsidered as having on this ground an intrinsic valuc.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Every postmaster will be careful never to send a registered letter "direct," when there is a distributing post office between his office and the office to which the letter is directed. He must inclose it in a "Registered Package Envelope," directed to the postmaster at the first distributing post office on the route, and also send the Return Registered Letter Bill in a common envelope to the same postmaster by same mail—just the same as if the letter were for delivery at the distributing post office.

Post Office Blanks.

DISTRICT NO. 1—Supplies blanks for the District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakotah, Kansas, Nebraska, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. Postmasters in either of these States, wanting blanks of any kind should address "First Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, District of Columbia."

DISTRICT NO. 2—Supplies blanks for the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, California and Oregon, Washington Territory and Nevada. Postmasters in either of these States or Territories, wanting blanks, should address "Blank Agent, New York, N. Y."

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Marking Stamps.

Post Offices, the gross receipts of which are over $1,000 per annum, will be furnished with circular marking and rating stamps of class No. 1; less than $1,000 and over $500, with stamps of Class No. 2; less than $500 and not less than $50, with circular marking stamps of class No. 3, and rating stamps of wood, on application to the Appointment Office.

Postmasters at offices, the gross receipts of which are less than $50 per annum, if they use rating stamps, must obtain the same at their own expense.

Letter balances, upon the like application, are furnished to offices which collect in postages $75 a year.

SOMETHING NEW AND USEFUL.

Shreve's Postal Indicator.

Will keep the amount of STAMPS CANCELLED, or Number of Letters Received for Delivery, Under-charge Account, Amount of Stamps sold, of Box Rent and Postage Collected, &c. Can be used in a Post Office of any class; will indicate the account of the day, week, month or quarter, and banishes all the perplexing modes heretofore employed. By its use the postmaster can, with little trouble, keep these accounts all the year, and have a correct knowledge of the amount of business he is doing.

This system embraces the shortest and most accurate mode of recording the amount of Stamps defaced, and for this purpose alone is worth its cost. Full instructions accompany each Indicator. Forwarded by mail, on receipt of $3 00, to any part of the United States.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, January 22, 1868.

H. SHREVE—DEAR SIR: Your new Indicator has been in use ever since its arrival, and I have found it to be accurate in its entire system, saving more than half the time and trouble experienced in keeping the accounts. It is an article that has long been needed, and invaluable to every Postmaster. I would not be without it for double its cost. It is certainly an article of merit, and as such I take pleasure in recommending it to all who desire to economize in time, and get rid of the old perplexing modes of keeping the accounts. Very truly yours,

O. H. P. BAILEY, P. M.

a.—When the letter a is prefixed, the foreign postage (which in each case is 12 cents) is increased by an additional rate for every 7½ grammes (¼ oz.) or fraction thereof. The United States inland and Atlantic sea postage (which in each case is 10 cents the single rate) is increased by an additional rate for every 15 grammes (½ oz.) or fraction thereof.

b.—Where the letter b is prefixed, an additional rate is to be added to the foreign portion of the postage for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the newspaper exceeds 4 ounces in weight. The foreign postage, in each case, is ascertained by deducting from the amount set down the sum of 3 cents, which is the United States portion of the postage on a single newspaper, regardless of weight. In all other cases, the postage is for each newspaper without regard to its weight, when sent to British mail.

c.—The book and pattern post to Egypt via British mail extends only to Alexandria,

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. VIII., NO. 7. NEW YORK, APRIL, 1868. WHOLE NO. 91.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Lost Registered Letter, &c.—J. T. M., A——, Va.—1. In case of a lost registered letter, report the particulars of registration and loss to the Second Assistant Postmaster General, Contract Office, Inspection Division, Washington, D. C.—Also to the nearest resident Special Agent. 2. A Postmaster's wife may be his assistant, provided she is sworn.

Office of Publication.—J. H., F——, Ky.—County papers may be mailed free only at the place where printed and published. Bnt other papers may be mailed at different places of publication. Sections 201 and 202, Regulations, 1866.

Money Order Statements.—H. C. P., W——, Ohio.—You are not required to make np your weekly statement on Saturday evening till after the business has closed, and then you are to send it by the first mail. Section 536, Regulations, 1866.

Franking, &c.—J. Y. G., B——, Texas, and others.—Letters cannot be franked to the Editor of THE MAIL, nor has a bonded warehouseman a right to frank to collectors or their assistants, nor a deputy collector to another deputy collector or to delinquent taxpayers, nor an assessor to a Postmaster; neither is an assessor entitled to receive the Internal Revenue Record free of postage. Postmasters are not at liberty to open franked sealed packages to detect violations of the franking privilege. The persons named in Chapter XV., Regulations of 1866, in the Internal Revenue Law, and the Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C., are the only persons entitled to the franking privilege, except the Adjutants General of New Jersey and Ohio, who may frank certain medals and certificates to soldiers. But copyright books, &c., may be sent to the librarians of Congress and the Smithsonian Institution free, provided they are marked "copyright" for the library to which they are sent.

Old Quarterly Returns.—L. S., R——, Mo.—Post Office quarterly returns more than two years old may be sold as waste paper, and the proceeds credited to the Department.

Dead Circulars.—P. B. M., G——, Ohio.—Circulars not called for are not to be sent to the Dead Letter Office, but sold at the end of the quarter, and the proceeds credited to the Department. Section 390, Regulations, 1866.

Supplement to a Newspaper.—F. C. J., R——, N. Y.—A circular is not a supplement, nor is the shoot so commonly used by traveling physicians. The insertion of one of these between the leaves of a newspaper subjects the whole to letter postage. Section 209, Regulations, 1866.

Obscene Circulars.—J. S., F——, Md.—The law is very stringent respecting the depositing of obscene matter in the mails, but it is very difficult to detect such matter at the mailing office.

Average Sale of Postage Stamps.—N. H. E., A——, N Y., and E. L. H., D——B——, N. Y.—The average of the sale of postage stamps should be for three months previous to the order for a new supply. This seems the inference from Section 163, Regulations of 1866.

Desks for Post Offices.—J. M. J, R——, Kan.—A cheap plain desk is allowed, but, before purchasing, application should be made to the Auditor of the Post Office Department. Section 323, Regulations, 1866.

Tax on Salaries.—K. J. A., L——C——, Minn.—One thousand dollars is exempt from taxation; consequently there is no tax upon a salary of ten dollars.

Mail Schedule.—W. M. S., H——, Ind.—Postmasters are required to set forth the exact time of each arrival and departure of the mail, and to give the reason for every delinquency, if known to them. Section 103, Regulations, 1866.

Carrying the Mail Between a Post Office and a Railroad Station.—W. B., D——, Pa., and J. M. W., R——, Mass.—Railroad contractors are required to deliver mails at offices within a quarter of a mile of stations; where the distance is greater, mail messengers are appointed. For permission to do this apply to the Contract Office, Washington, D.C. Section 471, Regulations, 1866.

Expenses, &c.—W. H. G., St. L——, N. Y., J. W. B., B——R——, N. C., and B. W., G——, Ill.—1. Expenses are allowed by law to offices of the first and second classes, and, in the discretion of the Postmaster General, to offices of the third and fourth classes. Application for envelopes should be made to the Third Assistant Postmaster General—not to either of the Blank Agents. Sections 17, 18, 19; Regulations, 1866. 2. Letters for another State, which should pass through a D. P. O. on their route to the office of delivery, should be sent to that D. P. O. 3. Postmasters at offices where the receipts are not sufficient to pay the salary will be paid by special draft from the Department, and in such cases it lies with the Postmaster General whether or not the office shall be discontinued.

Mutilated Currency.—W. B., R——M——, Ohio, and others.—1. Mutilated currency must be taken in payment for postage stamps, according to the circular published in THE MAIL in September last. 2. Fractional currency is a legal tender for amounts not exceeding five dollars.

Newsdealers' Packages.—F. S., E——, Iowa.—1. Newsdealers can pay the postage on their packages as received, at the regular quarterly rates. Section 202, Regulations, 1866. Postage on such packages is not rated by the pound, but by the four ounces, and letter postage, where chargeable, is calculated on each half ounce or fraction thereof

County Paper.—J. R. J., M——, Mo.—A subscriber to a county paper, in order to receive it free of postage, must live in the county of publication, though he may receive it at an office not in that county, provided it is the office at which he usually receives his mail matter. Section 228, Regulations, 1866.

General Account.—S. C. B., P——C——, Pa., and J. B., L——G——, N. Y.—The Department does not furnish books in which to keep the general account. But a book for this purpose, adapted to small offices, costs comparatively very little. An ordinary three or four quire cash-book would answer all the purpose, and last a good many years. The difference between the General Account and the Quarterly Account Current may be learned by consulting Chapters XXIX. and XXXI., Regulations of 1866.

Carrying Letters Out of the Mail.—M. C., P——, Va., and J. B. Y., C——, Ark.—Letters in stamped envelopes may be carried out of the mails, but the act of 1845 imposes a fine of $150 upon the person who may establish an express or act as an express for the carrying of mailable matter out of the mails, or aid or assist therein. See Chapter V., Regulations of 1866. J. N., H——, Texas.—1. See preceding. 2. Return dead letters, if not "valuable," may be forwarded. Section 287, Regulations of 1866. 3. One postmaster is not obliged to receipt to another for registered package envelopes, but we recommend it being done voluntarily. Read the communication of J. S. D., in THE MAIL of last October.

Post Bill to Distributing Office.—W. W. O., M——, Mich.—Unpaid letters sent to a distributing office for distribution should not be post-billed. A post bill is required only when mailing direct for delivery. Section 92, Regulations of 1866.

Assistant Postmasters.—R. Y. W., M——, Ohio.—Precaution should be taken to appoint no assistant postmaster, Section 22, Regulations of 1866, and whoever you appoint must be sworn, Section 11, Regulations of 1866.

Unpaid Letters.—W. W. L., A——, Ill.—Unpaid letters should be sent to the dead letter office. If you affix stamps to them and mail them, you do it on your own responsibility, and should not expect credit for the stamps so affixed. See Section 360, Regulations of 1866.

Dead Letters.—S. W. C., S—— B——, N. Y.—Study Chapter XXXV., Regulations of 1866. Section 361 has been modified, so that only offices of the first class are allowed pay for advertising in the papers.

Establishing a Money Order Office.—H. W., N—— F——, Kan.—There is no form or regulation for procuring the establishment of money-order offices. The selection of certain offices for money-order offices is made by the Department. By proper representations to the Department, however, and to the member of Congress for your district, you might have your office included in the next selection.

Notifying Publishers.—C. M. M., W—— B——, Vt.—After you have notified a publisher, your duty is done, and if then his paper continues to come to your office, and is not taken out, you must sell it at the end of the quarter, and credit the proceeds to the Department. There is an opinion prevalent with some publishers that the law that a subscriber is liable for the subscription to a paper until arrearages are paid, is a postal law, and hence they continue to send papers after being notified that they are not taken out.

Mail Carrier Carrying Letters Out of the Mail.—W. A. R., B——, S. C.—A mail carrier may receive letters and the money or stamps for postage on his way between two offices, if delivered to him more than a mile from a post office but must deposit them in the first post office at which he arrives. Sections 463 and 469, Regulations of 1866. Letters to the Editor of THE MAIL are not entitled to pass free.

Cents for Postage.—J. H., F—— C. H., Va.—The one and two cent coins of the United States are a legal tender for any amount not exceeding four cents.

Postage.—Correspondents who have asked questions on this subject will find them answered below. O. R. G., M——, Mich.—Postage must be collected at the office of delivery on papers published in Canada, and at the office of mailing on papers going to Canada. Section 261, Regulations, 1866.....H. M. H., R——, Ohio.—The Postmaster at New York has the right to charge a fine of five cents on unpaid or insufficiently prepaid letters from Germany. This fine cannot be avoided by paying the unpaid postage in silver. The only deduction that can in that case be made is the premium on specie in payment of postage, and not of the fine.....J. P. M., C——, Pa.—Printed matter should be weighed with the wrapper on. Underpaid domestic letters sent to a distributing office should have the amount due marked on them, but no bill should be sent with them. Section 92, Regulations, 1866. Subscribers who take papers for only one or two months must either pay postage for three months at quarterly rates, or pay at transient rates. Section 154, Regulations, 1866. Notify publishers to discontinue papers, by sending the notice to the Postmaster at the office in the town where the paper is published. Send to Appointment Office for a supply of blank No. 29.....N. J., B——, Iowa.—Postmasters at separating offices cannot collect the postage on papers passing through their offices. Postage must be paid either at the mailing office or office of delivery.....J. M. F., N——, Ohio.—If any matter on which, by law, the postage should be prepaid arrives at the office of delivery, either unpaid or insufficiently prepaid, the unpaid postage must be collected, and this must be done whether it is charged or not by the forwarding office.....O. H. O., H——, Pa.—Postage on monthly papers, weighing over four and not over eight ounces, is six cents a quarter, whether the Postmaster distributes them or not.....J. F. H., F——, Mass.—Postage on medicines in paper boxes should be charged at letter rates.....H. L. W., C——, Mass.—A person subscribing for a paper for four months should prepay the postage for the whole time, and the amount, though really more than one-quarter's postage, should be entered in the account of newspapers for that quarter; for, as the law does not allow of the entry of less than a quarter's postage, when short is postage for part of a quarter it must be included in the postage for the whole quarter.....J. A. W., R——, N. H.—If a Postmaster is out of stamps, he is allowed to take money for postage; but you should procure a temporary supply from some neighboring Postmaster. Section 161, Regulations, 1866. Do you charge one or two cents on drop letters? One cent is the correct charge if you have not a free delivery.....J. G. P., R——, Mass.—Postage on the manuscript of a Town Report should be charged at letter rates.....L. G. S., S——, Cal., and W. S. H., O——, Minn.—Printed matter and circulars cannot be forwarded unless prepaid for forwarding. The postage on book manuscript is two cents for four ounces or fraction thereof; on newspaper or magazine manuscript three cents for half an ounce or fraction thereof .....R. N. S., McC——, Pa.—1. When a publisher sends a second number of the same issue, by mistake, to another publisher, as an exchange, postage should not be collected on the extra number, if it has clearly been sent by mistake. 2. Letter postage should be charged on a package of tea, whether sealed or not. 3. On taking charge of a Post Office, the incoming Postmaster should collect from his predecessor all moneys collected for postage for which the latter does not account to the Department

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO.

Those of your patrons who were not witnesses of the operations and effect of the late equinoctial, have probably read or heard enough of it to render them somewhat familiar with the dismay and devastation it caused along the route I traveled. No such storm of wind and snow has swept across the country within the recollection of the present generation, and those who were unfortunate enough, to suffer pecuniarily from its destructiveness, or physically by exposure to its severity, will not soon forget it. It was fated that I should be caught in a car on a seashore railway (the delightful weather of the preceding week having tempted me to travel), and the experience of a few hours of that day will be among the prominent recollections of an eventful lifetime. I left my hotel that fearful morning, and convulsively grasping the handle of my baize bag in one hand and my umbrella in the other, having hurriedly adjusted my spectacles, pulled up my coat-collar and pulled down my broad-brimmed hat, I bowed my head to the elements, and steered as straight as I could through the blinding snow to the depot. In endeavoring to turn the first corner, a frightful gust of wind assailed me from the rear and sent me at a double-quick into the middle of the street, and the continued force of this unexpected propelling power was so great that I was obliged to keep up speed to preserve my equilibrium, until the next thoroughfare was reached, when a fresh breeze contributed its quota of accelerating influence, and in this undignified way I was hurried along until I arrived at the station. It was entirely deserted, save by a solitary policeman, who walked his lonely rounds muffled up to the eyes, and completely frosted over with the powdered snow which eddied through the chinks and crannies of the mammoth building.

The only wheeled vehicle to be seen was a baggage barrow, and the prospect of getting away by rail was as gloomy as the time and place. I presently accosted the civic sentinel in my usual urbane manner, and learned from him that a train would certainly leave during the morning; so I retired to the waiting-room, and taking out of my hat an old letter of Jane Mary's, I occupied myself therewith until the dull sound of a bell, a half-choked whistle and the subdued rolling of wheels informed me that a train had backed into the depot. Very soon I was on the platform, and entering the car I was rather pleased to find I was going to have company, which, I almost immediately discovered, consisted of three German artists—i. e. house-painters—a Connecticut River shad fancier, and last, though not least, for he was of Brobdignagian proportions, the proprietor of a patent machine for making pocket combs out of clam shells. We were off pretty soon, and had proceeded some distance when we were suddenly thrashed head over heels by a hump which brought the train to a dead halt. The general impulse at first was to get mad and swear at somebody, but as no one came into the car to allow the profanely inclined to indulge in a luxury of anathemas, good nature resumed her seat, and we quietly waited the result—and a weary wait we had of it. For three hours we remained unvisited by any of the train men, and the gusts of wind and squalls of snow obliged us to keep doors and windows closed. The uninterrupted blasts which swept inward from the ocean made our shelter sway fearfully, and we expected every moment to have it lifted from the track and sent careering through the air. But we were saved from this aerial expedition by the welcome appearance of the conductor; but he, to our dismay, informed us that the train could not move an inch, either forward or backward, and that for our own safety he would recommend that we return on foot to the point from whence we started. Soon there was a buttoning of coats, muffling of faces, and tucking up of trowsers; and leaping from the rear end of the car, we started, Indian file, across lots for the town, some three miles off.

Away we went, helter-skelter, over fences, under fences and through fences; now knee-deep into hidden gullies and post holes; now into deceptive snow banks, up to the chin; now flying before the snow-laden hurricane with frightful velocity; now having it dead ahead, disputing every inch of ground; now on the larboard side, now on the starboard, causing us to zig-zag like drunken men, and now exercising the privileges of a whirlwind, catching us in its embrace, and waltzing us into a condition of dizziness decidedly disagreeable to me, but the trio of Tentons seemed to relish the rotary motion of the gale hugely. Away we went over hedge-rows, through orchards and gardens, varying our course from point to point, thus doubling the distance we had to travel; now, for a moment, seeking protection under the lee of a building, then out and off again to battle with the tempest; away we went, blindly blundering over strange territory and through the half buried suburbs, and at last panoplied in snow, disorganized in garb and physically played out, I reached the hotel again. I had nothing to say; I lacked vocabulary commensurate with the occasion; but

"There's a language that's mute, there's a silence that speaks,
There are words that can only be read on the cheeks"— which may have told a story. I confess I felt soured, and gave ill-nurtured answers to well-meant questions; but a change of garments, and the soothing influences of a warm stove, an innocent stimulant and a good dinner brought back all my geniality and cheerfulness, and I accepted an invitation to spend the evening at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, and an exceedingly pleasant evening it was. Your official readers, I am sure, all know the object of these widespread brotherhoods; but you will be surprised, as I was, to learn that not a post-office clerk is connected with the one I visited, although it numbers over three hundred young men on its books; nor did any of the members with whom I conversed, and who had visited other localities, know of any anywhere else. It is not necessary to keep the hands always folded, the eyes upturned, the face free from smiles, to belong to one of these societies; the members are not expected to faint at sinful sights or profane sounds; they are not expected to damage their eyesight by watching their morals, or injure their health by the uninterrupted observance of religious duties; nor are they to give the cold shoulder to creature comforts, or to the comfort of their fellow-creatures who enjoy life a little differently from them. It is not necessary to go unshod or unshaved, in sackcloth and ashes, to pay penance for past, present or prospective misconduct; therefore, with these facts before them, I really do not see why post-office clerks should not be partakers of the rights, lights and benefits of these most commendable institutions, as well as anybody else. There is, to be sure, no drinking or gaming permitted in their rooms; bad company cannot be found there; no temptation to extravagance is tolerated on the premises, and there is positively nothing to engender a taste for anything that might result in dishonest or improper practices to gratify it; but it don't follow that is the reason why my young post-office friends are not to be found there—not at all, although some people are cynical enough to insinuate that you will never fail to find them where these things are This may be and probably is true in some cases, but it is unjust to apply the remark indiscriminately; for I have traveled much, and among the many officials I have met I know several that do not visit such places. Upon the whole, however, I think it would be materially advantageous to themselves and the department they represent, if postmasters were to exercise greater care and caution in the selection of their clerks. It should not be an insuperable objection if they were not members of some Christian Association, nor should it disqualify them if they were; but pains should be taken to ascertain if they possessed the essential attributes—intelligence, good breeding, mild temper and patience, coupled with such other accomplishments as may be within their reach. They should inquire into their habits of sobriety, propriety and intercourse with society, and none should be chosen who failed to meet all legitimate requirements. An office organized under such auspices saves the Postmaster a world of trouble and annoyance. His best intentions are not thwarted; his well-laid plans are not disconcerted; he is not censured and denounced for irregularities and mismanagement; his authority is respected, and a high regard for his official and personal interest is paramount with his employees, who emulously strive to deserve and keep his confidence.

On the other hand, indifference to these details sows trouble, which the Postmaster must reap himself, amidst the execrations, denunciations and reproaches of those who helped him to the position he occupies, and which they, in their wrath, now charge he is unfit to fill.

MONS. TONSON.

A Touching Epistle.

The following is one of many hundred fac simile letters addressed to individuals—most generally elderly gentlemen—throughout the country, and to which probably some credulous ones have responded with material aid or sympathy:

ST. ALBANS, VT., 29th January, 1868.

My Dearest Sir:

In the spring of 1865, at Washington, I was introduced to, and several times met in society there, a gentleman from your State and of your name. So very attentive as you was then, you must be aware, if you are the gentleman I allude to. Accompanying my beloved father, who, from ill health, was seeking a change of climate and sea voyage, we were on our way to Europe. Alas! he died suddenly in Paris, shortly after our arrival there, and left me, a thoughtless, giddy, handsome girl, in that gay and beauteous capital, unprotected—at least, none but servants to care for me. No wonder, then, heedless, and surrounded by every snare, soon after the poignancy of grief had subsided, I fell. At present, my dearest sir, it matters not how, thoughtless and unsuspecting, I became an easy victim to a cruel deceiver. How dearly could I have loved him had he been just to me; but, oh, horror! too soon I discovered the blackness of his heart, his cruel villainy, and fled, scorning and despising him, and am now—but, alas! what am I now? Fallen from happiness and affluence to blackest despair and want. Never, never can I return to my loved, home more. I let them mourn me as dead, if they mourn for me at all. My degradation leaves me no alternative but separation from all I love on earth.

Are you still unmarried? Sincerely I hope so. Often have I thought of you with the kindest feelings. And if you are still single, and will be very kind to me, I will be your constant slave—your grateful, willing, loving slave. Write to me if I may come to you. For the last ten months I have been living in the strictest seclusion, on the proceeds of my jewels, &c. Now all is gone, and to-morrow, from necessity, without a dollar; a young, inexperienced girl, friendless, destitute, I leave here to find and ask a shelter of my kind old nurse, settled somewhere near Arlington. She was our faithful dependent more than thirty years, and now, should I find her, hope she will be to me a protecting friend. I never knew a mother's care; she died when I was very young.

I am in the extremest want, and know not what will become of me if I fail to find her, and am in despair for fear I shall, and be left homeless, friendless, and in want; but I dare not remain here longer, for I have no money to pay the humble pittance required of me, and am cast out. O, in mercy be my friend. Send me a few dollars inclosed, and advise me how to act. Confiding my sad disgrace to your honor, I appeal to you as a Christian and a gentleman to save me from immediate want. Send me a trifle by next post; but send it with kindness, and I will be grateful—O, yes, very grateful.

I appeal to your courtesy to shield from, and not expose me to my friends. And believe me, I remain, my dearest sir, anxiously but with hope,

Your affectionate friend and well-wisher,
EVA A. CUTHBERT.

Direct, MISS EVA A. CUTHBERT,
Arlington, Bennington County, Vt.

These missives are written in a beautiful, delicate, lady-like hand, on fine tissue paper, and have altogether an aristocratic look; and are certainly calculated to touch the funds and feelings of the unsophisticated saints and sinners. They are prepared in Canada, and mailed by hundreds at various offices in the United States, along the border, and have no doubt by this time stirred up the feelings of many of the recipients.

We cannot, through our paper, reach these victims of misplaced confidence, so as to dissuade them from tendering love or lucre to the ostensibly crushed heart whose wailings crop out in every line of this letter, but we can reveal a secret to postmasters which may be used in the interest of such parties, where they are known, and are not ashamed to be informed that they have been, or may be, badly duped.

Miss Eva A. Cuthbert, alias Miss Frances Wentworth, alias Miss Adelaide Perry, is a great big overgrown gorilla of a man, named Dr. Edmund Ramsden, alias Robert Emerson, fifty years of age, about five feet ten inches high, and nearly as thick; wears blue goggles, dresses in a suit of gray frieze, and is altogether as repulsive a specimen of humanity as ever came under police surveillance.

If, after this flattering notice, he is patronized by prurient, peccable, pharisaical, platonic, prodigal or philanthropic people, we are not to blame.

NEW LIST OF POST OFFICES.—The Department has issued the revised List of Post Offices in the United States, and it is now being distributed to postmasters. It contains the names of all post offices in operation on October 20, 1867, with names of postmasters. Early in May next an edition will be published by J. Disturnell, New York, with further corrections and additions. See advertisement

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 250 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

To Postmasters and Assistants.

The time may possibly arrive when we shall be able to afford to supply THE MAIL gratuitously to each Post Office in the Union; but we see no immediate prospect of so desirable a consummation. In the meantime, in looking over our mail books, we see the names of a large number of our subscribers who we are sure would be very sorry to miss the monthly appearance of our paper, but who, nevertheless, have so long neglected or procrastinated the renewal of their subscriptions that we shall be compelled, reluctantly, to erase their names unless they can find time to make the necessary remittance on receipt of this number.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 91, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

To Our New England Subscribers.

We presume most of our subscribers in New England have received a copy of a Boston local paper, of 21st ult., containing what purports to be a "vindication" of the editor, publisher, or some one connected with that paper, from certain charges contained in an article in our supplement for February, headed "How it was Done." We take it for granted that this is all which those concerned have to say in reply; and as both sides have now been heard, we cheerfully leave the question at issue to be decided by those who have taken enough interest in the matter to read what THE MAIL and the Boston paper have said in regard to it.

☞ Our subscribers will find many and important changes in our Table of Foreign Postages for this month, which will require attention, especially on the part of Postmasters registering letters to foreign countries.

[OFFICIAL.]

REDUCED RATE OF POSTAGE ON NEWSPAPERS ADDRESSED TO NEW ZEALAND AND AUSTRALIA VIA PANAMA.

We are requested to state that the postage on each newspaper forwarded from the United States to New Zealand or Australia, by British mail, via Panama, has been reduced from 6 to 4 cents, prepayment required. This pays the postage in full to destination.

Book Packets.

It will be seen from the following letter that book packet rates are to be charged on pamphlets and periodicals addressed to foreign countries. The publication of this letter will be an answer to numerous inquiries which we have received on this subject:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24, 1868.

SIR—I have to inform you, in answer to your letter of the 22d instant, that as pamphlets are chargeable with book packet postage under all of the conventions recently concluded by the Department with the different countries of Europe, it has been deemed advisable, for the sake of uniformity and simplicity in accounts, to include all pamphlets posted in this country and addressed abroad, in the category of book packets. Therefore pamphlets addressed to France are now chargeable with the domestic book-packet rate of postage, as indicated in the revised table of rates of postage to foreign countries lately furnished you for publication. * * * *

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Chief Clerk.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Ed. U. S. Mail, New York.

It is not intended by the above to convey the impression that pamphlets, &c., addressed to the British North American Provinces are chargeable with book-packet postage. This rate is only applicable to pamphlets, &c., addressed to countries or places requiring an ocean transit in reaching destination. The established domestic rates of postage are chargeable to and from the line of crossing on all mailable matter except letters addressed to or received from the British North American Provinces.

Registration to Countries beyond North Germany, via North German Union Mails.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, March 28, 1868.

The Post Department of the North German Union has informed this office that letters passing in transit through North Germany may be registered to all of the countries and places reached via the North German Union mails, except the following named places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli.

No additional register fee is chargeable on letters, except they be addressed to the Papal States or to Egypt; the international register fee of 8 cents paying the cost of registration to destination.

Letters addressed to the Papal States, via the North German Union, may be sent registered on prepayment of a register fee of 12 cents for each 15 grammes weight, and to Egypt on prepayment of a register fee of 20 cents per letter, in addition to the established rate of ordinary postage chargeable on such letters.

No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Chief Clerk, P. C. D.

Postage to Italy and Switzerland.

On and after April 1st inst., the rates of international postage on letters and other postal packets sent from the United States to Italy and Switzerland, in closed mail via England, Belgium, and Germany, will be as follows

On Letters.—Fifteen cents per single rate of fifteen grammes (½ ounce), prepayment optional: but unpaid or insufficiently prepaid letters will, in addition to the deficient postage, be subject to a fine on delivery in the country of destination.

On Newspapers.—Four cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional rate of four ounces, or fraction of four ounces; prepayment required.

On Book-packets, Prints of all kinds, and Patterns or Samples of Merchandise.—Eight cents per four ounces, or fraction thereof; prepayment required.

If, however, the postage on any article other than letters shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will, nevertheless, be forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on its delivery.

The regulations to be observed with respect to printed matter of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are substantially the same as those adopted for similar postal packets addressed to Great Britain or the North German Union.

New York is the office of exchange on the side of the United States.

Postmasters will levy postage accordingly on and after the 1st of April, inst.

Fines on Unpaid Foreign Letters, &c.

We judge, from the number of letters we receive on the subject, that there is a general misunderstanding in regard to the fines imposed on unpaid and insufficiently paid letters and other postal packets sent between this and certain foreign countries. By the postal conventions between the United States and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, the North German Union, Belgium, the Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland, each country collects for itself the amount of fine imposed on unpaid and insufficiently paid matter arriving in that country. The United States has fixed the fine on each matter arriving here at five cents for each letter or other postal packet. The fines chargeable on such matter arriving in the foreign countries named above are fixed at the following rates:

Great Britain	6d. sterling.
North German Union	not exceeding 2 silbergroschen.
Belgium	30 centimes.
The Netherlands	not exceeding 15 cents (Dutch).
Italy	not exceeding 20 centimes/nt.
Switzerland	not exceeding 25 centimes.

These fines are for each unpaid or insufficiently paid letter or other postal packet, and not on each rate.

MORE CARE NEEDED.—A note to Section 6, Regulations in regard to registration of letters, instructs postmasters that "in case a package too large to be inclosed in a registered package envelope is presented for registration at any Post Office, it should be securely wrapped, and a registered package envelope, properly directed and numbered, secured to the wrapper, by paste or otherwise, in such a manner that it will not become displaced before reaching its destination." We have seen evidence that some postmasters neglect these instructions by omitting to wrap the package, and also by failing to attach the registered package envelope securely. A very little more care, and the use of a little more twine, are all that is needed to prevent the envelopes and packages from becoming separated, as they now sometimes do.

☞ A new swindle through the mails, in the form of a bogus gift enterprise, is in preparation in New York. Postmasters will do well to warn their neighbors against taking any stock in it.

The Proposed New Post-Office at New York.

The Commission appointed by Congress to select and purchase a site and to procure plans and estimates for a building suitable for the purposes of a Post Office and United States Court Rooms in the City of New York have made their report to the Postmaster-General and Secretary of the Interior, who have approved the plan presented by the Commission, and (the lower angle of the City Hall Park having been some time since purchased by the Government) an appropriation by Congress for all that is now needed to secure the commencement of the work of erecting the building.

For a number of years past, the necessity for a new post-office building in New York has been felt and acknowledged, and various attempts have been made to secure one. The execution of these attempts, however, has hitherto been thwarted by the impossibility of reconciling the conflicting interests involved in the question of location. To so locate a post-office that it should be in the immediate vicinity of every bank, wholesale store and newspaper office in the city, and add to the value of everybody's, while it depreciated the value of nobody's, real estate, has been the rather difficult task which those who have hitherto sought to effect an improvement upon the shabby and disgraceful old postal rookery in New York have found confronting them; and naturally they have abandoned it in despair. We hope better things from the present effort; but it is rather too much to hope that it should be allowed to proceed without opposition. A prolonged shriek has issued from an editorial writer in one of the city papers, whose æsthetic sensibilities were shocked by the outrageous and unparalleled hideousness of the plan recommended by the Commission, and who has given utterance to his feelings in a style which we think we should have ourselves adopted had we been moved to treat the same subject while laboring under the combined influences of an aggravated indigestion and the disappointment consequent on the failure to accomplish the grinding of a cherished private axe. The other opposing newspapers have confined themselves chiefly to objections to the location, and have all demonstrated to their own entire satisfaction that the site selected is the most absurd, ill-chosen, inaccessible and inconvenient which the malice of an enemy to the city's prosperity and the comfort of its inhabitants could have hit upon. The post-office, in their opinion, should be located somewhere in the neighborhood of Central Park, the Five Points, Madison and Washington squares, and the City Hospital Grounds, convenient to all the ferries, steamboat landings and railroad depots, in some unfrequented main business thoroughfare. We fear the combined talent and ingenuity of the gentlemen composing the Commission would prove unequal to the task of so directing their labors as to meet these views, and we trust they will not undertake it. For even if by some miracle they should succeed, and should in addition, through spiritual or other medium, procure the drawing of a plan and the erection of a building under the joint supervision of Michael Angelo and Sir Christopher Wren, the number of malcontents would still not be sensibly reduced. We believe the point which has been fixed upon and purchased for the post-office site to be the very best procurable; and we hope that Congress will promptly make the necessary appropriation, and thereby gladden the citizens of New York with the prospect of a sightly and convenient substitute for the ridiculous and uncomfortable old deformity which has for so long reared (or rather squatted) its hybrid proportions in Nassau street—an offence to the eyes of all beholders and (literally) a stench in the nostrils of those whose duties have doomed them to confinement within its walls.

In the meantime—as it will in all probability be at least three years before the proposed building is completed—an attempt is being made to mitigate the inconveniences of the present building by the addition of another story to the comparatively modern portion of it. At present the business is cramped and choked for lack of space, and the necessity for the proposed relief is very urgent. Congress has appointed a committee to inspect the building and report as to this necessity. Doubtless they will use their eyes (and noses,) and follow the suggestions which those organs cannot fail to make.

Special Request Envelopes.

The following Regulation on this subject has been issued by the Post-Office Department:

Section 187 of the Post-Office Regulations, published in 1866, is so far modified as to allow postmasters to receive orders for envelopes bearing a business card, and request to return to a particular address, in quantities of 500 and upward, instead of 1,000, as heretofore.

1. Postmasters must not receive orders for less than five hundred of any particular kind.

2. Cards and requests can only be printed across the end, in the form adopted by the Department.

3. No variation in style of type or color of ink from that adopted by the Department will be made.

4. Card and request together must not exceed the limit of four lines.

5. The address of correspondents will, in addition to the card and request, be printed on not less than five hundred of any particular kind for each address.

6. Orders must be made separate from all other requisitions.

7. When printed cards do not accompany orders the matter desired to be printed must be plainly written. Cards should not be permanently attached to orders, but should be loosely inclosed therewith.

8. It must be distinctly stated whether or not the request to return is required in addition to the business card.

9. The Post-Office address of parties must be given when required to be printed; otherwise, special instructions to the contrary should accompany orders.

Second quality, letter size, 3 cent stamps, buff.	$32 80
First quality, letter size, 3 cent stamps	34 80
Letter size, 6 cents stamps	64 80
Official size, 3 cent stamps	38 60
Official size, 6 cent stamps	68 60

The actual cost, less the value of the stamps, is, respectively, $2.80, $4.80, and $8.60 per thousand, or 28 cents, 48 cents, and 86 cents per hundred—being less than half a cent for a letter size envelope of the first quality, and but little more than a quarter of a cent for one of the second quality; only one quality of the other denominations is furnished.

Envelopes of higher denominations of official size (9, 12, 18, 24, 30 and 40 cents) may also be obtained.

The postage on stamped envelopes spoiled in directing will be refunded in stamps, by postmasters, if satisfied that they have never been used, as provided above, and that the misdirection actually occurred at the place where the redemption is claimed. In no case is an envelope to be redeemed at the place to which it is directed.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

"Who shall decide when doctors disagree?" is the text for quite a long letter to us on "Sundry Post-Office Matters," the gist of which is a decision of the Department contrary to an "answer" in THE MAIL for February, wherein we say that the sender of a hook or paper may write his address on the wrapper thereof. We must acknowledge that on application to the Department we find a view taken of the section relating to the case, differing from the one held by us in the answer referred to. The question is one of construction of the law; and we need not inform our correspondent that laws almost invariably admit of two or more interpretations, which give rise to different practices until the matter is brought before the proper authority to decide which interpretation shall obtain. We can well see how a name may be placed in a book, or on a wrapper, and yet not convey the least information to the party addressed; for instance, we once knew of two gentlemen residing over one hundred miles apart. During their correspondence A expressed a wish to read a book which B possessed, and B offered to send it to him by mail, to which A assented. B took the book to the Postmaster, stated to him the circumstances and his wish to send it by mail, and showing him his name written in the book, inquired of him what the postage would be. The Postmaster knowing that the name in the book did not convey the least information, but that it had been there for some years as evidence of ownership, charged postage at book rates. Our correspondent further remarks on the differing constructions of the word "circular," and asks "who shall decide?" Advertising by means of cards, hand-bills, circulars, &c., is practiced in so many different ways that it is difficult to draw distinctions, especially when we consider local differences of meaning. But though we might, in an exceptional case of this kind, give decisions based on practice within our own experience, which may not accord with those made by the Department, of course we always adopt Department decisions. Our correspondent wants "light." We suggest that, in all cases where there is conflicting practice, the Postmaster should follow his judgment until he can procure a decision from the Department * * * * Another correspondent, a route agent on a steamboat route, wants to know what to do with unstamped letters left with him and with the clerk of the steamboat; also if the clerk has the right to convey and deliver such letters to the person addressed. We reply: The clerk is not allowed to convey such letters, but should give them to the route agent, and he should deliver all unstamped letters that come to his hands into the first post office at which he arrives, to be sent thence to the Dead Letter Office. This does not apply to letters relating to part of the cargo, which may be carried by the clerk, according to Section 45, Regulations of 1866. Paid and unpaid letters conveyed by a steamboat or other vessel not in the mail service, should be treated as directed in Section 242, Regulations of 1866.

ROBBERY OF LETTERS—ARREST OF THE PERPETRATOR.—This morning Mr. Fred. Depro, special agent of the Post Office, arrested Tilghman Dorsey, a colored servant employed at the Seaton House, for robbing letters entrusted to him to take to the Post-Office. On the 12th of December last, Rev. C. A. Schon, who was stopping at the Seaton House, mailed two letters, one containing $140, to his wife in New York, and another $10 to another party, which never came to hand. On the 22th of the same month, a lady stopping at the same house addressed a letter to Franklin Depot, Va., containing $15, which also never came to hand. These persons addressed notes to Postmaster Bowen of our city Post Office, who entrusted the investigation of the case to Mr. Depro. He at once set to work to discover the perpetrator, and after due inquiry he became satisfied that the pilfering was not done by any Post-Office employee here. Directing his attention to Tilghman Dorsey, he requested an inmate of the Seaton House to place a $10 marked note in a letter in the presence of Dorsey, and directed the employees of the Post Office to keep a lookout for the letter, and retain it if it came to hand. This was done, and Dorsey failed this morning to place the letter in the office, and Mr. Depro at once took him in custody, when the note was found in his possession. Dorsey acknowledged that he had committed the theft above-mentioned, as also several others. Mr. Depro and other Post-Office officials are well satisfied that many of the robberies of letters which are laid to the charge of the Post Office are committed by servants and other outside parties entrusted with letters.—Washington Star.

REGISTERING MUTILATED CURRENCY.—The Department has definitely decided that postmasters are required to pay the registration fee on packages of mutilated currency sent by them to the Treasurer of the United States for redemption.

☞ No revenue stamps are required on receipts given by contractors to postmasters for moneys paid by the latter to the former on the order of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices (viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ismila, Incholi, Jaffa, Kerasund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultchu, Varna and Volo), can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. Postage in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.
2. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
3. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)
4. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 2 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 8 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS ON SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Philadelphia and Baltimore are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Chicago, Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

San Francisco is an office of Exchange for British Mails only.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. VIII., NO. 8. NEW YORK, MAY, 1868. WHOLE NO. 92.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Foreign Postage Table.—W. W. L., S——, Mass., (and sundry others.)—The "Table of Postages to Foreign Countries," as published in THE U. S. MAIL, is the only one to be relied on as a guide, and the only one indorsed by the Post Office Department. We need hardly say that it is the only one for the correctness of which we hold ourselves in any way responsible.

Short-paid Circulars.—P. M., B——, Mass.—Unsealed circulars, containing writing which subjects them to letter postage, and pre-paid two cents, should not, when deposited in your office, be sent forward marked "Due 1." They should be held for postage and sent to Dead Letter Office as letters not pre-paid one full rate. See Section 389, Regulations of 1866. We fear you have neglected reading THE MAIL lately.

Procuring Postage Stamps.—A. B., C——, Iowa.—Stamps are procured from the Third Assistant Postmaster General; the requisition must be made on a printed form furnished by the Blank Agents. Section 162, Regulations, 1866.

Withdrawing Letters after Mailing.—E. W. L., C——, Del.—Although the proprietor of a boarding-school stands for the time being, in place of a parent or guardian, this fact gives him no right to control the correspondence of those under his charge, unless by direction of their parents. If clandestine correspondence is carried on against his wishes by the pupils, he has his remedy either in expelling them, or in obtaining the necessary authority from their parents, to stop it.

Manuscript Advertised Letters.—O. B. S., C——, Mo.—No fee or charge is allowed for letters advertised by posting manuscript lists. Section 362, Regulations, 1866.

Name of Sender on Wrapper of a Newspaper.—M. E. H., A——, O.—It has been decided that the name of the sender on a wrapper of a newspaper subjects it to letter postage. Section 216, Regulations, 1866.

Post Office Accounts, &c.—A. L., B—— C——, N. Y.—A retiring Postmaster is required to deliver to his successor, as public property, all desks, cases and other furniture, and all books, maps, blanks, stationery and all articles which have been furnished to him as Postmaster. Section 31, Regulations, 1866.

Letter in Transit bearing Cancelled Stamp.—S. B., R——, Pa.—A Postmaster is not allowed to detain domestic mail matter in transit. In case, however, of a letter bearing a stamp that has been previously used, it would be proper to write to the Postmaster at the office of delivery, a statement of the facts, who should then endeavor to discover if the use of the stamp was with fraudulent intent, or through error; if the latter, he should collect the proper postage; if the former, act according to Section 180, Regulations, 1866.

Defacing Stamped Envelopes.—G. C. C., L—— T——, Iowa.—Stamped Envelopes must be immediately and effectually canceled in the office in which they are deposited (Section 176, Regulations, 1866), and the canceling must be done with a separate instrument from the postmarking stamp. Section 178.

Unsealed Letters.—R. M. B., N—— H——, Ind.—Unsealed manuscript letters are chargeable with the same postage as though they were sealed, and if bearing only a two cent stamp, should be sent to the Dead Letter Office, unless they are Drop Letters. Section 360, Regulations, 1866.

Supplement to a Newspaper.—W. W. T., E—— G——, N. Y.—Section 226, Regulations of 1866, defines a supplement. A handbill or advertisement designed to promote private interests cannot be called a supplement.

Desks, Signs, Envelopes, &c., for Offices.—J. B. G., W——, Minn.—A cheap plain desk only is allowed to Postmasters, at the expense of the Department. Section 323, Regulations, 1866..... J. S. McD., S——, Ill.—Postmasters are required to pay for their own signs. Money-order offices are established to suit certain localities not according to the postal business done. Postmasters can purchase revenue stamps at a discount, but they cannot be ordered and paid for quarterly, as is done with postage stamps.....G. W. T., S——, N. H.—You cannot have a box receipt printed and charge the amount in your quarterly account. See advertisement of Wm. Tryon, in THE MAIL.

Notifying Publishers.—A. B. M., C—— C——, Wis.—You notify publishers by inclosing the notice to the Postmaster at the office of the publisher's place of business. Being on "Official Business," you frank to the Postmaster. Section 392, Regulations, 1866.

Unpaid Letters to a Postmaster and others.—W. H., S—— D——, Pa.—An unpaid mail letter to a Postmaster, marked "Official Business," unless sent by a person having the franking privilege, should be held for postage and sent to the Dead Letter Office.....C. M., W——, Mo.—1. Postmasters are not allowed to send letters without stamps, except when they have none, and in such case they should purchase a temporary supply from the nearest office, (Section 161, Regulations, 1866.) 2. A Postmaster who habitually neglects to postmark letters should be reported to the Department.....J. E., P—— Y——, N. Y.—Postmasters are allowed no discretion with regard to mailing unpaid letters. Such letters must be sent to the Dead Letter Office, or if the writer be known, they may, as a matter of courtesy, be sent to him, to give him an opportunity to correct his error.

Mutilated Currency.—J. McD., A——, N. Y., and E. P. C., P——, Ohio.—Postmasters are obliged to take mutilated currency in proportion to its value, according to the circular published in THE MAIL last September.

Franking Privilege.—J. S. D., S——, Mo., and C. S. B., Ill.—We must refer you to Chapter XIII. of Laws and Chapter XV. of Regulations of 1866. Mutilated currency cannot be registered free to the Treasurer of the United States. "The Answers to Correspondents" are intended to explain the law, and conform to it.

Registration of Letters.—C. G. F., E——, N. Y.—Registered package envelopes are furnished by the Third Assistant Postmaster General.....G. L. F. S., C——, S. C.—The postmaster at the office of final destination of a registered letter should send the return registered letter receipt to the original mailing office, whether the letter were first sent to a D. P. O. or not.....A. W. S., S—— L—— C——, U.—A registered letter received at a D. P. O. with neither registry fee nor postage paid, should be billed to the proper office with the postage charge, while the registry fee should be collected on delivery of the letter. See paragraph 9, page 6, of Regulations for Registration of Letters. .....W. D. R., B—— ——G, Ky.—Route agents' receipts for registered letters are not subject to postage, and a postmaster has no right to detain one knowingly in consequence of not being prepaid. To do so might be productive of much trouble and annoyance.....M. D. H., O—— G——, Ill.—Receipts for registered package envelopes in transit for postmasters to sign are not required to be sent from the mailing office with the registered package envelopes.

Dead Letters.—B. P. A., T——, Mass.—A letter indorsed "To be kept till called for," must be kept about one month after being advertised, unless the postmaster has special reason to think the letter can be delivered by holding it more than a month, in which case he must stamp or write upon it, "Specially held for delivery." Sec. 365, Reg. 1866.....J. B., M——, Tenn.—Packages of seed not delivered within the specified time should be sent to the Dead Letter Office.

Carrying the Mail, etc.—J. B. E., W——, Minn.—1. To obtain the privilege of carrying the mail you must address the Second Assistant Postmaster General with a statement of facts. 2. At small offices dead letters must be advertised by putting up a manuscript list, and no compensation is allowed. Sec. 362, Reg. 1866.....S. A. J. W., R—— H——, Md.—"Bidders, guaranters, and sureties are distinctly notified that on a failure to enter into or perform the contracts for the service proposed for in the accepted bids, their legal liabilities will be enforced against them." Sec. 424, Reg. 1866.....J. A. P., I—— C——, I. T.—If a mail carrier delivers the mail at the post office at the contract time it is optional with him whether he delivers it immediately on his arrival or drives through the village first.....A. N. W., S——, Ky.—As railroad contractors are required to deliver the mail at all offices within eighty rods of stations, they are required to deliver them at an office within seventy feet. Sec. 471, Reg. 1866.

Forwarding Circulars and Newspapers, etc.—J. T. M., W——, Wis.—Neither circulars nor newspapers can be forwarded free of additional postage. The privilege is restricted to prepaid and free letters.....H. A. F., J——, Mo.—A postmaster should not forward mail matter to a neighboring office, either in or out of the mail, by a person not sworn in, even though he present an order signed by the postmaster of the neighboring office. Sec. 24, Reg. 1866.....J. H. H., C——, Tenn.—A daily paper on which the postage has been paid quarterly in advance, cannot be forwarded free of postage to a subscriber, who has temporarily removed, but should be prepaid at transient rates.

Newspapers to France.—M., H. & Co., C——, S. C.—You cannot prepay postage in full on newspapers to France. There is a further charge on delivery—how much we cannot tell.

Newspapers to Germany.—E. K. S., Mt. C——, Ill.—Two or more papers under one wrapper cannot be sent to Germany for three cents, though the package weighs under four ounces. Each paper must be rated separately.

Postage.—W. A. M., B——, Ga.—Insufficiently prepaid postage collected on a newspaper having writing on the wrapper should be entered in the undercharged column of the account of mails received.....W. M. F., C—— F——, Minn.—Where a subscriber exhibits to a postmaster a receipt from another postmaster for quarterly postage and has the original address of the paper charged, he is entitled to receive the paper free of additional postage. .....W. L. B., C—— S——, Pa.—Daily and tri-weekly papers cannot pass free through the mails in the county of publication; it is only weekly papers to which the privilege is allowed. Sec. 156, Reg. 1866.....A. M. G., L——, Mo.—The postage on a regular paper to a subscriber in Ireland is two cents each..... C. B., C——, N. Y.—Quarterly postage on regular papers must be prepaid either at the mailing office or office of delivery; it cannot be paid at an intermediate office.....H. W., B——, Ill.—Postage to Switzerland is as stated in the Foreign Postage Table. One route only is inserted, because it is the only route by which letters are sent to that country, it being quicker and better than any other.....H. D. S., G——, N. Y.—1. Newspaper manuscripts are chargeable with letter postage. 2. Publishers of weekly papers may receive any kind of paper free as an exchange. 3. A subscriber to receive a paper free must reside in the county of publication. Sec. 156, Reg. 1866. C. D. E., N—— G——, N. Y.—A weekly paper sent in one package every three months is chargeable with the regular quarterly postage, the same as if the paper were sent weekly. J. M. C., St, J——, Mich.—1. A subscriber to a regular paper who has paid the quarterly postage cannot remit the same to another office and prepay postage at quarterly rates. A paper must be sent from the office of publication or a news agent to be entitled to the quarterly rates. Sec. 225, Reg. 1866. 2. There is no provision made for a postmaster to obtain credit for the registry fee paid on mutilated currency sent to the Treasurer of the United States. G. O. S., D——, W.—Postage to Canada was reduced on the 1st of April to six cents if prepaid. There is no change in postage in the United States.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, April, 1868.

The advancement made by learned men in spreading intelligence among the people of the earth within the last half century, is almost beyond belief; and yet, this very intelligence has discovered to us through the exhumation of long buried cities, and the explorations of hidden lands, that we are not yet up to the standard of intellectual greatness in many respects, which obtained away back in the young centuries of the world. New developments in different parts of the earth are every day being made, which show beyond doubt the existence in the old, old times of a degree of culture in art and science, which in some respects we have not yet reached, and with rare exceptions it is doubtful if any of the many modern inventions are original with us. Be this as it may, however, we are nevertheless a wonderfully progressive people, and the hatred of ancient customs grows with our growth and strengthens with our strength as much as the love of lucre or the love of women.

But here some in the questions, Are the contempers and condemners of old customs and old fashions any better off? Are we more sturdy in our strength or more steady in our habits? Do we live happier or longer? Are we more pure in our morals and more happy in all our social relations?

We have more spires and towers to point our thoughts skyward; we have more asylums for the sick and afflicted; we have more fountains to supply those who thirst for knowledge; we have more wealth, more power, more commercial and political greatness, and more means and appliances for increasing them; but we have also more crime and craftiness, and less respect for religion and ethics. We fare more sumptuously, dress more extravagantly, spend money more lavishly, and generally enjoy life more liberally; but don't we grow old sooner, lay up in ordinary earlier, and die younger? The styles of dress are more novel and change more frequently, but I don't believe that an abridged coat, which makes a man look like a rearing grasshopper, or a hoop-skirt that makes a lady look like a moving cupola, add one iota to the personal comfort of their wearers. The chemical discoveries which enter into the manufacture of our food, and into the distillation and adulteration of our beverages, save a great deal of time and swell the exchequer of their producers; but don't you believe that the digestive organs of the consumers are fearfully impaired by their use, and their lease of life shortened? Is it any wonder that the worshipers of the "flowing bowl" soon cave in, when the brandy they drink is flavored with strychnine, their whisky with benzine, and their champagne made out of petroleum oil? Yet modern science has reached this advanced stage in the production of luxuries. For my part, I have a strong liking for old fashions and old customs, and believe a return to some of them would be immensely beneficial to the human family at large. The restoration of our colonial blue laws, I concede, would be improper, and the ancient Hindoo rite of burning the widows of recently deceased husbands was righteously abolished; but still, they probably answered the purposes of their day and generation. It is something to be thankful for, that no such custom as the latter has a legal existence here—suicides of revengeful, jealous husbands would be more frequent than the phases of the moon, and holocausts would become as familiar as the smith's forge-fire in every city, town, village, and hamlet in the land. Chicago would have less celebrity, and the law of divorce would have never been paraphrased from the Scriptures. This is merely speculation, however. With the decay and disuse of the usages and modes of our ancestors, goes the annihilation of old landmarks, and to-day, within our borders, there is scarcely a habitation standing in which our grandsires dwelt, or a church wherein they worshiped. Occasionally one comes across an "Ancient," upon whom time and temptation have failed to impress the necessity, or propriety of modern improvement—and whose adherence to the old fashions renders him an object of curiosity, and earns for him the reputation of eccentricity. Such a one I recently saw in the person of a postmaster in the interior of the country, a good many miles removed from the beneficial or baleful influences of railways. For almost half a century he has been a public functionary, and he performs the duties of his office to-day as he did when he first assumed its responsibilities. To be sure, it is a very small affair; but it has capacity enough for the limited primitive settlement in which it is located; and I dare say there is not one of its patrons who desires or would accept of any change that would take the old official out of his time-worn groove.

His isolated office is in the centre of an agricultural district, near the country church of which he is the sexton. None of the inhabitants within his postal purveyance ever visit his office on business. He knows them all—man, woman and child—no stranger has come to dwell within their gates, they are a people unto themselves, and have been since the days of Washington. Some have gone, and some have come—the grave and the cradle have received a like number of tenants, and the population has not perceptibly decreased or augmented one.

Once a week, the weather-worn turret on the queer old church is terribly agitated by the oscillations of the antique bell, whose musical tones break the solemn hush of the Sabbath morning, and the decently-dressed and devout people gather together to worship, and afterward devote themselves to salutations, interrogations, communications, secular and ecclesiastical, which render these hebdomidal meetings peculiarly desirable and felicitous, and once a week, before the hour of devotion has arrived, the white-haired Church and State official enters the church, and going from pew to pew deposits in each one the mail matter which has arrived during the preceding week for the family; and again, after the congregation has separated, and stillness in all its solemnity is itself again, he enters the deserted sanctuary and finds upon the vacated seats letters written during the week, which he quietly picks up, carries to his home, and on the morrow, properly prepares for dispatch to their destination when the inevitable mail day swings round. Could anything be more perfect or satisfactory? Celerity is no object, then, but safety is insured. These people are satisfied with their lettors once a week; others, who have no more at stake, but pretend they have, are not thankful if they get theirs once an hour. The carrier system of the old sexton P. M. is old-fashioned, and not so extensive or diffuse as your modern most excellent institution—but in his limited sphere of usefulness he labors to satisfy the public want, and his little public are well satisfied; nut in the big world of business it is different. Do what you will, strive as you will, to accommodate the public, introduce every modern convenience, increase manual power, simplify routine business—extend the means of delivering and receiving letters—in short, do what you will, you will not be able, like the rural P. M., to satisfy everybody. Grumblers there are, and grumblers there will be. Grumbling is a disease—it is congenital, and cannot be got rid of. In infancy it shows itself in various ways; in manhood it wars with everything, animate and inanimate, private and public; (sometimes even in monthly magazines); in old age it finds fault with what ought to be and what might have been—and, at the last, if such a thing were possible, would cavil over the choice of a coffin, and object to the soil in which it is to be deposited. A plague upon all grumblers. The old-fashioned official is to be commended—I like his style; and the originators and operators of the modern system are to be commended—I like their style; in fact, people must be hard pushed for work who employ themselves in criticising and finding fault with the growing improvements in the administration of the postal service. This crabbedness and proneness to growl when there is no cause, has the effect to make officials fretful and niggard of affability. Young men, particularly, will grow morose and unamiable, and, unless they are strong-minded enough to let the effect and cause die suddenly, their heretofore sweet dispositions will be spoiled, and they will "creep into the jaundice by being peevish." If it is trying to the temper, I admit, to receive abuse instead of thanks for meritorious service; but the offense is soon smothered in contempt for the offending party. Postal officials, however, should rise above these petty annoyances; they should do their duty as they understand it. People are different in their behavior everywhere; and post-office employees have every variety of humanity to deal with. But courtesy and politeness are always the same; and if they fight on that line they will not fail to be fully appreciated.

Now and then you find a chronic bad temper in a post office, which should be weeded out, but possibly a diseased liver is the cause of it; and the poor fellow carries his punishment under his own jacket. Every time I hear a disobliging, ill-natured clerk (I know one) giving snappish answers to proper questions, I make up my mind his liver is affected; and if I succeed in getting a glance at his countenance I can tell exactly the quantity of bile he carries. The first time you have a chance, try the experiment, and you will be surprised how easy it is to diagnose this complaint.

N——, ILLINOIS, April, 1868.

Editor U. S. Mail:

The writer, with (I presume) all other postmasters in small, but fast-growing towns, like our own, is almost daily asked by one or more applicants for a Post Office Order; when the applicant is informed that we cannot supply them, I am met with the exclamation: "Why is it not a Money-Order Office?"

Now, then, I would ask you, Mr. Editor, with all due deference to the powers that be, why is it that our Money-Order Offices are established only in the great cities, or at least, in the larger towns, where, before our Money-Order System became a fixed institution, the residents had every facility that the local banks and the general system of banking could supply, while a rapidly growing town, like this, which has not had, and does not for years to come expect to have, any such privileges accorded to it, and where the Post Office Money-Order System would prove a blessing—would be in all respects a perfect God-send to our numerous farmers, merchants, and business men—is "left out in the cold?"

It would seem as though, in the present arrangement, the residents of such places as ours must do without this manifestly economical mode of transmitting their hard earnings—that they are, in fact, totally ignored, and this at a time when other circumstances unite to force them to submit, not willingly, but perforce uncomplainingly, to the extortions of both public and private corporations, when but half of the sums thus exacted from them would afford a very profitable revenue to our Uncle Samuel.

The registered letters sent from this Office during the last six months were over one hundred in number, while for the first nine days of the present quarter eleven have been forwarded from here; thus you may perceive that under the present not faultless system of registering letters, with its almost total lack of responsibility for losses or delays, that branch (a most important one) of the Post-Office business is happily most satisfactorily increasing.

I do not anticipate that this, my first contribution to your valuable paper (provided you deem it worth the space it may occupy in your columns), will have the desired effect of making this a Money-Order Office. Should there, in your estimation, be the least probability of establishing it as one, you, of course, will inform us, through THE MAIL, of the steps it may be necessary for us to take in the premises, to accomplish so desirable a result. But at all events, we would like to see this question discussed, both pro and con., by some of the able minds (not ala Nasby) now in the employment of the Post Office Department.

Yours, with respect,

D. P. B., P. M.

It is apparent, upon examination of the subject, that in the establishment and extension of a money-order system the post offices of the cities and large towns must first be made money-order offices, because, in the natural course of exchange, the majority of money orders are drawn on centres of trade and commerce in payment of subscriptions to newspapers and periodicals and for small purchases.

It is furthermore evident that such localities contain a larger number of remitters of small sums, for whose convenience the money-order system was instituted, than the lesser towns and villages. Hence it has been the policy of the Department to inaugurate the system at the larger post offices, and to extend it gradually to those of less magnitude. Many small offices, however, cannot be made money-order offices, for the reason that the postage funds coming into the hands of the postmaster do not furnish him with sufficient capital to transact properly the money-order business. It is, in fact, impracticable to make every post office a money-order office; but the Department designs to establish at least one office of that description in each county, and that situated at the county seat is usually selected for the purpose, provided it be large enough, as it is presumed that it will best accommodate the residents of the county who habitually resort most frequently to the county seat.

Whenever the establishment of a money-order office is desired in any "rapidly-growing town," application to that effect should be made to the Superintendent of the Money-Order System, who will, if circumstances seem to make it expedient, take measures to put the system into operation thereat, although there may be at the time several money-order offices in the vicinity. Not unfrequently the postmaster and other residents of a considerable town are averse to the establishment of the money-order system at their post office, alleging that they prefer for the transmission of small sums the registry system, to which they have been long accustomed.

Six Cent Stamps.

Editor U. S. Mail: The increasing business between the United States and Canada requires a postage stamp for the half ounce letter. The Canadian Government has promptly had engraved and distributed a postage stamp of the denomination recently prescribed as the postage to or from the United States, viz.: six cents, to which the postage is now wisely reduced.

May it not be hoped that our Post Office Department will soon provide our people with a stamp of similar denomination? The same stamp would suit for our own letters of one ounce weight (or double weight, so called).

BANKER.

AN ENGLISHMAN lately called at one of the Paris post offices to inquire how much it would cost to send him home to England by mail. He was weighed, and the calculation was 8,648 francs. The sum was counted out, but the clerks objected to sending this new species of parcel, and the police being called, the gentleman was taken to his hotel as insane.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, MAY, 1868.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 92, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

[OFFICIAL.]

Reduction of Postage to Norway, via Germany.

We are requested to state that the postage on letters, newspapers, prints and other postal packets, forwarded to Norway, via the North German Union, has been reduced, as follows

I. BY DIRECT STEAMERS TO BREMEN OR HAMBURG.

Letters.—16 cents if prepaid or 18 cents if unpaid, per single rate of ½ oz., or under.

Newspapers.—(Not over 4 oz. in weight) 8 cents each, prepayment required.

Book Packets, Prints, Patterns or Samples.—11 cents per 4 oz. or fraction thereof, prepayment required.

II. BY CLOSED MAIL TO GERMANY, VIA ENGLAND.

Letters.—21 cents if prepaid, or 23 cents if unpaid, per single rate of ½ oz., or under.

Newspapers.—(Not over 4 oz. in weight) 9 cents each, prepayment required.

Book Packets, Prints, Patterns or Samples.—13 cents per 4 oz. or fraction thereof, prepayment required.

[Small newspapers (under 2 oz.), 6 cents each by direct mail, and 7 cents each by closed mail, via England.]

Postmasters will levy the above rates of postage; which are the same as the rates to Sweden, via North German Union Mail.

MAIL COMMUNICATIONS TO MAURITIUS, CAPE OF GOOD HOPE AND NATAL, VIA ENGLAND.

The British Post Office has given notice that a communication by British Packet no longer exists between Great Britain and Mauritius, nr between Mauritius and the Cape of Good Hope or Natal.

Correspondence from the United States for Mauritius, forwarded by British mail will therefore be dispatched from England, in future, wholly by means of the French Mail Packets on the line between Suez and Mauritius; while correspondence for the Cape of Good Hope and Natal will be dispatched from England by the British Packets leaving Devonport on the 10th and Southampton on the 25th of each month.

The single rate of letter postage (½ oz.) is as follows

To Mauritius, British Mail via Marseilles, 30 cents.
To Cape of Good Hope or Natal, via England, 34 cents, prepayment required

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, April, 1868.

SIR: Referring to your letter of the 22d of January last, I have to inform you that the British Office reports that in lieu of the mail to Malta via Marseilles, discontinued on the 26th of February last, a mail will, in future, be made up at the London office for Malta, on the evening of every Monday, and a supplementary mail on the morning of every Tuesday, which will be forwarded through France and Italy in Messina, for transmission by the Italian packet, leaving Messina for Malta every Sunday; and that the same rate of postage will be chargable upon letters sent by this route that has hitherto been charged on letters forwarded via Marseilles. The rate, therefore, on letters addressed to Malta from the United States, by this route, will be twenty-two cents per each quarter ounce. On newspapers, however, the charge will be eight cents per each four ounces or fraction thereof, and on book-packets fourteen cents, and on patterns or samples sixteen cents per each weight of four ounces or under. Prepayment of postage is required, both on letters and printed matter. Please make the necessary correction in the forthcoming issue of THE MAIL.

The British Office further reports, that although registered letters for the Phillippine Islands are forwarded from Great Britain to Hong Kong, and that office obtains an acknowledgment of their receipt at Manila, there is no arrangement with the Philippine Islands to continue the registration; and that, under the circumstances, the British Post Department cannot undertake to receive, as registered to destination, letters sent via the United Kingdom from the United States to the Philippine Islands.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Chief Clerk.

Soldiers' Medals, Certificates, &c.

P. O. DEPARTMENT, APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, April 21, 1868.

By a joint Resolution of Congress (No. 13), approved March 2, 1868, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks, or other testimonials awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States or Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

This being the law, Postmasters are expected to conform thereto, by passing such matter free of postage, when properly indorsed and certified by the respective Adjutants General.

The contents of the packages should be distinctly stated by naming the Medal, or the character of the Certificate, as the case may be.

ST. JOHN B. L. SKINNER,
First Asst. Postmaster General.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
FINANCE OFFICE, April 30, 1868.

SIR—By an Act of Congress, approved March 9, 1868, it is required that "all letters and documents to and from the Congressional Printer, relating to the duties and business of his office, shall be transmitted by mail free of postage, under such regulations as may be established by the Postmaster General."

Be pleased to publish this fact in the U. S. MAIL for the information of postmasters.

Very respectfully,
A. N. ZEVELY,
Third Asst. P. M. General.

JAMES GAYLER, ESQ.,
Special Agent P. O. Dept., and Editor U. S. Mail.

A Text for a Post-Office Sermon.

Some months since the attention of the Post-Office Department was called to a series of losses of registered and unregistered letters to and from post offices on two stage routes in one of the Northern States, and a special agent was instructed to investigate the matter, and, if possible, to detect the depredator. It did not take long to discover that the point at which the irregularities occurred was a post office which was the common terminus of both the stage routes, and through which all the letters to and from the offices on the routes passed on the way to and from the railroad. At this post office the postmaster employed his brother and son as assistant and clerk, all three bearing excellent reputations for integrity. Their relationship was somewhat of an embarrassment to the operations of the agent, but he nevertheless found means to thoroughly test their honesty, and the result was a confirmation of the good report which had been obtained concerning them. The losses ceased for a time, only to be renewed with increased frequency. Other tests were applied, but with the same results. The agent finally sought a private interview with the postmaster, and soon succeeded in convincing him that the thefts must have been committed within the walls of his office. He felt certain, however (as did the agent), that neither the brother nor the son was the offender. The question then naturally followed: "Do you allow outsiders to have access to your mail matter?"

"No, sir; that is, no one but Mr. X."

"And who is Mr. X?"

"Oh, he's the senior partner of the firm of X. and Y., just round the corner, in the dry-goods business."

"Why do you allow him this privilege? You are, of course, aware that is contrary to both law and regulations."

"Yes, I know it; but, bless you, he's above all suspicion—a most honorable business man, does a thriving trade, and is trusted by all who know him. He only comes in occasionally and helps sort the stage mail, by which he receives a good many letters."

"Oh, that's all?"

"That's all. I'd as soon think of stealing myself as of suspecting him; but I'll keep even him out in future."

"No, don't interfere with him at present; you might, perhaps, offend him."

Two days afterward the immaculate Mr. X. was detected in the act of leaving the post office with letters in his pocket which he had abstracted from a mail pouch. He was arrested, made no attempt to deny his guilt, and is now awaiting trial for the offence. The losses on the stage routes have ceased.

Here was a case in which, if a postmaster were ever excusable for allowing an "outsider" to have access to, or to handle, mail matter within a post office, some excuse might be found. But the fact is, that there is no excuse for such a violation of duty; and if there is within our circle of readers a postmaster who thinks he is justified in allowing a merchant, a bank president or a clergyman to act as his volunteer assistant, we beg him to take the above facts for a text, and preach a sermon to himself thereon.

Sundry Post-Office Matters.

"What shall we do with mail matter received from other offices in a wet or damaged condition, as we are not allowed, under any circumstances, to detain it?" is the purport of a question asked us. Generally speaking, a postmaster is not allowed to detain mail matter; but we think that when it arrives at an office in a condition unfit to be forwarded it should be detained long enough to be put in a proper condition; whether this includes the refastening of stamps that have fallen off, or securing those likely to do so, depends somewhat on the postmaster's courtesy and the time needed. There are many slight courtesies which a postmaster can perform which would save trouble and annoyance and expense to those receiving letters; and though these courtesies may never be rewarded, appreciated, or even known, they are none the less the unprescribed duties of a postmaster, and they may prove, in Scriptural language, "bread cast upon the waters." Among these unprescribed duties is that of refastening stamps, where it can be done without interfering with the prescribed duties of the office....."What is the use of the unpaid letter bill, when we are not allowed to send letters unpaid?" is a seemingly pertinent question. The unpaid post bill is used, however, whenever there are any charges to be collected on a letter. Suppose a letter chargeable with more than one rate is paid one rate, it must be forwarded, charged with the balance due and accompanied with a post bill, if mailed direct. Hence the use for the unpaid post bill.....And again, "What right has the Treasury Department to make a discount on mutilated currency?" We presume the rule was made to guard against fraud; but whatever may be the reason, it need not subject a postmaster who takes such currency to any loss, for he is not obliged to receive currency for more than its value. A valuable circular with diagrams is furnished by the Treasury Department, which enables every one to know exactly what a piece of mutilated currency is worth. The discount of which you complain was made because one or more of the pieces was not of the full value. No explanation was given, because none was needed.....Quite a lengthy complaint comes to us from an assistant postmaster who has failed to receive a book sent to him by mail. We admit it is vexatious not to receive an expected book, but then books by mail are liable to so many accidents, so frequent among which is misdirections, that we are unwilling to join in a sweeping attack on the honesty or carefulness of postmasters.....Another inquiry for the New Post-office Directory, and we reply, the Department edition was published last month; an edition for general use will be published in this city, next month, by J. Disturnell. See his advertisement on the third page.

ENCOURAGE REGISTRATION.—The money-order system and the present improved system of registration have greatly reduced the number of complaints of losses through the mails; but there is still entirely too much valuable matter sent in unregistered letters. For the transmission of small sums of money the money order system offers, of course, the best and safest method. But at offices to which the system has not yet extended, the postmaster should not knowingly allow a citizen to post a letter containing valuables (whether money, deeds, bonds, or other papers of importance), without urging on the sender the advantage offered by registration. The expenditure of twenty cents may prevent the loss, through misdelivery or otherwise, of thousands of dollars. At money-order offices the registration of valuables (other than money) should also be encouraged.

UNPAID AND SHORT-PAID PRINTED MATTER.—In the instructions printed with the List of Post Offices recently issued by the Department (page 8), the following paragraph appears:

☞ "All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at double the prepaid rates."

We are authorized by the Department to state that the word "double" in the above paragraph was erroneously inserted, and that postmasters should continue to be governed in this matter by the instructions contained in Section 150, Regulations of 1866, which provide for the collection of the deficient postage on the delivery of unpaid or short paid matter at the (single) prepaid rates only.

"PRIVATE ENTERPRISE."—One of the most prominent daily papers in New York (which at irregular intervals emits a shriek for the abolition of the Government Post Office, and the substitution therefor of one conducted as a "private enterprise"), lately sent to the Post Office a sack of newspapers intended for Indianapolis, Indiana, and labeled EN'NAPOLIS.

It is to be hoped that when an indignant people wrest from the Government the control of their postal affairs, they will be careful as to whose "private enterprise" they entrust it.

A TELEGRAM from Pesth, Hungary, published in the Vienna papers, says, that hardly had the night train of March 17th entered the station of Szegedin and the travelers alighted, when all the gas lamps were suddenly extinguished; the post-office agents were then seized, bound and gagged, and all the letters, the value of which has not yet been ascertained, carried off. The authors of this audacious act disappeared without leaving the slightest trace.

Prepayment of Foreign Letters.

Prepayment of letters directed to foreign countries, to which prepayment is optional, should be made in full or not at all. A surprisingly large number of such letters reach the New York office short paid. This is often the result of carelessness or ignorance on the part of the sender; but it is sometimes due to the same faults in the postmaster at the mailing office, some of whom labor under the delusion that a letter directed to a foreign country, if the writer elects to send it unpaid, still requires a three-cent stamp to prepay it from the interior to New York. This is not the case. The postage rates on letters to trans-Atlantic countries, noted in the Table, prepay letters from any part of the United States; and if prepayment is optional, no charge is made if the letters are unpaid until they reach the office of delivery.

POSTAGE TO CANADA.—It is evident, from the number of letters directed to Canada, which continue to pass through the mails with ten cent stamps affixed in prepayment of the postage, that a large proportion of the public, and probably many postmasters, are not yet aware that on the first of April last the postage on prepaid letters between the United States and the Dominion of Canada was reduced to six cents per half ounce. Such is the fact, however. Unpaid letters from and to Canada are chargeable with postage, at the office of delivery, at the rate of ten cents per half ounce. The "Dominion of Canada" includes the Canadas (East and West), Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. To Newfoundland and Prince Edward's Island, the postage remains at ten cents.

A LETTER postmarked eleven years ago, and addressed to Miss Van Hoosen, Shodack, was found, recently, by a mail agent on the Hudson River Railroad. It had slipped into the false bottom of the distribution table, which, with the car, had been laid up for several years. The owner received the letter. We noted a somewhat similar case as having occurred on the Long Island Railroad some time since. Route agents would do well to look out for cracks, crannies and crevices in their cars.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakiá, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a correspondag amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. To or FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &c., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books attached or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibrailá, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.
2. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
3. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)
4. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 onnces in weight, 8 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to prtated matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped to covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an y word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the prtated title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular pnblications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringament of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of tatrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an tatrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 onnces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and nnmbem, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment to money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abollshed.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

[All printed matter (except single copies of newspapers, magazines, and periodicals sent to regular subscribers from publishers) intended to go by mail westward from the western boundary of Kansas, or eastward from the eastern boundary of California, must be prepaid by stamps at letter postage rates. Sec. 259, P. O. Laws, Edition of 1866.]

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

CIRCULARS, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

ON MISCELLANEOUS MAILABLE MATTER (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wroppers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over four oz. in weight, 2 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 4 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 6 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 8 cts.

By a recent order of the Postmaster General, the fifth subdivision of the 42d instruction of the Post Office Law, approved March 3, 1863, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows: "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two ounces."

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds, roots, cuttings or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Weekly newspapem and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from countries bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞ All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short-paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly prepayment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribem. No such paper should be delivered, unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office, or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so prepaid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail, they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removed from office for neglect.

Every postmaster will be careful never to send a registered letter "direct," when there is a distributing post office between his office and the office to which the letter is directed. He must inclose it, with the registered letter bill, in a "Registered Package Envelope," directed to the postmaster at the first distributing post office on the route, and also send the Return Registered Letter Bill in a common envelope to the same postmaster by same mail—just the same as if the letter were for delivery at the distributing post office.

Post Office Blanks.

DISTRICT No. 1—Supplies blanks for the District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakotah, Kansas, Nebraska, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. Postmasters in either of these States, wanting blanks of any kind should address "First Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, District of Columbia."

DISTRICT No. 2—Supplies blanks for the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, California and Oregon, Washington Territory and Nevada. Postmasters in either of these States or Territories, wanting blanks, should address "Blank Agent, New York, N. Y."

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Applications for blank registem of arrival and departnre of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special lustructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wmpping paper and twtne, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Marking Stamps.

Post Offices, the gross receipts of which are over $1,000 per annum, will be furnished with circular marking and mting stamps of class No. 1; less than $1,000 and over $500, with stamps of Class No. 2; less than $500 and not less than $50, with circular marking stamps of class No. 3, and rating stamps of wood, on application to the Appotatment Office.

Postmastem at offices, the gross receipts of which are less than $50 per annum, if they use rating stamps, must obtain the same at their own expense.

Letter balances, upon the like application, are furnished to offices which collect in postages $75 a year.

a.—When the letter a is prefixed, the foreign postage (which in each case is 13 cents) is increased by an additional rate for every 7½ grammes (¼ oz.) or fraction thereof. The United States inland and Atlantic sea postage (which in each case is 10 cents the single rate) is increased by an additional rate for every 15 grammes (½ oz.) or fraction thereof.

b.—Where the letter b is prefixed, an additional rate is to be added to the foreign portion of the postage for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the newspaper exceeds 4 ounces in weight. The foreign postage, to each case, is ascertained by deducting from the amount set down the sum of 3 cents, which is the United States portion of the postage on a single newspaper, regardless of weight. In all other cases, the postage is for each newspaper without regard to its weight,

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. VIII., NO. 9. NEW YORK, JUNE, 1868. WHOLE NO. 93.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Salary.—W. J. H., C——, Ala.—The salary of an office is adjusted on a basis fixed by law; but if the business of your office has greatly increased since your salary was adjusted, the Postmaster General will readjust on application to him.

Custody of Mails by Mail Carriers.—J. McP., H——, Cal.—There are undoubtedly cases where a mail carrier must be allowed to have charge of the mails over night; but according to section 106, Regulations of 1866, "When the mail stops over night where there is a Post Office, it must be kept in the office."

Wrapping Letters.—H. H. T., W——, O.—We suppose that section 88 of the Regulations refers to single letters as well as to several; we understand, where there is only one letter for an office, that letter forms a package for that office as much as though there were twenty or more.

Postmaster's Wife acting as Assistant.—N. S. M., L—— L——, La.—No person not sworn in should be allowed to handle mail matter, not even the wife of a person who is sworn in. Sees. 24 and 71, Reg. 1866.

Letters Addressed to the Popular Name of a Place.—R. J. K., V——, Pa.—Letters addressed to V—— City, the popular name of a place with another Post Office name, and sent to V——, should be forwarded to the former place; V—— City, as missent, unless certainly intended for some person at V——. In case of a registered letter, it would be as well to inquire of the Postmaster at V—— City if a person with that address received letters at his office.

Keeping Office Open.—J. U. F., W—— H——, O.—A Post Office is to be kept open during the usual business hours of the place. Sec. 27, Reg. 1866.

Box Rents.—E. P. C., P——, O., and others.—Box rent must be accounted for to the Department. Chap. 42, Reg. 1866.

Withdrawing a Letter Deposited by a Minor.—S. L. B., B—— G——, O.—Where minor children are dependent upon their parents for support, the parents should control their correspondence. See article on this subject in THE MAIL for February last.

Opening Packages of Letters passing through an Office, &c.—R. K. S., Mt. C——, Ill.—1. A Postmaster must not suffer any package to be opened that is not addressed to his office. Sec. 71, Reg. 1866. 2. News agents may pay the postage on their packages of newspapers and periodicals, as received, at the same rate that actual subscribers thereto pay quarterly in advance. Sec. 202, Reg. 1866. We think this is clear, and the calculation for the postage is easily made. 3. Postage on photograph albums is at book rates, if not in wrappers sealed against examination.

Fictitious Addresses.—G. W. T., S——, N. H.—1. Letters—or other drop or mail, with fictitious addresses are not deliverable. Sec. 60, Reg. 1866. 2. If the widow of a deceased person is his legal representative, letters addressed to him should be forwarded to her.

Stopping Unmailable Letters in Transit.—D. O. C., W——, N. C.—A Postmaster at an intermediate office, unless it is a distributing office, has no right to stop an unmailable letter. It should go forward to the office of destination, and the deficient postage collected there, according to section 150, Reg. 1866. If a distributing office, the letter should be rated and billed to destination.

Names on Papers to Clubs.—J. G., W—— F——, Pa.—Postmasters are required to put the names on papers coming in clubs. Sec. 211, Reg. 1866.

Postmasters holding Office of Tax Collector.—C. O. H., F——, Ga.—There is nothing in the postal laws forbidding a Postmaster to hold the office of tax collector, unless sections 10 and 13, Regulations of 1866, should indirectly do so.

Books with Torn Wrappers.—B. P. R., S—— P——, Iowa.—Books arriving at an office with the wrappers so torn that the name of the persons for whom they are intended cannot be known, should be sent to the Dead Letter Office, unless, as must be the case in many offices, the ownership could be decided. Persons expecting books would generally inquire for them, and if there were doubts as to their claims, a letter to the publisher would settle the matter. This is one of the cases where a Postmaster is called on to use judgment and common sense.

Marking Stamps.—H. L. C, C——, Ill.—We have no means of knowing why your application for marking and rating stamps has not received attention. We can only advise you to keep trying, or else purchase for yourself; but in the latter case the Department will not allow you for the expense.

Money Orders.—W. W. M., P—— C——, Utah.—Money orders cannot be made payable at offices in foreign countries..... A. M. W., D——, Va.—If by mistake a money order is made payable to C, instead of to B, to pay a debt due B, and B on receiving the order acknowledges it and gives it to C to draw the money, he does so at his own risk; the Department and the Postmasters are clear of all responsibility; B. must look to other sources to enforce payment of the money to him by C.

Registration.—W. L. D., R——, N. Y.—The registration fee on packages of mutilated currency to the Treasurer of the U. S. must be paid by postmasters as well as others..... D. M. McA., S—— L—— C——, Utah.—Official letters from one P. M. to another can be registered free..... G. P. M., L——, Pa.—If it is clear that the registration fee was only partly prepaid, the balance should be collected on delivery..... R. L., E——, Iowa.—Registered letters unclaimed for a month after being advertised, should be sent to the Dead Letter Office. Sec. 373, Reg. 1866..... G. B. E., G——, Ky.—It is not necessary that registered letters and registered package envelopes should bear the same numbers, a dozen or more letters bearing as many different numbers may be inclosed in one package envelope, which must bear only its proper consecutive number..... A. B., P——, Wis.—Blank receipts for registered package envelopes are furnished by the Blank Agents. 2. Postmasters are not obliged to receive papers published in the same town for distribution; See editorial..... W. D., S——, V——, Pa.—1. Registered letters must be sent to the first D. P. O. on the route. Sec. 6, Registration Regulations. 2. An office is to be kept open during the usual business hours of the place.

Mutilated Currency.—C. W. N. S., W——, Ind.—Postmasters are required to take Mutilated Currency, under certain regulations, which can be procured of the Third Assistant P. M. General.

Office Expenses.—E. U. P., W—— U——, Iowa.—To obtain allowance for a night clerk, you must address the Appointment Office. Whether it will be granted or not depends on circumstances..... G. M. E., D——, Ill.—Envelopes are not allowed to offices of the fifth class.

Deficient Receipts.—H. W., W—— I——, W. Va.—Where the receipts of an office are not sufficient to pay the salary, the balance will be paid by a special draft of the Postmaster General.

Franking.—We have so many inquiries on this subject that we cannot reply to each; we must refer to Chapter 15, Regulations of 1866. To the persons and officers there named, and the officers of the Internal Revenue Department, mentioned in THE MAIL for September last, must be added the Commissioner of Education, Washington, D. C. Also the Adjutants General of the several States or Territories have the right to frank medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials which may be awarded by the Legislatures of several States or Territories to the soldiers thereof, and "all letters and documents to and from the Congressional Printer, relating to the duties and business of his office, shall be transmitted by mail free of postage."

Postage.—J. A. F., H——, Mass.—Sole leather tops should be charged with letter postage. They would be classed under Section 245, Laws of 1866..... J. M., M—— M——, Pa.—Medicines should be charged at letter rates, but packages containing liquids should be excluded from the mails. Section 38, Regulations, 1866..... J. C. A. W., S——, Utah.—The quarterly postage on semi-monthly papers is six cents. Consult thoroughly Sections 201 and 202, Regulations, 1866..... A. C., B—— V——, Pa.—Daily papers are subject to postage, even if delivered in the county of publication; if delivered through the post office in the place of publication they are chargeable with postage at the rate of one cent for each four ounces, to be prepaid by stamps. See editorial in this number on "Delivery of Local Newspapers, &c."..... H. A. B., B——, O.—Postage should be collected on delivery on fashion plates, or any other mail matter, stamped "paid" with the private stamp of the sender, and on which there is no other evidence that the postage has been paid..... H. C. W., F—— B——, Ind.—The law for the charge of one cent on drop letters where there is not a free delivery can be found in Section 261, Law of 1866..... A. McL., A——, O.—The postage on papers to England is, as stated in THE MAIL, on each paper. The postage on papers from England is fixed by that country..... W. C., F——, Ill.—Postage on manuscript for newspapers should be charged at letter rates..... A. E. R., G——, N. Y.—A letter for Canada left on a post-office counter, with only three cents to prepay postage, should be sent as an unpaid letter. The three cents should be returned to the person who left the letter, if possible..... J. B., G——, Me.—We cannot tell on simple inquiry why postage is charged on a letter delivered in Italy which purports to be prepaid. We need a full knowledge of the circumstances, and probably an inspection of the envelope itself..... C. H., U——, N. Y.—Postage is not to be collected on prepaid papers from Italy. As unpaid papers are not sent, the only case where postage can be chargeable is where the prepayment is partial, when the balance is to be collected on delivery, and a fine in addition. See note l, Table of Foreign Postages, in UNITED STATES MAIL..... A. B. B., J—— C——, Kan.—The notice you send is a circular, and can be sent at circular rates.

COMMUNICATIONS.

P. O. INNUBIBUS.
May, 1868.

Editor U. S. MAIL:

A brother post-official, in the course of a mutual interchange of ideas on post-office matters, has suggested to me that I take advantage of my relation to the U. S. MAIL, as correspondent, to call the attention of postmasters to a negligence, or carelessness, quite common, in not erasing the original addresses when mailing Request Letters to the writers. He showed me a letter he had lately received covering a Request Letter returned to his office. The letter stated that the Request Letter had been received at the office to which originally directed no less than five times; and, at last, to insure its reception at the original mailing office, it was inclosed in a letter addressed to the postmaster. The whole difficulty lay in the original address not having been properly erased. An attempt at erasure had, indeed, been made, by drawing a lead pencil lightly through the name of the post office; the letter had then evidently been thrown each time loosely in the mail pouch, and each time returned by the route agent, its presence there, no doubt, being considered evidence of carelessness on the part of the postmasters.

Postmasters should be careful when returning a Request Letter, to so completely deface the original address (person's name, post office, and State), that it cannot any longer be considered the proper address of the letter. In addition to this, I think it would be a good plan if they would draw with a pen an index, or, commonly speaking, a fist, pointing to the request to return. But I would go further The time is not far distant when Request Envelopes will be in general use among business men—the rule, and not the exception—it would be a convenience now, and a necessity then, if the Department would establish a rule in this matter, and furnish all post offices with a stamp of uniform device, which should designate at once that a letter was being returned to the writer. I have often thought that a large, bold R to be impressed across the original address would be a good mark. That some such mark will, as I have hinted, become a necessity, I am positive.

I regard the introduction of Request Envelopes as a great advance in postal science, and am tempted to "spread myself" on the subject; but as it is a "fixed fact," it hardly comes within the limit of the design of my letters, so I forbear. NICOTINUS.

POST OFFICE, P——, IND.

Editor U. S. MAIL:

In the recent May number of THE MAIL, among "answers to correspondents," reference is made to short paid circulars deposited for mailing, and how to dispose of them. The correspondent probably is one who carefully examines printed matter according to Section 212, Regulations of 1866. The neglect in observing this section no doubt involves a loss to the Department each year of thousands of dollars. It is a fair question, can a Postmaster properly rate a package with postage without knowing its contents? A business firm will send at one time hundreds or thousands of circulars, all similar. How easy for the Postmaster where deposited, to make proper examination of one or more to know their contents, and when they are held for postage, could, in most cases, notify the sender of the fact. If his mails them without this examination and they contain information in writing other than the address, the Postmaster at the office of destination to properly comply with the law, must collect the balance of postage, probably one cent on each. Recently from a "first-class" office we received a lot of unsealed written letters, each paid two cents. The statement by the party depositing that they are circulars, is not sufficient to pass them as such. If it be urged that this examination cannot be made at the start, for want of time, how can it be better done at the office of destination where they should be delivered promptly after arrival, and when if postage is due on them they are often refused. That justice be done the Department, and time and good humor saved, we urge examination before mailing.

Truly yours,
J. H. F., Postmaster.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, }
May, 1868. }

Rain, rain, rain, everywhere and every day—East, West, North and South. The month of flowers has been the month of showers, and haters of the beauties of Nature—and there are such—have had a feast of damaging, misery-making weather. The bright sun and the silvery moon have evidently been inundated, and when a little break in the lazy, spongy cloud-drifts shows the face of either, it looks so dingy and cheerless, so uninviting and invalidish, that the little elasticity of feeling left in the composition of mortality loses its tension, and surrenders unconditionally to the fates the small fragment of elan and spirit which the fogs and floods have spared. Some few spring flowers have bravely dared to open their many-hued lips, but they exhale no odors—their fragrance has been soaked out. The earth begins to have a healthy green look, and the half-developed buds and leaves on the trees show that Nature is on hand with her ornaments if Jupiter Pluvius would only dry up for a while; but the prospect is not at all favorable, and it looks as if it might rain forty days and forty nights yet without the least exertion. If he keeps these ceaseless celestial pumps at work much longer, the astral pathway athwart the vaulted blue will lose its milky hue; for there cannot be any doubt but this wet season pervades the entire solar system, and the corporation of stars which forms this via lactea will lose its identity, and modern astronomy will have to look about for a new route into undiscovered planetary territory. But it is to be hoped the skyey reservoirs are about exhausted. People you meet everywhere look blue and atrabilious. There is no comfort anywhere. Traveling in steam cars or steamboats is eminently monotonous and tiresome; no delightful views from car windows, no invigorating deck promenades and prospects; one might as well be in one's own attic, as far as pleasure is concerned; equestrian and pedestrian exercises are out of the question, and out-door amusements of all kinds have come to a stand-still. Horse-racing, trap-shooting and base-ball playing, the three absorbing institutions of fast-crabdom, are almost overwhelmed with tribulation, and their worshipers are indescribably nervous, peevish and gloomy. The base-ballists, however, are evidently hurt the worst. Several grand tournaments, which have required months of preparation to arrange and perfect, were to come off in May; but alas! alas! the thirsty earth has been overdosed with a supply of fluid, and ball grounds are more like vast mortar beds than anything else, and base-ball and beds of mortar are incompatible. I feel a little sorry myself that it has resulted so, for several of my young post-office friends who have invested their surplus funds in new outfits of clothes and clubs are so depressed and vexed at the disappointment, that they are entirely unfit to attend to their official labors, and magnanimously allow some of their fellow-clerks to do double duty. But while I sympathize with these young men in their stunning disappointment, I am not entirely convinced that it is not better for them. The sedentary employment in which they are engaged has a softening and relaxing influence upon their frames, and the severe exercise of ball playing, continued during a period of several hours for days together, is so exhaustive of muscular and nervous power that a temporary or prolonged prostration of the nervous system is inevitable, and then, by way of recuperation, they indulge freely in exhilarating stimulants and frightful luncheons; colds and indigestion follow; brain and stomach are completely disorganized, and in many cases the seeds of a fatal disease are planted, which, sooner or later, culminates in the transfer of its worn-down victim to the dust from whence he came. If I were permitted to advise these juniors, I would urge them to seek some other out-door recreation; but I don't suppose it would avail anything. I don't believe the advice of Solomon, with all his experience and all his wisdom, stopped any one from doing just as he did; and as I am a long way from Solomon, I will not undertake the thankless job. Now, there is a large class of people (one of whom am not I) who are always ready to give advice, wholesome or whimsical, who feel fearfully insulted or disgusted if the same commodity is tendered to them; they are always foremost in getting up a joke at the expense of others, but anything like a retort sets them ablaze with indignation; they fully justify themselves in firing at the follies and incongruities of their neighbors, but they bellow terribly at the recoil upon themselves of the overloaded weapon which they use in their offensive pastime. Good advice, however, should not be disregarded, though it cuts to the quick, nor should a good jest lose its sanction. The rose smells none the less sweet, though somebody's fingers are pricked in plucking it.

There is another and a larger class (count me out again), who never give advice when it is needed, never ask it when it might be beneficial, nor profit by it when it is voluntarily proffered, though it be of palpable and positive advantage. Selfish and self-reliant, they go about, caring for nobody and nobody caring for them, and look at the world with the same shallow regard as they bestow upon a panorama or a balloon ascension from a paid standpoint, success or disaster exciting no other emotion than that of disappointment at not getting their money's worth. There is no cure for such people; for it is not the fault of education, but original conformation. Culture and training will no more change such natures than will the same appliances change a pepper-pod to a pine-apple. Education is a great human elevator, and its influence can overcome extraordinary mental and moral deficiencies; but it cannot alter the shape of a bad head, nor enlarge the size of a dwarfed heart. Their owners should be looked upon, however, as charitably as possible, for they were born so. Now, I always am glad to receive advice, and it pleases me much to impart it, and if what I offer is received in the sincerity of spirit with which it is tendered, I feel amply rewarded. Very few of this unhappy class are found among officials, so far as I know—none at all, I hope, in post-offices; and here let me take the opportunity of acknowledging that the statement made in one of my late letters, that I could learn of not very few post-office clerks who were members of the Young Men's Christian Association, should be materially modified. Through letters and other sources, I have received reliable information from various localities convincing me that very many members of this praiseworthy organization can be found in the mail service of the country, and I hope none of them will weary in well doing.

Happy is he who knows his follies in his youth.

To such hands the text furnished by the editor in the last number of THE MAIL may be safely committed for elaboration, explanation and dissemination. Having a reverential feeling for the sanctity of their official obligations, they do not forswear themselves by permitting unsworn and unauthorized persons to have access to their own or any other person's mail matter inside the office. They have too much good sense and too much respect for private and official reputation to turn post offices into curiosity shops; and too much dignity of character to tolerate that kind of familiarity which, on the least check or curb, folds its arms, shakes its head and says: "Well, well, we know;" or, "We could, and if we would;" or, "If we list to speak;" or, "There be, and if they might," etc. On the other hand, through the intermeddling and itching inquisitiveness of privileged characters, many a postmaster and many a clerk are charged with breaches of confidence and dishonest practices of which they are absolutely guiltless, and the public mind is quietly prepared to believe anything to their detriment.

The incident mentioned in your article resulted in the detection of a member of the FREE LIST, whose social and commercial standing, only for the ocular proof, was strong enough to ward off suspicion from himself, though the P. M. and his whole official family should have innocently suffered for crimes committed within that establishment. It was by the merest chance, as I learn, that this very respectable rascal was caught in flagrante delicto, else he might have gone on in his villainous career, covertly destroying the good names and fame of all connected with the locality of his nefarious work, merely because he was "Mr. X, the senior partner of X & Y, round the corner, a most honorable business man, doing a thriving business and trusted by everybody." Apart, however, from the danger which impends from this disobedience of orders and disregard of a solemn oath—how would the principle of reciprocity work? A postmaster permits a banker, a merchant, a clergyman, or a lawyer to have full, free swing of his office, come when they please, go when they please, inspect what they please, and, for all he knows, take what they please. Now, reverse the thing, and let the postal official go behind the banker's counter and attempt to thumb his bills or clink his coin—let him go behind the merchant's counter and pull his wares from the shelves—let him go to the clergyman's library and paw over his well-bound books and original or borrowed sermons—let him go into the lawyer's office and undertake to look over his papers, his pleadings, his affidavits writing for prepared witnesses to sign, his schedules of costs incurred in looking after the vanishing estates of widows and orphans, and other mysterious writings done up in bundles and tied with tape, and he would no doubt be peremptorily ordered to leave; and if there was strength enough to propel a well-filled boot, the broad disk under his coat tails would be very apt to feel its force if he failed to "move on" promptly, or some other equally honor-touching result would follow. This is putting it a little too strong, perhaps, but it is merely hypothetical and intended to show the difference between passive and active treatment for unpardonable impertinence. No such thing is likely to occur, but if I were an official I would summarily cut off privilegee that involve so much risk, and which, under no circumstances, would confer upon me the immunity to make myself "at home" in other establishments.

Fractional Currency Again—Information Wanted

If I understand the instructions in THE MAIL of last August, every postmaster is required to receive, whenever offered in payment for stamps and stamped envelopes, fractional currency to any amount not exceeding $5, and he cannot refuse any such fractional currency when offered, no matter how much torn, worn, abraded, defaced, ragged or what not, provided not more than one-tenth part of such fractional piece is missing, and provided always that the piece is satisfactorily genuine. The postmaster may, and for his own safety when there is any doubt about the genuineness of a piece or of pieces, he should require the person offering such currency to assort the pieces properly, and tie in a paper strap on each different denomination, giving number of pieces, date, and name of person offering. But he is never at liberty to refuse the fractional currency offered one or more pieces (the amount not exceeding $5), because of the deplorably ugly condition, if the pieces are satisfactorily genuine.

The "rules" of the Treasury Department, given in connection, simply inform the postmaster how he is to dispose of such defaced fractional currency as is in too bad a condition to put again into circulation.

Do I understand the matter right?

OUTSIDER.

Our correspondent is correct. Postmasters are required to take "fractional notes of which not more than one-tenth is missing, if clearly genuine." If not clearly genuine they may take it, making each arrangement, as they please, to enable them to return it to the person from whom it was received.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, JUNE, 1868.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendotion:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusioo of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL," (see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866), and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for aoother year, when dne, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 93, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

[OFFICIAL.]

Postage to Denmark, via North German Union.

We are requested to state that notice has been given by the North German Office, that the rates of postage between the United States and Denmark, via Germany, will in future be as follows:

BY DIRECT STEAMER TO BREMEN OR HAMBURG.

Letters—13 cents per half ounce, if prepaid; 16 cents per half ounce, if nnpaid.

Book Packets, Prints, Patterns and Samples.—10 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof—pre-payment required.

BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND.

Letters,—18 cents per half ounce, if prepaid; 9t cents per half ounce, if unpaid.

Book Packets, Prints, Patterns and Samples—13 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof—pre-payment required.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, May 26, 1868.

SIR—In accordance with information received from the General Post Department of the North German Union, the rates of postage chargeable upon the correspondence forwarded addressed to Greece, via the North German Union, has been redneed to the following amounts, viz: On letters by direct mail to Hamburg and Bremen, respectively, 15 cents per each half ounce or under, and in closed mail through England, 23 cents; prepayment optional. On newspapers, 9 cents per each four ounces or fractinn thereof in direct mail, and 10 cents in German closed mail through England; and on book-packets and samples or patterns of merchandise, 12 cents per each four ounces or under by direct steamer to Hamburg and Bremen, and 14 cents in German closed mail through England. Small newspapers, however, weighing two ounces or under, are chargeable with 7 cents by direct mail and 8 cents if sent through England. Prepayment of the above charges on printed matter and samples is obligatory in the United States.

The German office also informs this Department that the international register fee of 8 cents prepays the cost of registration to Greece on letters addressed to that country and forwarded via the North German Union, but that letters only can be registered.

You will please make the necessary correction in the next issue of the U. S. MAIL.

I am, very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Chief Clerk.

J. GAYLER, ESQ.,
Editor U. S. MAIL, New York.

☞ We are pleased to note a decided falling off in the number of inquiries as to whether this or that bogus lottery or gift enterprise is "reliable." We trust that all our subscribers have now their eyes open to the fact that each and every one of these concerns can only be "relied on" to steal as much as they can and keep all they steal.

How Would It Work?

The hill lately introdoced into Congress authorizing the Goverumeot, through the Postmaster General, to assume the charge of o telegraph line hetweeo New York and Washiogton, has had the effect of eliciting once more from one or twe newspapers, the demaod that "private enterprise" shall ho be allowed tn anpersedo the Govorumont in tho charge of the postal service of the country. It is a little curious, however, that these samo popers, who will apparently never be satisfied until the mail servieo is taken from under the Governmeot control, never seem to trouble themselves with any speculations as to the hands intn which such an important trust wonld probohly fall. If Congress were today to pass on act declaring that on and after Janoary 1st, 1869, all Gnvernment contracts for tho transportation of the mails should hecome void, and the offices now held by the Postmaster Geoeral, his assistants, the clerks of the P. O. Department, oll postmasters, ronto agents, and of others in any way connected with the service, should bee ome permanontly vacant, no donbt oll the gentlemen of the press who havo so long heen urging snch action, after the natural exhilaration consequent on the success of their labors bod somewhat snbsided, wonld begin to look abont them for a snbstitnte for the effete and nnsatisfactory old Post Office Department whose abolition they hod effected. Naturally they would turn to those "private enterprises" whose operations most closely assimilated to those of the post office. Of course, they would first approach tho "railroad kings." Bnt the antecedents of these magnates certainly justify us in assuming that their reply would he, in effect, as follows:

"Certainly, gentlemen—we shall be most happy to take entire charge of the mails: hnt yon will please to remember that we do business strictly on the "private enterprise" plan—and therefore wo can't think of carrying mails to those remote and sparsely settled portions of our country where the Government service didn't pay; we will establish a tariff of cborges in proportion to distance—say three cents for a letter from Boston to New York, ten cents to Chicago, fifty cents to San Francisco, and a dollar to Portland, Oregon. To many of the small, nnimportant points, wo couldn't, of course, undertake to furnish any mail facilities whatever. And thon, you know, in justice to the stockholders, we couldn't think of 'dead-heading' your exchanges, nor of supplying your subscribers with their papers at the absurdly low rates formerly charged hy the Government—qnite ont of the question."

"But consider, your majesties, tho damage to the material, edncntional, moral and religious interests of the public, which such a course on your part would be certain to entail!"

"Beg your pardon, gentlemen—but yon seem to be forgetting that our proposition comes from a 'private enterprise'—tho moral, edncational, and religious element 'won't mix' with our nperations. All we have to 'consider' in the matter is, 'will it pay?' We don't feel any very lively interest in anybody's prosperity hnt our own—being 'corporations,' we are of course equally destitute of souls eligible to salvation nr its reverse, and of bodies capable of being kicked; in short, we have nothing hut pockets, and if you want your mails carried on the high moral and pnblic interest plan, please apply to some other shop, and ——, good morning, gentlemen."

It might possibly then occur to the gentlemen of the press, that these railway monarchs who had thus rudely rejected their overtures, were the very ones whom they hod been for years, in the course of their editnrial labors, denouncing as a set of nnscrupulous, selfish, grasping monopolists, totally regardless of the lives, the health, the interests and the convenience of the pnblic, and intent only nn secnring fat dividends, or purposely depreciating the valno of the roads nnder their control in nrder to enrich themselves hy speculations in tho stock, or using the stockholder's fnnds for the corruption of legislators whom they found it necessary to make accomplices in their schemes. These reflectioos may possibly convince them that "privote enterprise" of the railroad sort would hardly be the kind to which it would be judicious to entrust the management of the mail service.

They would scarcely apply to the Express Companies, who are so closely identified with the railroads, and whose shortcomings they have been no less slow to point oot in print. Tho steamboat interest conld offer hnt little hope of assistance—and besides, the injurious remarks which have appeared from time to time in tho papers concerning certain ferry companies and California Steamship lines might lead to an "onpleasantness" in case of an interview between the editors and tho steamboat owoers. As for the telegraph companies, they wonld, of course, he nut nf the qnestion.

The fact is, the propositinn to place the vast postal interest of the country in the hands of private individoals is so absurd as to be scarcely worthy of serions consideration—hardly more so than a proposition to place the army or navy noder the chorge of a corporatioo. And tho charge (which always accompanies the snggestion) that the Post Office Departmeot has proved incompetent for the dnties belonging to it, has no foundation. Those who make it cannot have any just idea of the magnitnde and extent of those dnties. It is usual for these critics to allude to the perfection of the postal system of England, and compare it with our owo, which is about as fair a comparison as would be one between the drilling of a militia corporal's guard and the movements of an army corps. It is not sorprising that the comparatively petty details necessary to the manogement of the postal business of a territory of 88,000 thickly populated square miles, should work more smoothly than those required for a territory of 2,950,000, in o country which, in comparison with England, was born yesterday. With the difficulties it has had to contend with, our Post Office Department has done more and better than could have been expected. Not a year passes without some marked improvemeot in its workings; and it would be far better for those who find cause for criticising it to do so in a more temperate and patriotic spirit, and with more knowledge of the facts than most of them seem to have cared to obtain.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

A much esteemed subscriber—a publisher of a popular moothly, not a Postmaster—requests us to remiod Postmasters thot stamps for registry tees must be affixed on letters before leaving the mailing offico. We would like to make clear as noon-day snn, that the process of paying for registering a letter is the same as for paying postage on the letter—that is: stamps to the amount of the registration fee, besides the proper postage, most be affixed to the letter before it can he registered. In no case shonld a Postmaster receive a letter to register, unless the stamps are so affixed, or money handed him to pay for the stamps; in the latter case he should himself immediately affix them. No account is to he kopt of money received for etsmps for registration; it goes into the general fund the same as money received for stamps for postage, and no separate account is to be made of it in the qnarterly occount curreot. No domeetic letter should ho registered unless it is prepaid at least twenty-three cents, twenty cents registration fee, and three ceots postage; if the letter weighs over half an ounce to an ounce, the postage would be six cents, heside the registration fee of twenty cents....."How to dispose of old accounts that have been accnmulatiog for eighteen years?" asks a Postmaster. Sell all, to within two or three years of presont date, and credit the proceeds to the Department. .....More than one worthy Postmaster complains of the hardship of heing compelled to pay registration fee on mntilated currency to the Treasurer of the United States, whon they are not allowed to refuse such currency for postage. There is a hardship in this, but such is the law.....A five years' subscriber and Postmaster writes that he had almost concluded to stop THE MAIL, as he thonght his five years' reading of it, and his eqnally long experience qualified him to gradnate, but on sober second thought, inasmnch as constant changes are taking place in the Lows and Regulations, ond in the Table of Postages, he concluded not to "cooclnde to stop," but to renew, and to odvise all Postmasters to snbscribe. Wo think his conclusion and his advice very commendable.....A correspondent ond new Postmaster is somewbat nettled at receiving a letter from one older in the business, on account of a failure to send n registered letter on the day it was made np. He asks if old Postmasters do not make mistakes? Certainly they do. But that is no reason why attention should not he called to mistakes. The way to avoid a repetition of mistakes, is to comment on those committed; and to make np a registered letter, ready to send off, and then neglect it, is a very grave mistake, which might create a great deal of tronble, and subject innocent parties to nnpleasant suspicions. Our correspondent wants to know if envelopes and stationery are furnished to fourth-class offices. They are allowed in the discretion of the Postmaster General, to whom application must be made. He also proposes a sort of class-meeting of Postmasters. The proposition meets our approval; wa do not donht hut that a free interchange of ideas and experiences among Postmasters would add greatly to their attention to their duties, and to the efficiency of the postal service.

The circulation of THE MAIL has largely increased in a few months. With this increase is a corresponding increase of inquiries, requesting replies in our colomn of "Answers to Correspondents." We are glad to see this disposition on the part of our patrons to perfect themselves in their dnties, and are generally ready to respond to their inquiries, bnt in some cases where the inquirers are old subscribers and the information is already in some recent onmber of THE MAIL, we feel that the demand npon our time and space is hardly justifiable. Box Rents, The Frankiog Privilege, and Mntilated Currency form the subjects for repeated replies. To exhonst them would reqoire far more spaco than we could spare, and hence, we feel no apology is needed when we ask all who waot information on these subjects to carefully consult one or more previous numbers of THE MAIL before addressiog us. So, also, on questions of Postage, consult carefully the Miscellaoeous Information on the third page, and the Table of Foreign Postages on the fourth page, paying particular attention to the notes ot tho bottom of the latter.

We would add, do not hesitate to write to us for information, in consequence of what we have said above. Write, and write freely.

Delivery of Local Nswspapers, Etc.

Several snbscribers have addressed to us the question os to what is the proper postage to be charged npon newspapers deposited in and to be delivered through the post office ot the place where they are published. The Act of 1852 provides, that "the publishers of weekly newspapers may send to each actual subscriber within the county where their popers are printed and published, one copy thereof, free of charge." The Department has decided that this law is intended to apply to weekly newspapers passing through the mails within the county, and that a postmaster is not hound to deliver, free, papers printed and published in the same city, town or village where the post office in which they are deposited is located—hut if they are delivered no charge should he made. At letter-carrier offices where such papers (whether weekly or other) are deposited the charge is one cent each, to he prepoid by stamps.

We understand that some further legislation on this snbject is contemplated by Congress.

At post offices where the carrier system is not in operation, the postage on drop-letters or circulars is one cent per half ounce, roto to he prepaid by stamps—at letter-carrier offices two cents.

Railway Post Office Service.

The moil service by railway postol cars is heing rapidly extended and improved. On the 1st of July next, it is proposed to establish postal car servioe on the Hudson River Railroad, conoecting at Albany with the New York Central road direct to Buffalo—leoving New York ond Boffalo every week day night and morning. An additional line between New York and Boston is to be at the same time established, to run via Springfield, and a line from Springfield to Albany, connecting with those from New York. Tho service will olso he continued on the Shore Line from Boston, connecting with the service via Springfield, at New Haven.

Arrangements ore being made for two daily linee hetween Boston ond Portland, and ono between Portland and Bangor, aod the estoblishmeot of thie service will complete a continuous Railwoy Post Office line from Bangor to Washington, and also west to Toledo, Ohio. When the service between Toledo and Chicago is estahlished, the lioe will he continuous from Bangor to Omaha.

Inexcusable Blandering.

We do not donht that all the readers of THE MAIL are sufficiently well posted in the registration system to he able to comply with all its requirements—and we trust that all of them do so. Bnt that there are certainly many postmasters and other officials who hnve not taken the tronble to qualify themselvce for this duty, is evident from the number of complaints of negligence in regard to it, which we receive, and which inclnde sios both of omission and commission. Registered package envelopes are sent "direct" instead of through D. P. O.'s—or in through pouches from other than first-class offices, instead of heing given to route-agents—postmarks are omitted or imperfectly affixed—numhers are incorrect, hoth on letters and registered package envelopes—registratioo fees on foreign letters ore overpaid or nnderpaid—the fee is placed on the registered package onvelepo instead of on the letter, etc., etc. Will not some of our snbscribers perform a missionary work among their erring brethren, by offering a little fraternol advice, inclnding a recommendation to take THE MAIL?

GIVE ALL PARTICULARS.—Postmasters in reporting to the Department and to Special Agents the non-arrival of registered letters called for hy return hills which they have received, too often neglect to include all the necessary particulars in their reports. Not ouly the number of the letter, bnt the nnmber of the registered pockage envelope, the date and the full address of the letter, should be given. Althongh these delayed letters almost without exception, afterward reach their destination in safety, yet on investigation of the cause of delay is necessary; and this investigation cannot be promptly commenced or properly conducted without o knowledge of all the particulars mentioned above.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Mode of Indicating the Prepayment of Postage upon Letters Received from Foreign Countries.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

Registering Foreign Letters.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rettimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Canadian Correspondence. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce. If fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

Collections in Coin.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. To or from French, Algerian, &c., in French Mail or via England.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibrilla, Incholi, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mityleue, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsaun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultchia, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.
2. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria) and to or from Belgium and the Netherlands, by Closed Mail via England.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patteros or sarspies, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deOcient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
3. To on from Italy and Switzerland, by Closed Mail, via Enoland, Belgium and Germany.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)
4. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria), by Direct Mail via Bremen or Hamburg—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Anstria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. Newspapers and other Printed Matter.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. Book-Packets.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmastors, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. Patterns or Samples or Merchandise.—Patteros or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattero or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattero or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patteros or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patteros or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patteros or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patteros or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Philadelphia and Baltimore are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Chicago, Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abolished.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

[All printed matter (except single copies of newspapers, magazines, and periodicals sent to regular subscribers from publishers) intended to go by mail westward from the western boundary of Kansas, or eastward from the eastern boundary of California, must be prepaid by stamps at letter postage rates. Sec. 259, P. O. Laws, Edition of 1866.]

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

On Miscellaneous Mailable Matter (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over four oz. in weight, 2 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 4 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 6 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 8 cts.

By a recent order of the Postmaster General, the fifth subdivision of the 42d Instruction of the Post Office Law, approved March 3, 1863, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows: "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two ounces."

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds, roots, cuttings or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Weekly newspapers and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from countries bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞ All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short-paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly prepayment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribers. No such paper should be delivered, unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office, or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so prepaid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail, they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removed from office for neglect.

Post Office Blanks.

District No. 1—Supplies blanks for the District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakotah, Kansas, Nebraska, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. Postmasters in either of these States, wanting blanks of any kind should address "First Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, District of Columbia."

District No. 2—Supplies blanks for the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, California and Oregon, Washington Territory and Nevada. Postmasters in either of these States or Territories, wanting blanks, should address "Blank Agent, New York, N. Y."

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

QUINBY'S

Improved Letter Delivery-Case

FOR

POST OFFICES OF ALL CLASSES.

THESE CASES (intended to facilitate the labor and save the time of the postmasters and delivery clerks) have now been in use for four years. The universal testimony of those using them is that it is unequalled by any other in use, economizing both time and labor. It is in use in very many offices, of different classes, in all of which it has come to be considered as almost indispensable. Its compactness renders the cost of its transportation very trifling.

Post Office Department, Washington, D. C., Aug. 29, 1866.—I have examined "Stone's Post Office Account Book, for the Quarterly Record of Box Rents, Newspaper and Letter Postages," and believe it well calculated to facilitate the business of Post Offices, and to insure accuracy in keeping the accounts, and that its use by Postmasters will tend to increase the revenues of the Department.

St. John R. L. Skinner,
First Ass't P. M. General.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. VIII., NO. 10. NEW YORK, JULY, 1868. WHOLE NO. 94.

The Postal Convention with Great Britain.

The existing Postal Convention between the United States and Great Britain, signed on June 18, 1867, and which went into effect on January 1st, of the present year, contains a provision that it may be terminated by either party on a notice of one year. On the 13th of December, 1867, the Duke of Montrose, Postmaster General of the United Kingdom, notified the Postmaster General of the United States of his intention to avail himself of the power thus conferred by terminating the Convention on the 31st of December, 1868, stating that such a step "had been rendered necessary by difficulties that have arisen in carrying some of its stipulations into effect, and by objections which have presented themselves to some of its details when reduced to practice." These difficulties and objections were not stated in detail, to which fact Postmaster General Randall allnded in his reply of January 4th, requesting their specification. The Duke of Montrose, in his answer of January 24th, declined to do this on the ground that discussion at that time would "have the effect of embarrassing any negotintors who might hereafter be appointed to arrange and settle the details of a new convention," and proposed the appointment of Mr. Anthony Trollope, formerly one of the principal officers of the British Post Office Department, as a plenipotentiary, empowered to settle by negotiation the terms of a new Convention. In April last, Mr. Trollope arrived in Washington, and presented to Postmaster General Randall n memorandum, setting forth the reasons of the British office for closing the present Convention, and the propositions he had been directed to make for a new one. Our limited space prevents the publication of this lengthy memorandum; bnt we give below the reply of Postmaster General Randall, which mentions each of the pointe referred to hy Mr. Trollope. The entire correspondonce has been communicated to the Senate by the President in his message of June 8th, in response to a Senate resolution of May 26th, calling for the same:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, May 23, 1868.

SIR—Referring to our interview of the 18th inst. on the propositions which you submitted, under date of the 26th ultimo, on behalf of the British Government, as a basis of a new Postal Convention between the United Kingdom and the United States, I have the honor to present herein the views of this department on each of the modifications of the existing Convention proposed for its consideration.

But before considering the several propositions suggested as the basis of a new Convention, it is proper to notice the reasons which you inform me induced the British Post Office to give the notification to terminate the existing Postal Convention at the close of the present year.

With regard to the objections stated to the practical operation of the present Convention, "that no tender was received in accordance with the terms sanctioned by that Convention for taking the mails from the United Kingdom every Saturday from Liverpool and Sunday from Queenstown;" and "that none was received by the United States for the mail from New York on Wednesdays;" "that the Cunard boats hitherto running on those days, are not running on those days, are not running on terms contemplated by the Convention;" and that "the Post Office of the United States has, as an act of favbr, consented to send mails by them, though not in conformity with the terms of the Convention," it is proper to observe that the circumstance of no tenders having been received by either office for the conveyance of the mails on particular sailing days, or between certain designated porta, is not properly chargeable as a defect of the Convention, which fully empowers either office to make its own arrangements without restriction, either as respects the rontes of transmission or the rate of compensation to be allowed for the sea service; and with reference to the statement that the Cunard boats are now performing service "not in conformity with the Terms of the Convention," I have to observe that the consent of this department to send the mails by those boats on the same terms and conditions as the other lines, whose tenders for service from this side had been regularly accepted, is not to be regarded as an act of favor, as this department simply agreed to deal directly with that line, for the service which it performed, the same as with the other lines which had tendered proposals and been regularly accepted for the mail service.

The 2d article of the present Convention, which was originally proposed by the British Post Office in Mr. J. Tilley's letter of the 23d October, 1866, and accepted hy this office without modification, in the very terms as proposed, was wisely intended to give, and was mutually understood as giving, to each office the exclusive control of its own arrangements for the dispatch of mails to the other, without any restriction, except that the vessels employed are to be "well-appointed ships, sailing on stated days."

The principle of leaving each office free to make its own arrangements for the conveyance of the mails which it dispatches, adopted in this article, is not only equitable and just as between the two offices, but adapted in all respects to the rapidly increasing means of steamship communication across the Atlantic. It will enable each office, by inviting competition, from year to year, from the rival lines, not only to secure the best attainable mail service, but on the most favorable terms. The same principle has been adopted in each of the Postal Conventions recently concluded between the United States and countries on the continent of Europe; and to return to the old system of special contracts, or subsidies for a term of years with particular lines of steamers to the exclusion of other lines equally efficient for mail purposes, and anxious to compete for the mails, would certainly be a retrograde movement unproductive of any beneficial result, either to the mail service or to the people of the two countries.

That the British Post Office was in entire accord with this department at the time of negotiating the present Convention with regard to the propriety and practicability of adopting this principle, and the advantages to result therefrom in increased frequency of mail service and reduced cost of sea transportation, appears from the following extracts which I quote from Mr. F. Hill's letter of 22d June, 1866, addressed to the Right Hon. E. Hammond, &c., &c., Foreign Office, published by order of the House of Commons of the 11th March, 1867, with other correspondence on the subject of the postal service on the Atlantic:

> The Postmaster General, does not propose to enter into a new contract for the continuance of a mail service like that now existing between this country and North America, as he is of opinion that without any such contract the numerous steamships now plying afford the means of maintaining a rapid and frequent postal communication with the United States. In his lordship's opinion arrangements may advantageously be made with the owners of well-appointed ships leaving this country on stated days, weekly, for the conveyance of mails to New York, in consideration of a payment equal to the whole sea postage, if the voyage be performed within a certain time and equal to a smaller sum, according to a fixed scale, where that time is exceeded. A similar course might be pursued by the United States Post Office with regard to the dispatch of mails to this country; and it seems probable, looking at the great commercial intercourse between the two countries, that after a time, under such a plan, a daily mail might be established in each direction.
> Under this arrangement all necessity for the Post Office of one country to send to that of the other instructions respecting the transmission of its mails, a necessity giving rise to much trouble, would be avoided. As respects the outward mails, each office would have the sole direction.
> Each office thus undertaking to provide the means for the dispatch of the outward mails, the Postmaster General would propose that the dispatching office should retain all the postage charged on the international correspondence, and that the office to which the mails are sent should make no charge on the delivery of such correspondence.

In regard to the other circumstances mentioned in your memorandum of the 26th ultimo as an objection to the existing Convention, viz.: that under the operation of the provision in the second article, "that each office shall make its own terms with the owners of vessels," this department is paying for the current year only fifteen cents per ounce for the ocean transportation of letter mails, while the British office is paying for the very same service (the ships employed for each office being the same) twenty-four cents per ounce, I have to remark that this difference in the cost of the sea service employed by the two offices resulted from the different mode of inviting tenders adopted on each side, the British office agreeing in advance to allow the full amount of sea postage as compensation for the service, while this department invited competition, not only in respect to speed and other requisites, but also in regard to the rate of compensation to be paid.

It is reasonable to suppose that if the invitation for tenders issued by the British office had not fixed the rate of compensation to be paid, that equally favorable tenders for sea transportation would have been made to that office; and it is not doubted that under the operation of free competition on each side the cost of the trans-Atlantic service, by first-class steamers of approved speed, can be lessened from year to year, enabling the respective Governments to further reduce the rate of international letter postage in the interest of the people of both countries, an object, the accomplishment of which is earnestly desired by this department; for in the same proportion as the cost of the sea transportation is reduced it will be practicable to reduce postage rates without loss to the postal revenues of either country. No good reason is known to this department why the Atlantic service cannot be just as efficiently performed as at present, if open to free competition, at a charge of two cents per single letter rate (which would be a sufficiently remunerative charge for the service the steamers are required to render), and would justify the establishment of an international charge for letters of six cents (3d.) per single rate, of which two cents would be the sea postage and two cents the inland charge in each country. In our recent interview I informed you of the desire of this department to provide for a gradual reduction of the rate of international letter postage in the proposed new Convention, and to express the hope that the British Post Office will agree to reduce the letter rate of postage to ten cents on and after the 1st of January, 1869, with a provision for further reductions proportioned to the reductions that shall be effected from year to year in the cost of ocean transportation.

With regard to the objection made to the power given in article 3 of the present Convention to each country to reduce the international letter rate, without the consent of the other country, I have to state that this department does not object to fixing definitely, in the proposed new Convention, the agreed rate nf international letter postage. The stipulation in the same article requiring the weight to be counted in the United States by grams, is in accordance with the provisions of recent laws legalizing the use of the weights of the metric system in the United States, and requiring the Postmaster General to introdnce the same in all post offices exchanging mails with foreign countries. There is, therefore, a propriety in retaining the same stipulation in the new Convention.

I entirely agree with your suggestion that the fine imposed on unpaid and insufficiently paid letters should be the same in amount, as nearly as may be, in each country, and that the 4th article should be modified accordingly. I would suggest that the present fine of five cents, levied in the United States, he retained, and that the fine to be collected in the United Kingdom be fixed either at 2d. or 3d. as the British office shall elect, which would be a sufficient amount to compensate the receiving offices for the trouble and expense of collections.

I have to state in explanation of the 5th regulation, prescribed in article 5 of the present Convention, that its object was to guard against any infringement of the United States revenue laws; bnt that in practice, not a single instance has yet been reported to this department in which custom duties have been collected on any postal packet received in the mails from the United Kingdom. It is important, however, that the same regulation should be retained in the new Convention.

In reply to the several proposals which you have submitted as the basis of a new Convention, I have to inform you—

1. That this department cheerfully assents to the proposition that the mails be dispatched from Liverpool via Queenstown to New York, and from New York via Queenstown to Liverpool, three times in each week; the days of departure to be Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, from Liverpool and New York respectively, if satisfactory steamers of approved speed and rate of compensation are tendered for the proposed additional weekly trips between those ports. There is at present a regular semi-weekly mail communication between those ports; and this department will gladly avail itself of the earliest opportunity to increase the frequency of the trips to tri-weekly, or even to daily service, between those ports. I cannot, however, assent to the proposition that a more frequent service than tri-weekly between those ports would not be efficient for good purpose; for, assuming that the steamships employed are of equal or average speed, a daily mail would certainly be preferable to a tri-weekly. This department is prepared to contract, at once, under the provisions of the present Convention, for an additional weekly service from New York to Liverpool via Queenstown by well-appointed steamers of approved speed, upon the same conditions and at the same rates of compensation allowed to the other steamers employed in transporting the mails to the United Kingdom.

2. The laws of the United States limit the term of all contracts made by the Postmaster General for carrying the mails on the sea to a period of two years, and provide that the compensation to be allowed to any steamship sailing under a foreign flag shall not exceed the sea postages on the mails transported. Hence it is not practicable for this department to contract for ocean service for a longer term than two years, or at a fixed sum estimated in advance as the probable amount of the sea postage on the correspondence to be conveyed. If, therefore, the proposition of the British office is, as I understand it to be, that the two offices shall contract jointly for a term of not less than three years, or separately in contracts containing the same provisions, with the owners of steamers of the Cunard and Inman lines (the third weekly service to be maintained by steamers of those lines not now under contract for the conveyance of the mails), for a regular weekly mail between New York, Queenstown, Liverpool, restricting the regular mail exchanges between the two countries for that period to semi-weekly mail services a week from each side, and between those ports only, I am constrained to say that such an arrangement is for many obvious reasons one of which were alluded to in our personal interview, impracticable under existing laws, unnecessary as a measure to promote efficiency in the service, and inexpedient in the present and prospective abundant means of rapid and frequent postal communication between the United States and the United Kingdom. In the opinion of this department, the principle adopted in the recent Convention, that each office shall have the sole direction as respects the outward mails which it dispatches to the other, originally advocated by the British office, should be adhered to, as best adapted in all respects to promote the efficiency and cheapness of postal communications between the two countries.

3. As before explained, our law limits the maximum of compensation to be allowed to any steamship for the conveyance of mails by sea, in a foreign vessel, to the actual amount of the sea postage on the mails transported by such steamship; and, therefore, it is not practicable either to fix in advance an estimated sum to be derived from sea postage, as the amount of compensation to be allowed to the steamers, or to divide such estimated sum between the different lines of steamers employed in the service, in equal proportions, or "adjusted to the proportion of letters carried, and the value of the service rendered." I approve of your suggestion that contracts for mail service should fix the time to be allowed for the performance of the trips from each side, and provide suitable penalties for irregularities and delinquencies in the service.

4. There is no objection on the part of this department to uniting with the British office in providing such arrangements as are necessary for the proper sorting of the mails on board of the steamers, each department to bear its proper proportion of the expenses incident to such service.

5. The objections hereinbefore stated to the proposed plan of joint contracts for ocean mail service, apply equally to the making of separate contracts by each department with each of the same companies on precisely the same terms.

6. It is considered inexpedient by this department, in view of the frequent means of mail communication provided by the numerous lines of first-class steamers plying between the ports of the two countries, to limit the regular mail exchanges to three weekly lines only, plying between New York and Liverpool, via Queenstown, and trust all the correspondence forwarded by other lines of steamers as private ship mails.

7. The total postages collected on all matters conveyed by the international mails are, under the provisions of the present Convention, divided equally between the two offices, and there is no desire on the part of this department to change that provision. But the fines imposed on unpaid and insufficiently paid letters should be retained, as at present, by the collecting country; the object for which they are levied being to compensate the collecting office for the additional trouble and expense incident to the collection of unpaid postage. The fine really forms no part of the international postage charge.

I have, therefore, to propose for your consideration that, in lieu of the proposals submitted in your memorandum of the 26th ultimo, the provisions of the present Convention, with the following modifications, be continued in the new Convention to come into operation on the 1st of January, 1869:

1st. Modify article 3 by reducing the postage on a single international letter to ten cents in the United States or five pence in the United Kingdom; the existing contracts with this department for sea transportation at the rate of 15 cents per ounce for letter mails, justifying such a reduction of the postage. Also provide in same article for further reductions of the postage from year to year, as the cost of the sea transportation shall be reduced.

2d. Modify article 4 by fixing the amount of the fine to be collected in the United Kingdom on unpaid or insufficiently prapaid letters received from the United States, either at two pence or three pence, as the British office shall elect.

3d. Modify article 5 by stipulating that the total postage on international newspapers (including prices current) shall be two cents in the United States, and one penny in the United Kingdom, per four ounces; and that the total postage on international book-packets and patterns, or samples, shall be six cents in the United States, and three pence in the United Kingdom, per four ounces, or fraction thereof.

4th. The new Convention to be terminable at any time on a previous notice by either office of one year.

Inasmuch as there appears to be no difficulty in coming to an agreement on each of the propositions under consideration, except that in relation to the arrangements for the dispatch of mails between the two countries, I beg to express the hope that the British office will, on reconsideration, be willing to withdraw its objection to the provisions of the existing Convention on that subject.

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

MAIL ROBBERY.—On June 12th, Mr. Fred. Depro, the efficient Special Agent of the Post Office Department, arrested the messenger of Weidersheim & Co., Claim Agents on Seventh street, near the Post Office, on the charge of opening and abstracting money from letters directed to the firm. The firm had reported numerous losses of money through the mail, and affidavits had been sent them hy parties who had sent them money, and the case was taken in hand by Mr. Depro, who suspected the messenger, and, for the purpose of trapping him, placed two letters in the mail, one purporting to come from Ashley, Illinois, and the other from Fairfield, Michigan, containing $5 each—the notes being marked. The letters failed to be accounted for this morning and Mr. Depro took him in custody, and he made a full confession. One of the notes was found at Smith's barber shop, E street, and the other with Mr. Flesh, who keeps an eating saloon in the neighborhood. He was taken to police head-quarters, where he is held for a hearing. This is another case, which shows that parties outside of the Post Office may rob letters. In almost every robbery the charge is laid to the Department, and this case exonerates the Department, and will, probably, indnce other parties who have had letters robbed to make more particular inquiries into the honesty of their employees before charging the robbery upon mail agents, clerks, etc.—Washington Chronicle.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO,
June, 1868.

There is a great deal of good in the human portion of animated nature, and we should be slow to find fault with the world, or with anything in it. Neither too credulous, or too distrustful, we should observe closely, weigh carefully, and decide judiciously upon all appeals to our benevolence, all assaults upon our patience, and all claims upon our forbearance. The too confiding are sometimes fearfully imposed upon, just because they fail to do this, and are too loth or too lazy to look for beams in any other eyes than their own—and when they find ont they have been duped, they turn their backs forever after upon objects of really deserved, legitimate merits, and leave charity ont in the cold. Every man has more or less philanthropy in his heart, bnt the fewest number cultivate it, or allow it to leave its nest for purposes of practical good—for where this attribute is nourished and diffused liberally, its possessor soon becomes, in the estimation of many, simply a machine to be plied for the convenience of certain men and certain measures, and he is expected to exert himself in behalf of a multitude of projects, of which he personally knows nothing, remotely or directly, and for countless individuals with whom he has no past, present or prospective acquaintance or sympathy. For his good deeds, the ever willing philanthropist has his heart-warming rewards; hnt my opinion is that too much is asked and expected of those who are disposed to be controlled by faith and charity in their intercourse with the world.

To assist in building churches, establishing Sunday schools, organizing temperance societies, founding asylums, laying ont cemeteries, purchasing life memberships in foreign missions, and contributing generally to domestic charities, and, at the same time, perform all required domestic and social duties, is to be highly privileged—bnt when it comes to asking to assist in raising funds to buy Ireland, or to sign a petition for the removal of your postmaster, because he is too strict in the performance of his duty, in that he positively refuses to let Judge Bugg, Rev. Mr. Jorlday, Counsellor Roots, or Mr. O'Hush, of the Weekly Wailer, sit in his office, discussing scandal or something else, while he is opening and distributing his mails, or to examine the letters received for people within his delivery, particularly those addressed to certain ladies, with a view to learn the postmarks and their probable correspondents—Christian patience is attacked in a vulnerable part, and the soft answer which turneth away wrath is certainly not adapted to the occasion. It is no evidence that a man lacks any of the good qualities of a Christian and a gentleman, if he qualifies his refusal with a very little profanity—no more than you can charge a man with being impatient, who, absorbed in an interesting book on a railway car, remains perfectly imperturbed, until the forty-fifth invitation within an hour of newspaper, pop-corn, peannt and fruit venders, to purchase their wares, ignites his pent-up wrath, which, all ablaze, leaps ont, and only then secures his peace. Now, the allusion to Bugg, Jorlday, Roots and O'Hush, is not intended to apply to any particular locality; these representative "sticks" are to be found everywhere. In the valleys and on the hills of the North, on the broad levels of the West, in the reconstructed South, wherever a negative postmaster is anxious to kill time, there will they be found also—and yon can always tell them. Sometimes they wear glasses, and sometimes they do not—but the facial expression is everywhere and always the same. The soiled and careless garb, the ragged beard, the unkempt hair, the glazed and bulbous nethers, and the rusty foot-coverings, denote these men as clearly as if their names were badged across their brows. Now, when I say there is a great deal of good in humanity, I wish to be understood distinctly as excluding such characters. Philanthropy has no abiding place among such people. Faith would sicken, Hope would go to sleep, and Charity would freeze in such company. Bnt are these good-for-nothings to be blamed more for lounging about post offices than the weak officials who grant them the privilege? The keeper of a dram shop is always blamed for harboring tipplers about his premises, keeping them from their families and their duties, and every conceivable curse is invoked on his head by indignant mothers, wives and sisters. Now, is it any more landable for men to waste their time and neglect their business and families by lolling and loafing about post offices? 'Tis true, they do not have the opportunity of destroying themselves by the imhihition of poisonous liquids, hnt the time and place is used to disseminate poisonous slanders, and other pestilent stuff, which in effect is intended to morally destroy others, which is not as commendable and far, far more cowardly than working self-injury. Now, independent of the duty which a postmaster owes officially to the power which appointed him, the laws which govern him, and to the community of which he is a part, the higher obligations of a good neighbor and worthy citizen, should impel him to act in such a manner as not to give cause of trouble, fear, dissatisfaction, vexation, or pain to any one within his haillwick. When this public trust is imposed upon him he should, by his actions, render himself worthy of it, and avoid everything that would or could in any way neutralize his usefulness, or compromise his private or public dignity and influence, and a decent respect for public opinion, and a proper conception of the responsibilities which attach to his office, should make him firm in his purpose to live up to the letter of his instructions as near as he can, even though Bugg should feel snubbed, Jorlday mortified, Roots angered, and O'Hush insulted, even though this distinguished quartette should shake the dust from their patched shoes as they go forth, condoling with each other over the loss of their old roost, and enter into a conspiracy to have him removed, and a more accommodating spirit put in his place. To these poor fellows the blow would be severe, and for a time they would be at their wits' end to know what to do with themselves; bnt after a while they would find use for the hours they used to waste, and then they would commend the functionary for "being cruel only to be kind."

I hope it does not evince a want of charity or philanthropy on my part to make war on these post office rings. Nor does it, I think, savor of impertinence, to picture to postmasters and their clerks, whether they work within walls or on wheels, the demoralization which must result from maintaining such cheap establishments. I have no right, of course, to break up these reunions, and those who countenance them may deny anybody else's right to interfere. That's nothing to me (although I imagine somebody has authority in the premises), nor have I any desire to call high official attention to them. I am only sketching for the benefit of Bugg, Jorlday & Co., and if some of your subscribers will call their attention to my efforts, I will, I think, have accomplished something.

I have no doubt some of the readers of THE MAIL, judging from the exordium, expect to find this letter nothing more nor less than a lecture on the cardinal virtues. If they are disappointed I regret it, hnt if they are faithful officials, they will pardon me for coating my censures with just enough moralizing to make them palatable, and they will appreciate the efforts of a disinterested elderly gentleman, whose sole desire is to make post offices what he thinks they ought to be. Some may object to my manner of putting it—hnt every one to his taste.

"'Tis with our judgment as our watches, none

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, JULY, 1868.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of this Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whose this number reaches, marked 91, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
Washington, June 9, 1868.

SIR—The inclosed copy of a letter recently sent to the postmaster of your city contains the views of the Department as to the course to be pursued in rating and mailing serial publications. Many publishers are in the habit of sticking or pasting slips containing advertisements), after their publications have been printed, between the pages, in violation of the 41st standing regulation of the Department. The Postmaster General desires that this abuse should be corrected.

I am, respectfully, etc.,
ST. JOHN B. L. SKINNER,
First Assistant Postmaster General.

JAMES GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent, and Editor United States Mail.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
Washington, June 9, 1868.

SIR—The Postmaster General has adopted the annexed regulations for the guidance of postmasters in collecting postage on all serial publications addressed to and intended for distribution among bona fide subscribers. On all such publications issued at regular stated periods the following rates of postage must be collected, viz:

On monthly publications, not exceeding four ounces in weight, a postage of three cents must be paid quarterly in advance, either at the mailing office or at the office of delivery; on copies exceeding four ounces in weight, and not exceeding eight ounces, a postage of six cents must be charged and collected, and in like proportion for any greater weight.

On publications issued only once a quarter, a postage of one cent for each four ounces, or fraction thereof, must be collected as above.

On weekly publications not exceeding four ounces in weight, a postage of five cents must be collected quarterly, in advance, and in like proportion for any greater weight.

Covers of flexible material and advertisements printed on paper, of the same size, and intended to form a part of the work, regularly bound up therewith, shall be rated with postage only as a part thereof, according to weight.

Under this ruling, Appleton's weekly series of Dickens' Works, Sheldon & Co.'s Illustrated Magazine—the "Galaxy"—a monthly publication], the American edition of Dr. Wm. Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible," and all similar weekly, monthly, or quarterly publications, when addressed to bona fide subscribers, may be mailed at the above rates.

In all future numbers the insertion of slips must be dispensed with, and all advertisements connected therewith must be printed on paper of the same size of the other pages.

Respectfully, etc.,
ST. JOHN B. L. SKINNER,
First Assistant Postmaster General.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, June 11, 1868.

SIR—You will please publish the following information in the next issue of the UNITED STATES MAIL, for the information of postmasters and the public.

I am, respectfully yours,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Chief Clerk.

J. GAYLER, ESQ., Editor United States Mail, New York.

REGISTRATION BETWEEN NEW YORK AND PANAMA, NEW GRENADA.

We are requested to state that a system of registration has been adopted for letters passing between New York and Panama, N. G.

The fee for such registration is fixed at eight cents per letter, in addition to the rate of ordinary postage chargeable to and from Panama.

[OFFICIAL.]

RATES OF POSTAGE BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND ANAM, BIAMA, CHINA, JAPAN, THE EAST INDIES, AND SIAM; VIA THE NORTH GERMAN UNION.

We are requested to state that correspondence can hereafter be forwarded via the North German Union Mails, from the United States to the above-named countries on prepayment of the following rates of postage, viz:

For letters via the North German Union, closed mail through England, 32 cents per each half ounce or under; and by North German mail direct to Bremen and Hamburg, 27 cents per each half ounce or fraction thereof

For registered letters, besides the above rates of ordinary postage, a registration fee of 17 cents per letter.

For newspapers via the German closed mail through England, 18 cents per each four ounces or under; and by the German mail direct to Bremen and Hamburg, 12 cents per each four ounces or fraction thereof.

For book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise, by the North German, closed mail through England, 17 cents per each four ounces or under; and by the German mail direct to Bremen and Hamburg, 15 cents per each four ounces or fraction thereof. Such patterns or samples of merchandise, however, as are addressed to Anam, China (except Hong Kong), Japan, and places in the East Indies not in the British possessions or Siam, cannot be sent via Germany.

Mailing Registered Matter.

P. O, C——, N. Y., June 18, 1868.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL.—In the present (June) No. of the U. S. MAIL, on the second page, under the head of "Inexcusable Blundering," you seem to make it a blunder to send a registered package envelope in a through bag, from any but first-class offices. Is that in accordance with any instructions yet published in the U. S. MAIL, or elsewhere? please inform.

Question.—Is it improper to send registered package envelopes in through pouches? Should they be given to the route agents when the office sends a through pouch to the destination of such package envelope? If so, please inform where the instructions may be found, and oblige,

Yours, truly,
P. D. H——. P. M.

The Instructions to Route Agents and Railway P. O. Clerks, issued by the Department, July, 1867, provide as follows:

"Registered matter coming into their [route agents and railway P. O. clerks] hands, either for postmasters on the line of their route, * * * or that may come to them in pouches for distribution, * * * they will enter in their books of record of registered matter, and in all cases receipt for the same."

The blank receipts for this purpose are supplied to postmasters on the line of railroads, and it is their duty to send their registered matter in a way-pouch (to be opened by the route agent or railway P. O. clerk), accompanied by one of these receipts, to be signed and returned. These receipts have been placed in use by the Department since the Registration Regulations were issued, and paragraph 6, page 2, of those Regulations, contains sufficient instruction for their use.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Among the special provisions of the Post Office Laws and Regulations, which are not everywhere understood, and which elicit many queries, are those respecting newsdealer's packages. We are asked to explain fully how the postage is to be collected on such, and how to account for the postage thus collected, as there is no provision in any of the blanks for such account. First, premising that our remarks are based on the standard weight of four ounces or less (for over four ounces, the calculation is as readily made), the quarterly postage on a single number of a paper published weekly or oftener, is 5-13ths of a cent, on a monthly or semi-monthly, one cent each. Suppose, then, that one week a newsdealer's package consists of 20 weeklies, 10 semi-weeklies, 8 monthlies and 6 semi-monthlies, the postage would be, on the weeklies, 100-13ths of a cent, on the semi-weeklies, 50-13ths of a cent, on the monthlies, 8 cents, and on the semi-monthlies, 6 cents—total 25 7-13th cents; as a postmaster is not obliged to make or to lose the fractions of a cent, the proper charge would be 26 cents. But if the postmaster wishes to be very accommodating, he may give credit on the next payment for the fraction overcharged. Now suppose that next week the package contains 45 weeklies, 6 tri-weeklies, 12 monthlies and 8 semi-monthlies, the postage is—weeklies, 225-13ths of a cent, tri-weeklies, 30-13ths of a cent, monthlies, 12 cents, and semi-monthlies, 8 cents—total, 39 8-13th cents. Keep this account in a small, handy book, and, Second, at the end of the quarter, make an entry at the close of the Account of Papers Received, as follows: Received of John Doe, Newsdealer, — doll. — cents postage on packages for the quarter..... A postmaster wishes to know if he may register money-order funds free to another postmaster. Yes. Also, the postage on an occasional paper from a publisher should be prepaid at the mailing office, but if not so prepaid, should be collected at the office of delivery, at the rate of two cents for four ounces. We are also asked our opinion on the justice of requiring postmasters to receive mutilated currency, and then to pay the registry fee on the same to the Treasurer. Very many postmasters complain of this as unjust, but we do not think it so unjust as it appears. At large offices where a considerable quantity of such currency is received, the salary is ample to meet so small an expenditure. At small offices the quantity is very inconsiderable, and as it is received for stamps which are not paid for till the end of the quarter, a postmaster need not send to the Treasurer more than four times a year. But most postmasters at such offices could make some arrangement with postmasters at larger offices to take their currency from them. We knew of a postmaster of a country town who took all the mutilated currency from the neighboring postmasters whose offices were supplied through his. It is, however, not unlikely that some arrangement will be made whereby postmasters will be relieved from this payment.

A Swindler Caught.

Some time in May last, a large number of postmasters and other Government officials received through the mails copies of a circular purporting to be issued by the "Managing Committee" from the "Union Executive Rooms, Official Department, Washington, D. C.," calling upon them to contribute five dollars each for political purposes and to secure their retention in office. Of course the circular was bogus, and intended as a means of extracting money from the credulous; and the matter having been brought to the attention of the Post Office Department, Mr. Frederick Depro, Special Agent, was entrusted with the duty of detecting the author of the fraud. On the 6th ult. he arrested one Alanson H. Reed, a clerk in the Paymaster General's Office, in the act of taking the replies to the circular from the lock-box to which they were addressed. On the examination of the accused, two letters taken from his trunk, one postmarked Rochester, and the other West Walworth, N. Y., dated April 5th and 8th, respectively, and directed to him, were exhibited by Mr. Depro. The latter made oath charging Alanson H. Reed with having used the United States Post Office at Washington, D. C., in connection with other persons unknown to the United States Government at the present time, for the purpose of defrauding postmasters and others in different towns of various sums of money under false and fraudulent pretense. Mr. Reed pleaded not guilty to the charge. Justice Smith held the accused under $2,000 bail. The two letters discovered in the accused's trunk are signed "Reynolds." No dates are attached to either, except such as the postmark exhibits. Reynolds, in writing from Rochester, lays out the plan of forming the "managing committee," and says that he has consulted Rowley, one of the criminal lawyers in Rochester, who said that no one could be indicted for pursuing such a course, and if an arrest took place it might cause trouble for some time, but nothing could be done. He also, in his letter, states that he told Rowley that it was an enterprise hatched by his cousin and some politicians

Mr. Depro stated that about $25 had already been collected. The accused has been a clerk for some time past in the division of referred claims, Paymaster General's Office, is about 35 or 40 years of age, and appears to be quite an intelligent man. While he asserts his entire innocence of the matter, he nevertheless took from the lock-box the letter which led to his detection and opened it, and the letters found in his trunk plainly indicate that he is a party to what would undoubtedly have been an immense swindle, unless nipped in the bud by the warning of the press and the vigilance of the officers connected with the Post Office Department.

Purchase of Nickel-Copper Cents.

We print below a public notice issued by the Director of the United States Mint, which will be interesting to postmasters who are troubled with an over-supply of the nickel-copper cents:

MINT OF THE UNITED STATES,
May 20, 1867.

With the double purpose of reducing the quantity of cents in circulation, and of obtaining a partial supply of nickel in convenient form, I am authorized by the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase the nickel cents; paying the nominal value in three and five cents pieces. This will be commenced on the tenth day of June, under the following rules:

1. Persons sending or bringing the nickel cents, will receive a certificate of the weight thereof and the amount payable in three or five cents pieces, or both, as they may desire; and with their indorsement thereon, such certificates will be paid as soon as the coins are ready.

2. They must be careful not to send any but the kind mentioned; which are readily known by the color and size, and by the dates 1857 to 1864.

3. The pieces will be taken, not by count, but by avoirdupois or grocer's weight; no lot will be received under ten pounds; and no spoiled, illegible, or doubtful pieces will be taken.

4. The reasonable expenses of the transportation of the three cent pieces in sums of thirty dollars, and the five cent coins in sums of fifty dollars or upwards, to any point accessible by railroad or steamboat, will be paid by the Mint.

5. This arrangement will be revoked, as soon as it is found that the issue of three and five cents pieces is likely to become too large, or that the abatement of cents is sufficient.

The public may be assured that none of the cents herein mentioned have any special value. The sole object of this operation is to confer a public benefit.

HENRY R. LINDERMAN,
Director U. S. Mint, Philadelphia.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Stamped Envelopes Spoiled in Directing.—W. W. L., A——, Ill.—Stamped envelopes spoiled in directing may be redeemed, according to section 189, Regulations of 1866.

Stamps having the appearance of having been previously used.—D. B. S., D—— F——, W.—Letters bearing stamps that have been previously used, are designated as "held for postage," and should not be mailed, but be sent to the Dead Letter Office. Postmasters should be positive that a stamp has been previously used before holding a letter. Sec. 360, Reg. of 1866.

Sale of Single Stamped Envelopes.—I. H., G——, Ill.—Postmasters are not required to lose the fractions of a cent in selling small quantities of stamped envelopes, hence they may charge four cents for a single three cent envelope; the smallest number that can be sold at the regular price is five. Sec. 171, Reg. of 1866.

Obscene Matter.—C. G., A—— A——, Mich.—A postmaster has the right to detain mail matter which he knows to be obscene. If the party depositing it is known, the district attorney should be notified, but if not known, the obscene matter should be sent to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, in a sealed package, marked SPECIAL, and at the same time a letter informing him that such a package has been sent. Sec. 39, Reg. of 1866.

Name of Subscriber on a Transient Paper.—H. T. L., N——, Iowa.—A paper bearing the name of the regular subscriber cannot be mailed to a friend at paper rates, unless the name of the subscriber is removed.

Unlawful Carrying of Mail Matter.—E. L. C., B——, Me.—It is unlawful for an Express to take letters from one place to another to mail as drop letters. Report all such cases to the Department. See sections 45 and 100, Regulations of 1866.

Route Agents Conveying Newspapers.—E. B. E., F—— S——, Ky.—There is a provision by which Route Agents are allowed, and it is made their duty to convey packages of newspapers out of the mails. See section 217, Regulations of 1866. Doubtless the case you mention comes under this section.

Fine on Unpaid Foreign Letters.—C. J. B., N——, Ill.—The fine on unpaid, or insufficiently prepaid foreign letters, is included in the charge made on the post-bill. You are wrong in collecting a fine in addition to this charge.

Mutilated Currency, &c.—W. B. R., R——, Mo.—Apply to the Third Assistant Postmaster General for a circular of instructions respecting mutilated currency. You can procure revenue stamps at a discount, of some of the National Banks in your State.

Advertising Letters.—J. M. D., M——, O.—At small offices, letters are to be advertised once a month by posting up manuscript lists. If you wish to be able to advise postmasters at small offices, we would recommend you to study carefully Chapter XXXV, Regulations of 1866.

Cents as Legal Tender.—A. H. D., N——B——, O.—One and two cent coins are a legal tender for any amount not exceeding four cents.

Liability of Postmasters for Subscription to Newspapers.—R. A. W., L——, Pa.—There is nothing in the postal laws which makes a postmaster liable for the subscription price of a paper not taken from his office, even though he neglect to notify the publisher of the fact.

Box Rents.—J. H., S——, Mo.—We refer you to Chapter XLII, Reg. of 1866.

Insufficiently Prepaid Letters.—J. A. F., H——, Mass.—A postmaster has no right to receive an insufficiently prepaid letter from a person who knows the prepayment is insufficient.' See, in THE MAIL for July, 1867, letter of the First Assistant Postmaster General, on this subject.

Private Persons Carrying Letters.—A private person may carry a letter on a mail route as a matter of courtesy or friendship.

Right of a Wife to a Husband's Letter.—A wife has no right to her husband's letters, nor to withdraw letters mailed by him. But sometimes the right is implied, as where the husband has made no objections. Your other question we do not understand. We do not know how there can be a post office, and yet the route by which it is supplied be discontinued.

Credit for Overpayment to the Department.—J. G., Jr.—Credit yourself in your general account, with the amount overpaid; on the adjustment of that account by the Auditor, you will doubtless be allowed the credit.

Route by which Mail Matter is Sent.—P. M., G——, Iowa.—The regulations (section 87) require letters, and this includes mail matter generally, should be sent by the most expeditious route. If any postmaster sends to your office by a route requiring a longer time, report the case to the Appointment Office, Washington D. C.

Unclaimed Mail Matter.—G. P. E., G——, Ky.—Return letters, if not delivered, must be kept one month, and included in the next weekly or monthly return after the month has expired. Sec. 388, Reg. of 1866..... E. B. S., G—— R——, Pa.—After a postmaster has notified a publisher that a paper is not taken from the office, he has fulfilled his duty, and if the paper still continues to come to the office, it should be sold at the end of the quarter and the proceeds credited to the Department.....P. P. E., N—— F——, Mo.—Unclaimed photographs should be sent to the Dead Letter Office. Sec. 390, Reg. of 1866.

Newspaper Supplements.—Several postmasters have sent us advertisements or handbills, which were folded in regular issues of newspapers, under the pretense that they are supplements. Such advertisements are not bona fide supplements, and the papers containing them are subject to letter postage. Sections 209 and 226, Reg. of 1866.

Forwarding Mail Matter.—C. G., G—— R——, Mich., and J. S. L., M——, N. Y.—All letters that have not been delivered can be forwarded without additional postage..... M. F. I., W——, Ill.—Unpaid foreign letters may be forwarded without the charges being paid at the forwarding office. The postmaster should enter the amount of the charges on his account of overcharges, and bill the letter as unpaid, to the office of delivery.....W. S. S., N—— E——, N. Y.—Neither regular nor transient newspapers can be forwarded free, the same as letters. A person wishing newspapers forwarded, should leave sufficient money with the forwarding postmaster to pay the postage. .....J. M. M., A——, Nev.—Foreign as well as domestic letters can be forwarded without additional postage.

Registration.—S. G. A., G——, Va.—The Department is not responsible for a lost registered letter. Sec. 456, Reg. of 1866.....H. S., R——, Ill.—In case of a rifled registered letter, report the facts to the Second Assistant P. M. General. Whether the sender or receiver must bear the loss is not for us to decide. It depends in many cases upon the agreement, express or implied, between the parties..... R. McK., St. F——, Mo.—The Return Registered Letter Bill should be filled up at the mailing office with the name of the office and date of mailing, to correspond with the registered bill..... C. M. M., C——, Vt.—A receipt should accompany registered letters to the Treasurer of the United States, as well as to other persons.....P. R., J——, Cal.—Transcripts of registered letters received and sent need not be sent with the quarterly returns. .....E. J. O., S—— C——, N. M.—Envelopes for return registered letter bills, except at offices of the first and second classes, must be furnished by the Postmaster.

Postage.—J. F., T——, Mich.—The postage on a small Sabbath-School paper, if issued weekly, is five cents a quarter; if issued less frequently, it may be charged one cent for each package of four ounces or less, or at the regular quarterly rates, according to section 202, Reg. of 1866..... J. W. K., L——, Ind.—The postage on sample newspapers should be prepaid at the mailing office, but if they arrive at the delivery office unpaid, postage should be collected on delivery. If refused, the papers should be sold at the end of the quarter, and the proceeds credited to the Department. There is no authority for returning them to the publishers.....T. S. G., F——, Ill.—Three different circulars, issued by one house or firm, may be sent at the rate of two cents, but not if issued by different houses or firms. But posters and circulars cannot be sent in one envelope, without subjecting the whole to letter postage.

COMMUNICATIONS.

OFF WEST, May, 1868.

Editor U. S. MAIL: I have been much interested in the "clatter" that has been made in your columns over the subject of "Newspaper Postage," and have had good hope that enough of our Solons at Washington read your paper to induce the little practical legislation that is necessary to solder what is certainly a pretty large hole in our postal skimmer. Prepayment of all matter mailed ought to be the inflexible rule, and its application to newspapers would, in my humble opinion, increase the revenues of the Department from that source "quite amazingly." My plan would be to have the postage payable as now, in money, but at the office of publication. At the close of each quarter I would have the publisher of each and every newspaper or magazine make out, under oath, on blanks furnished by the Department, a statement of the average number of papers mailed by him or from his office, the number of exchanges, and the number to subscribers, and upon this average assess his postage for the ensuing quarter. And I would further make it the duty of the postmaster, at the office where such statement is made, in case of reasonable doubt of the correctness of the statement, to ascertain, by examination of the publisher's books, or any other available means, the truthfulness of such statement, and if willful error is discovered, to collect double regular rates on all additions found, and on a repetition of the offense, exclude such newspaper or magazine from the mails for a time, to be regulated by the gravity of the offense.

You know, and I know, Mr. Editor, that newspaper men are as anxious as any one to make a good showing of their business—in fact, it is a necessity to them not to belittle their circulation, and the likelihood that they would make their statements too little is not to be compared with the amount of loss the Department sustains under the present regulations. It is a good time, too, to do this thing. The price of print paper is down now to a figure that will warrant publishers in paying postages, and maintaining present prices for their papers; while, if the matter is delayed, competition will soon bring the prices of newspapers down to their before-the-war standard, and the adoption of a new system would then compel them to re-advance their terms or send out their papers at a price they could not well afford.

I have a "lot" of things I would like to say through the THE MAIL, but at present content myself with suggesting that you "nail up" at the head of your "Replies to Correspondents," in good, round italics, the word that "Clothing, except to soldiers, sailors, and marines in service, can be sent only at letter rates," and that Handbills are not Supplements, even though they have "Bungtown Express—Extra" printed over them.

Only the other day, I charged up letter postage on some "dimity" that proved to have been mailed by the wife of a neighboring postmaster, and which act brought to me a polite letter, asking me where I found my authority—that they had "Laws and Regulations" at their office, but could find nothing that would sustain me in doing such naughtiness. I think I gave them references that were satisfactory.

Another P. M., near by, is of the opinion that unsealed letters are "circulars," and I have known him to send two pairs woolen stockings for two cents! I will dry up, and drop him a friendly line. HEZ.

C——, GA., June 17, 1868.

Editor U. S. MAIL.—As suggestions in relation to registration have been solicited, and as I have a case in point for consideration, I have concluded to make a suggestion. In keeping account of registered letters "sent" and "received," if there were a column for the original office and for the D. P. O., the books would show exactly where a letter came from and the route it came; whereas, now, when only the D. P. O. and its way-bill are named at the office of delivery, the postmaster cannot tell the original office by the books. I received a letter through a D. P. O., and had the receipt signed by the party, but when I went to return the receipt to the original office, I found that the postmaster had neglected to enter the office. This caused me to have to send this receipt back through the D. P. O. If I had noticed the blank in the receipt, I might have filled it from the marks on the letter, perhaps, but as I was not required to enter the original office, I did not make examination.

II. Under the return system, where a postmaster receives from one to two hundred letters at a time, if all were to be returned, if not delivered in ten days, it would be a troublesome task to write the date of receipt on each. Should there not be a stamp prepared for post offices thus, "Received June 17," so as to change the date each day? This would shorten the labor greatly. If such a stamp has been prepared I have failed to learn the fact.

Very respectfully,
T. M. C., P. M.

☞ We are compelled to omit a great variety of Miscellaneous Information in this number, owing to the pressure on our columns of matters of importance to postmasters and the business community generally.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foralgn countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, ere sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and ere thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Mode of Indicating the Prepayment of Postage upon Letters Received from Foreign Countries.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

Registering Forrion Letters.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tesmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registrstion fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Canadian Correspondence. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

Collections in Coin.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. To or from France, Algeria, &c., in French Mail or via England.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on propayment of the following postage, viz.: newspepers, two cents each; hooks, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.
2. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria) and to or from Belgium and the Netherlands, by Closed Mail via England.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
3. To or from Italy and Switzerland, by Closed Mail, via England, Belgium and Germany.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the seme as the above, (paragraph 2.)
4. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria), by Direct Mail, via Bremen or Hamburg.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 onnces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. Newspapers and other Printed Matter.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. Book-Packets.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. Patterns or Samples of Merchandise.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as being on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 onnces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Post Office Blanks.

District No. 1—Supplies blanks for the District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakotah, Kansas, Nebraska, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. Postmasters in either of these States, wanting blanks of any kind should address "First Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, District of Columbia."

District No. 2—Supplies blanks for the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, California and Oregon, Washington Territory and Nevada. Postmasters in either of these States or Territories, wanting blanks, should address "Blank Agent, New York, N. Y."

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmester is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. VIII., NO. 11. NEW YORK, AUGUST, 1868. WHOLE NO. 95.

THE NEW POSTAL LAW.

Below will be found a copy of an act just passed by Congress and approved by the President, embodying important amendments to the Postal Laws. We publish it entire, in order to give our readers an early opportunity of becoming familiar with its provisions; but before acting upon them, Postmasters will be careful to await the official instructions based upon this law, which will soon be prepared and issued by the Department. Postmasters at Money Order Offices will make no changes in the rate of fees charged (nor any other changes in money order business) until they receive the instructions of the Postmaster General or the Superintendent of the Money Order Office of the Department.

[PUBLIC, No. 98.]

AN ACT

To Further Amend the Postal Laws.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That when any writer of a letter, on which the postage is prepaid, shall endorse in writing or in print upon the outside thereof his name and address, the same, after remaining uncalled for at the post office to which it is directed thirty days, or the time the writer may direct, shall be returned to the said writer without additional postage, whether a specific request for such return be endorsed on the letter or not.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That all persons who receive money orders shall be required to pay therefor the following charges or fees, viz.: For one dollar or any sum not exceeding twenty dollars, a fee of ten cents shall be charged and exacted by the postmaster issuing said order; for all orders exceeding twenty dollars and not exceeding thirty dollars, the charge shall be fifteen cents; for all orders exceeding thirty dollars and not exceeding forty dollars, the charge shall be twenty cents; for all orders exceeding forty dollars and not exceeding fifty dollars, the fee shall be twenty-five cents; and furthermore, that the compensation of deputy postmasters for the payment of money orders is hereby increased from one-eighth to one-fourth of one per centum on the gross amount of orders paid at their respective offices, and that nothing contained in any act shall be so construed as to deprive postmasters at money-order offices of the compensation for transacting the money-order business fixed by the act of May seventeenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and modified as stated in this section: Provided, always, that the amount of such annual compensation, together with the postmaster's salary, shall not, in any case, exceed the salary established by law for postmasters of the first class.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That section thirty-five of the act of March third, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, shall be so construed as to permit weekly newspapers, properly folded and addressed, when sent to regular subscribers, in the county where printed and published, to be delivered free of postage, when deposited at the office nearest the office of publication; but nothing in this act shall be so construed as to require carriers to distribute said papers, unless postage is paid upon them at the rate of five cents per quarter, and such postage must be prepaid for a term of not less than one quarter or more than one year, either at the office of mailing or of delivery, at the option of the subscriber.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That in case of the loss of a money order, a duplicate thereof shall be issued by the superintendent of the money-order office without charge, on the application of the remitter or payee of the original: Provided, that the applicant furnish a certificate from the postmaster on whom the same was drawn that it had not been and would not thereafter be paid, and a similar certificate from the postmaster by whom it was issued that it had not and would not be repaid to the purchaser; and a second fee shall not be charged for a duplicate money order issued to replace a money order that has been rendered invalid because of non-presentation for payment within one year after its date, or because of illegal endorsements.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That if any person shall falsely forge or counterfeit, or willingly aid, assist, or abet in falsely forging or counterfeiting, or shall procure, directly or indirectly, to be falsely forged or counterfeited any postal money order, or any material signature or endorsement to any postal money order issued by the Post Office Department, or any of its agents, for the purpose and with the intent of obtaining or receiving, directly or indirectly, or of procuring or enabling others to obtain or receive, directly or indirectly, any sum or sums of money, and thereby to defraud either the United States or any person of such sum or sums of money, or any part thereof, or shall pass, utter, or publish, or attempt to pass, utter, or publish as true, any such forged or counterfeited postal money order with intent to defraud either the United States or any person of any sum or sums of money, knowing such postal money order, or any signature or endorsement thereon, to be so falsely forged or counterfeited, every such person shall be deemed guilty of felony, and being thereof duly convicted shall be sentenced to be imprisoned and kept at hard labor for a period of not less than two years nor more than five years, and to be fined in a sum not exceeding five thousand dollars.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint and employ on board of each of the mail steamers plying on the route between San Francisco, Japan, and China, and between San Francisco and Honolulu, (Hawaiian Islands,) a government agent in charge of the United States mails, at an annual salary of two thousand dollars each per annum.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to establish, in connection with the United States mail steamship service to Japan and China, a general postal agency at Shanghai, China, with such branch agencies at other ports in China and Japan as shall, in his judgment, be necessary for the prompt and efficient management of the postal service in those countries; and to pay the postal agents so appointed and employed a reasonable compensation for their services, in addition to the necessary expenses for rent, furniture, clerk hire, and so forth, to be allowed at each agency for conducting the postal business, a report on which shall be embraced in the annual report of the Postmaster General.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That for the more efficient management of the increased postal business connected with the foreign mail service, the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint in his department a superintendent of foreign mails at an annual salary of three thousand dollars, and also three additional clerks for that branch of the postal service, to wit: One of class four, and two of class three; and that the salary of the superintendent of the money-order system shall be three thousand dollars per annum.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is, authorized to appoint in the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General a chief of division for the dead-letter office at a salary of two thousand five hundred dollars per annum.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That if any person employed in any department of the post office establishment of the United States shall, willfully and knowingly, use or cause to be used in prepayment of postage any postage stamp or stamped envelope issued or which may hereafter be issued by authority of any act of Congress or of the Postmaster General which has already been once used for a like purpose, or shall remove or attempt to remove the cancelling or defacing marks from any such postage stamp or stamped envelope with intent to use or cause the use of the same a second time, or to sell or offer to sell the same, or shall remove from letters or other mail matter deposited in or received at a post office the stamps attached to the same in payment of postage, with intent to use the same a second time for a like purpose, or to sell or offer to sell the same, every such offender shall, upon conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of felony, and shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than three years,

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That if any person not employed in any department of the post office establishment of the United States shall commit any of the offences described in the preceding section of this act, every such person shall, on conviction thereof, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and be punished by imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than one year, or by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars for each offence, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That section nine of an act of Congress, approved July one, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, authorizing the sales of postage stamps and stamped envelopes at a discount, be so modified that the quantities of each sold at any one time to the same party, shall not exceed one hundred dollars in value; and that such sales shall be restricted to certain designated agents who will agree to sell again without discount under rules to be fixed by the Postmaster General.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That it shall not be lawful to deposit in a post office, to be sent by mail, any letters or circulars concerning lotteries, so-called gift concerts, or other similar enterprises offering prizes of any kind on any pretext whatever.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized and empowered to establish a blank agency for the Post Office Department, to be located in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, and to appoint one superintendent at an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars, one assistant superintendent at an annual salary of sixteen hundred dollars, and three other assistants at an annual salary of one thousand dollars each, and two laborers at an annual salary of seven hundred and twenty dollars each; and all other blank agencies are hereby abolished.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General be, and he is hereby, authorized to conclude arrangements with the post departments of foreign countries, with which international postal conventions have been or shall be concluded, for the exchange of small sums of money by means of postal orders, the maximum amount of which shall not exceed that fixed by law for domestic money orders, at such rates of change and under such rules and regulations as he may deem expedient; and that the expense incurred in establishing and conducting such system of exchange may be paid out of the proceeds of the money-order business.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That the proviso in section three of the act approved March three, eighteen hundred and twenty-five, entitled "An act to reduce into one the several acts establishing and regulating the Post Office Department," be, and the same is hereby, repealed: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall repeal any of the provisions of the act approved July eleven, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled "An act in relation to the Post Office Department."

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That if on the final settlement of the account of any postmaster it shall appear that such postmaster is indebted to the United States, and suit shall not be instituted within three years after the close of such account, then, and in that case, the sureties on the bond of such postmaster shall not be liable to the United States.

SEC. 18. And be it further enacted, That copies of the quarterly returns of postmasters, and of any papers pertaining to the accounts in the office of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department, certified by him under his seal of office, shall be admitted as evidence in the Courts of the United States in criminal prosecutions, in the same manner as the same are now admitted in civil cases, as provided in section fifteen of an act entitled "An act to change the organization of the Post Office Department, and to provide more effectually for the settlement of the accounts thereof," approved July second, eighteen hundred and thirty-six.

SEC. 19. And be it further enacted, That in all suits for the recovery of balances due from postmasters a copy, duly certified under the seal of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department, of the statement of any postmaster, special agent, or other person employed by the Postmaster General or the said Auditor for that purpose, that he has mailed a letter to such delinquent postmaster at the post office where the indebtedness accrued, or at his last and usual place of abode, and that a sufficient time has elapsed in the ordinary course of mail to have reached its destination, and has not received payment of such balance within the time designated in his instructions, shall be received as sufficient evidence in the Courts of the United States or other Courts that a demand has been made on such delinquent postmaster: Provided, nevertheless, That when the account of a late postmaster has been once adjusted and settled, and a demand made for the balance appearing to be due, and afterward allowances shall be made or credits entered on the account, it shall not be necessary to make a further demand for the new balance found to be due.

SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That the Postmaster General is hereby authorized to prescribe a uniform dress to be worn by the letter carriers at the several free delivery offices, and that any person not connected with this branch of the service who shall wear the uniform that may be prescribed in accordance herewith, shall be deemed guilty of misdemeanor, and being convicted thereof, shall, for every such offence, be fined not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the Court before which such conviction shall be had.

Approved, July 27, 1868.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO,
August, 1868.

To avoid the noise, smoke and confusion of our National Anniversary in the Metropolis, I prepared for a run into the country, and when the time of departure arrived I started for the point selected, where I had been promised good living, excellent fishing, boating, bathing and cool, bracing weather. A ride of sixteen hours brought me to my destination; but it was sixteen hours of the hottest work that ever I performed in my life. No rain had fallen for some time, and the whole country was parched by the burning sun. As we rolled along, clouds of dust enveloped the cars, and the nasty stuff, ground to impalpable powder, came in at the doors and windows, and whirled, and crawled, and addled, and drifted into eyes, noses, mouths and ears, and stuccoed the sweat-moistened faces of the passengers to such a degree as to spoil the identity of every one, male and female, and make it a difficult feat to tell whether or not the coaches were filled with Saxons or savages. Our road, for the most part, run through deep ravines and along steep hill-sides, which excluded every breath of air, which, together with the increasing heat of the atmosphere, converted the cars into furnaces almost hot enough to melt into one mass the stewed and begrimed inmates. And to add to our sufferings a number of children gave vent themselves into convulsions through fright at the supposed loss of parents, the dust having worked such hideous transformations in their countenances as to render them entirely unrecognizable to their own progeny. From early morning until well-nigh early morning of the next day, we endured torments almost infernal. Nor were we relieved much when we reached our journey's end. Although it was late, everybody appeared to be up. Coatless, hatless, and, I thought, in some cases, shirtless (although the obscurity of the time might have deceived me) individuals were lying around on the piazza and on the grass, some with fans and some without, and panting dogs with open mouths, far-protruding tongues, and drooping tails, walked lazily about as we entered the Quaking Lake House. The host, who had a huge towel in his hand, which he used apparently to mop up the pools of perspiration which were continually forming under his chin, met us in the hall, and after informing us as politely as possible that it was "monstrous warm," showed us into a large and nicely-furnished reception-room, where the thermometer attracting my attention, I consulted it, and found that on Quaking Lake, ever so many hundred feet above the level of the sea, at two o'clock in the morning, the mercury stood at 102! There wasn't much country air about this, and I wished myself back again from whence I started. Late as it was I indulged in a bath, and feeling somewhat fatigued after my ride, I thought I would retire and try to sleep. I was shown to a very cozy room with abundant ventilation; and divesting myself of all unnecessary drapery, was about to "turn in," when I thought I would roll the huge, old-fashioned, high-posted and curtained field bedstead closer to the windows, and meet any stray zephyrs half-way. It required more strength than I supposed to move this ponderous sleeping machine (it must have weighed a ton); but I was determined to do it, so, applying all the force at my command, I gave it a violent push, when, instead of moving toward the window, it fell down and apart with a crash which brought the whole waking household to my door to know "what in Heaven's name was the matter?" Now I do not exaggerate when I say that I was dreadfully startled at this occurrence, nor did the inquirers on the other side of my chamber-door (I thought I heard some female voices) improve the matter, for I knew I was not dressed to receive company, and I was not familiar enough with the door-fastenings to know how much pressure they would resist. From the murmuring outside I could hear the words, "suicide," "awe-struck," "hit a drinkin," etc., but whether they were applied to my case or somebody else's I did not know. All this time I remained perfectly quiet, but feeling the necessity of doing something speedily, I sang out to "hold on a minute," and the sound of my voice seemed to calm the excitement. Taking advantage of which I inclosed myself in my boots and long togs and opened the door, and was confronted by the perspiring Maitre d'hotel. To save myself from being found fault with, I assumed the offensive, and, with a feigned indignation, asked why I was subjected to mortification and annoyance incident to the fall of his ancient, rickety, tumble-down elephant's nest. He at once commenced to apologize, and said it suffered violently on many occasions, but never showed any indications of weakness before, and the present accident must be entirely attributable to shrinkage caused by the dry, hot weather. I accepted his apology, and he at once put four or five men and women to work to repair damages, and, after as much labor as would be required to build a good-sized barn, they succeeded in raising and restoring the big thing to its proper condition; and I was left alone in my glory, but not to sleep. I extinguished my light and sat at the window looking out into the gloom and listening to the voices of the night. All around the house, on the trees and shrubbery, thousands of crickets chirped, and katydids jerked out their familiar strains, while myriads of fire-flies flashed their brilliants as accompaniments. In the swamps and along the shores of the lake countless little frogs were filling the air with their croakings and monotonous droning, while the deep baying of the veterans, following each other in regular succession, and sometimes altogether, reverberated through the hills, waking up the echoes and dying away in the distance like muffled thunder. All this time no breath or sigh of air disturbed a leaf or a blade of grass, but a fixed, smothering, scorching atmosphere pervaded everywhere, bringing such discomfort and physical torture as to make the idea of suicide by drowning in ice water far from unpleasant. In this contemplative mood, I sat and perspired until my eyelids began to grow heavy, and I clambered up into the high old bed and in a few moments was under the influence of "Murphy." I had not lain long, however, before I was startled with a cry or shriek so wild and unnatural as to drive every vestige of sleep away, and in a state of extraordinary moistness I rose to a sitting posture to ascertain the cause. The night was so intensely dark that it was impossible to see in any direction, but another terrific screech caused me to look over my left shoulder, and there, glaring at me out of the dense blackness, were two great, fiery-red round eyes, that seemed to grow in size and brilliancy the more I stared at them, and apparently approaching gradually nearer. Now I am not easily frightened, and my unbelief in the supernatural is deep and abiding; but I am free to confess that a curdling sensation crept all over me, and I would have preferred to be elsewhere. The impression came over me that some wild animal—a panther or wild cat, perhaps—had clambered up one of the trees close to the house, and from thence had leaped into the window, and having its victim within reach, was leisurely preparing to spring on it; the more I thought of this thing the more convinced I was that this theory was correct, and in a state of desperation (for I had nothing to defend myself with) I shouted for help. My outcries had no effect on my enemy, whatever it was, but they soon brought aid to my door, and a gruff voice asked, "What's the matter?" "Burst open the door," said I, "there is a wild animal of some kind in the room, and I am fearful of an attack any moment." With a crash, the door flew open, and my host rushed in with a light in his hand; when, lo and behold, the supposed formidable quadruped turned out to be nothing more nor less than a huge white owl! which had taken possession of the vacant fire-place in the chamber. I felt a little abashed at the discovery, and begged for the life of the creature—but this was unnecessary, for I was assured he was a kind of a pet rat-catcher, and was "worth more than a dozen tar-yers, and was like as not after sumthin when he flew into the room." He was soon driven out with a broom; and after expressing regret at the trouble I had caused, I was again left to myself. I was not disturbed again. My initial night adventures afforded a deal of fun for a very social set of folks who were visiting the lake, and it served to introduce me to some good souls. But the fervent heat was a great drawback on our comfort; and the news of many sudden deaths from the heat, in various places, made us all anxious to get hold of expected newspapers, by post, from localities in which we were interested. Some we received, and some we did not, and those we did receive were so crumpled and soiled that it looked as if every man, woman and child in post offices through which they had passed had subjected them to the ordeal of reading and rumpling. In some cases the wrappers were mutilated and defaced, and in others they were gone entirely. Pictorials and magazines addressed to lady visitors, when not abstracted entirely, had been served in the same way, and the marks of dirty fingers, fragments of finger nails, and stray hairs—some of them long enough to show they came from female heads—were frequently found on and in the folds and leaves. A comparison of notes showed that this contemptible practice is not confined to the region of Quaking Lake—but on many routes (all of which I was careful to note for a certain purpose) it is indulged in to a frightful extent. Now, I am probably not sufficiently familiar with postal business to speak correctly on the subject, but my opinion is, that when a newspaper is mailed, and the proper postage paid thereon, it is entitled to respect and protection—and its detention, mutilation, or destruction in transit, is not only criminal and punishable in some way or other, but it displays a meanness that never can be found in the composition of a truly upright lady or gentleman. A good deal of this unholy work is probably done by privileged setters and loungers, who are too poor or too penurious to subscribe for a paper or to patronize the neighboring newsman, or by prurient feminines in search of sensation illustrations more positively than passively suggestive, who in some way or other exercise such influence over postmasters and their weak-kneed assistants, as to restrain them from seeing and rebuking such contemptible, cowardly and criminal conduct.

I do not believe the U. S. MAIL is taken at any office where such scandalous conduct is tolerated; but I do hope that in their ripping and tearing operations they may accidentally get a copy of your paper in their snaky fingers, and read all they find there. Upon the supposition that some of these unclean birds got hold of this number, I will say to them that it is as much of a crime to steal a hog as to steal a horse, only the former indexes the filthy instincts of the thief; and the individual who steals, mutilates, or delays, for selfish purposes, whether an official or a favored wart, must rank in the category of crime with swine stealers

On several occasions I have heard some of your subscribers complain of the non-receipt of their papers; but, knowing how careful and systematic you are, I was satisfied the fault was not yours. The inference, therefore, is that they were gobbled up en route, and if so you should be truly thankful. A notoriously dishonest fellow in pursuit of plunder, visiting a camp-meeting at Doddleboro Ridge, mistaking a pocket Bible for a pocketbook, skillfully lifted it out of the coat-tail of a praying member, and hurried away to inspect his loot. His dismay, on discovering what he had done, so shocked his long dormant conscience, that it woke up and wrought so effectively, that in less than half an hour he was kneeling beside the man he tried to injure. From thence he rose a reformed man, joined the church, became one of its most influential and forcible exhorters, and he is there now, so Mawley says. Now, if you only knew who dishonestly took your papers before they reached their destination, my impression is you would find that they worked the same reform as in the Bible case.

Of course, many people attempt to defraud the Government by using newspapers as vehicles to convey articles and information which are subject to letter postage, and I presume extraordinary care and vigilance are required to detect such things, but I can not believe that papers and magazines to regular subscribers are so used, and I think transient papers can be examined without covering them with dirty finger-marks, rumpling them so as to make them almost unreadable, or mutilating them so as to make them unfit to be seen or handled when received—that's all.

☞ Postmasters who mail direct to Brooklyn, N. Y., are requested not to send to that office letters directed to "Brooklyn, E. D." (Eastern District), which is the local name for Williamsburgh Post Office. Letters directed "South Brooklyn" should be sent to Brooklyn.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.
NEW YORK, August 1868.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 95, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

☞JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Esq., has been appointed by the Postmaster-General Superintendent of Foreign Mails, an office created by the new law, published on our first page. Mr. Blackfan has for several years most acceptably filled the post of Chief Clerk of the Post Office Department, and as such has had supervision of business pertaining to the foreign mails. He is consequently well fitted by experience for the position to which he has been appointed.

☞ The attention of registration clerks at some of the larger offices is called to the impropriety of affixing written postmarks to registered package envelopes. A printed postmark adds to the security of a registered package, and should always be affixed at offices which are provided with the necessary marking stamps.

Letters from Post Office People.

We have received this month a rather unusual number of communications on postal matters (which we are always glad to receive, though we have not always space for their immediate publication). They are from our subscribers in various parts of the Union, and by way of introducing them to each other, as well as to the rest of our readers, we publish a few of them below; and first, as a new comer, "the gentlemsh from Florida has the floor."

POST OFFICE, St. A——, Fla., July, 1868.

Editor U. S. MAIL—Being a constant reader of THE MAIL, I will take the liberty of sending you a few notes from the "Sunny South," hoping the same may be considered worthy of your notice, and repay your readers the trouble of perusal. I beg to be considered as one of the post-office fraternity, having the interest of the Post Office Department, its importance and usefulness in promoting civilization, etc., the responsibility resting upon all connected with it, in view. first of all, let me say that I fear the points just mentioned are by no means fully appreciated, either by the public at large or by the post-office officials. The liberality, kindness and forbearance of the Government toward its employees (and to the public), is equaled by none other on the face of the globe. I claim to know whereof I speak when I make this assertion. This may sound strange to some, particularly to those who are surrounded by all the appliances of a "superior civilization," and who denounce with a loud voice the shortcomings of the Post Office Department generally, and "their" postmaster and clerks in particular, and who seem to think that the "millennium" ought to have arrived, although it is pretty well known it has not yet made its appearance, and poor mortals will make a mistake once in a while. To all such I would strongly recommend a trip of one, two or three thousand miles from the "centre," to some little-known Territory or State (subject to reconstruction), where the Government gets about two cents for every hundred dollars expended in the Post Office Department, and if, after remaining there long enough to gather facts, they do not appreciate the Post Office Department and the liberality of the United States—well, then, I have no more to say to them upon that subject. But I do not claim perfection of the same by any means, on the contrary, great improvements can be, and I have no doubt will be made by degrees, the most important of which is prepayment of everything sent by mail. I would most earnestly urge this upon the department, and upon every one having any influence in it. The difficulty and inconvenience of collecting postages on delivery is particularly felt in this State, which is flooded every winter by visitors from the North, who get large paper mails only for a short time. Every one will perceive the trouble and "vexation of spirit," consequent on collecting on such matter. For instance, mail arrives in the evening; visitor sends to post office for mail; papers are "held for postage;" messenger is informed of the fact; but this being the case with perhaps twenty persons, he may be excused for either misinforming some or neglecting to inform others (at the hotel). Visitor goes away next morning. Result: total loss of postage to the department, and to visitor his papers. Perhaps the latter has a receipt in his pocket for postage paid a quarter in advance at some other office, which fact is not to be perceived by any known method of communication by the post-office man, visitor deeming it unnecessary to inform him, and being greatly outraged and insulted by the latter observing "regulations," and I must confess with some reason. Now I claim that prepayment is not only practicable but a necessity, to promote system and justice to all, and would amply repay the community for even a little additional cost or trouble, if that was necessary, saying nothing of the burden removed from post-office officials and benefit to the Government. There being no demand for old newspapers in this part of the country, even these cannot be sold in many instances. If any additional inducement is required for the adoption of prepayment by the public, let it be the forwarding of prepaid matter a short distance—say within the limits of a State. This would be a great accommodation, particularly to travelers. Of course, it is not expected that a person will require this of the Post Office Department but in few instances, and only for a short time. The details of this system I will leave to abler hands to speculate upon. While speaking of this subject, I will mention the great carelessness existing in the community in mailing transient newspapers. Many are "done up" so badly that the wrapper comes off at the least movement of the papers; the address so badly written that a Chinese superscription could be more easily deciphered. Of course it is not supposed that the direction on a "paper" is likely to be as legible as on a letter, though some of the latter are bad enough, and written by persons who could do better. For instance: ladies, who take the smallest possible envelopes, put the smallest possible writing upon them (evidently to be read with the aid of a microscope). This is rendered still more illegible by being stamped over once or twice before it arrives at the office of delivery—perhaps after being missent. I would also urge upon all patrons of the mails the importance of writing out in full the name of the State in addressing letters and papers. I venture to say that the amount of missent matter would be greatly diminished if this was done.

I would like to say much more that is "on my mind," but I am afraid I have already intruded upon your patience.

I am yours truly, C. H. B.

One could hardly imagine a theme less likely to inspire a poet than that of the prepayment of postage; and yet our friend from Pennsylvania has managed to find material for verse even in that unpromising field We should modestly suppress the first portion of his letter, were it not that our readers will be sure to treat it as "poetic license:"

H——, Pa, July, 1868.

Editor U. S. MAIL—THE U. S. MAIL has again arrived for the month of July. I have again read its contents; the more I read your valuable and indispensable sheet the better I like it. I would not do without it, in my position as P. M., not for five times its price; it spreads the duty of a P. M. out clear to his view; as a spy-glass, it brings many things to his sight, that he can not see well without. Then it also brings many communications from various intellects concerning the postal matters, which are very interesting. I was very much pleased with a communication from "Out West," in the July number. Now, Mr. Editor, that just suits my views. If that hole could be filled up by a little legislation what a great trouble would be saved and the P. O. Dept. be the gainer. These are facts which no one will doubt. Can you tell, Mr. Editor, how to cause the Department to take action on having papers of all description paid in advance, and save the irksome labor of collecting at distributing offices? I have had the trial of collecting paper postage in advance (and though only a short trial at that, it was to my sorrow). You may perhaps ask what trial, and what sorrow? The trial is this: at the commencement of the quarter T. B. & L. come for their news. They are in a hurry, you have not the time to collect the postage, and if you speak of it, they say "we will make it all right in a few days;" and thus it goes on until the end of the quarter, when Mr. P. M. must advance it himself, and in many cases he never gets his own again. You may say, Make him pay in advance, or don't deliver his news. This we have a right to do, but then we make bad friends, etc.

Now this all could be avoided by a little legislation, and having everything that passes through the mail paid in advance. I have heard several persons say in my presence, that they never paid postage previous to my predecessor, who resigned in my favor: whether the Government ever got its pay or not I cannot say. But I must close, hoping that this subject will be hammered at until the object is gained, and that ere long.

Then speak out, thou U. S. MAIL,
Hit the mark, right on the nail,
Carry joy o'er all the land,
Advocate our just demand.

In advance let news be paid
From the office where they're made;
Then will be our duties sweet,
Then will be our mail complete.

Spread the tidings far and near,
May our rulers see and hear;
May they be kind and hear our call—
It is the will of nearly all.

Then speed on, thou U. S. MAIL,
May all with joy thy pages hail,
So may it bring to view and light
What others did not, in their might.

M. K.

The remarks of the gentleman from Michigan, whose letter comes next in order, are rather despondent in tone, and he is moreover in a somewhat fault-finding mood. It is satisfactory to know, however, that most of his observations apply only to P. M.'s who don't take THE MAIL. We fear that in his haste to catch the editor tripping, he has caught a bad fall himself. The "antagonistic statements" to which he alludes are reconciled by the fact that the Regulation requiring domestic rates to be charged on forwarded foreign letters has been rescinded since August, 1867:

St. J——, Mich., July, 1868.

Editor U. S. MAIL—Your welcome visitor for this month is received. If you have room in your next issue, I wish to say to the many inquirers after knowledge who ask divers questions relative to their duties, that if they would carefully read the Laws and Regulations a large proportion would find that they have just the information they are in search of. However, there are doubtless many officials, who seldom if ever use said Laws and Regulations, that may in the perusal of your paper get an idea of their duties. I am confident that a great number of the postmasters of the country do not perform their duties as required by Law and Regulation; for instance, let me ask how many collect postage on all transient as well as regular printed matter before they deliver it? How many ever weigh a letter, and if double or treble weight charge the excess on the letter, sending, if direct, a way bill? How many on receipt of letters, weigh heavy ones, and collect whatever may be due? How many effectively cancel all postage stamps before they leave the office? How many forward printed matter free? How many carefully examine all transient printed matter, and if written upon, or containing anything mailable, collect letter postage at three cents for every half ounce? How many examine circulars, and, if written upon, hold them for postage? How many send registered letters through a D. P. O. instead of direct? How many when a registered letter is received for delivery, enter at once on the blank headed "Receipts for Registered Letters delivered" the "No.," "postmark," "date," etc.? (If my brother P. M., "T. M. C., of C——, Ga.," had done this, he would not have had to send his receipt through the D. P. O.)

In short, Mr. Editor, how many, so far as possible, comply with their obligations and their oath? I would now ask the Editor of THE MAIL to explain two antagonistic statements. One is your answer to "J. B. L., T—, O.," and "T. S., M—, Ind.," in the August (1867) No. of THE MAIL, to the effect that "Foreign letters when forwarded must be charged up the regular domestic rates," etc., and in your last in answer to "J. M. M., A——, Nev." You say such letters can be forwarded without additional postage; but, fearing I have too long trespassed on your time, I forbear for the present.

Very truly yours, J. M. C., P. M.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Post Bills, etc.—G. B. E., G——, Ky.—1. Post bills, etc., are required to be sent with the quarterly returns. 2. A post bill must accompany every monthly return of dead letters. See particularly section 380, Reg. 1866.

Merchants' Bills sent by Private Hand.—I. L., O——, Cal.—A private citizen may carry a bill in an unstamped envelope, over a post route, without violating the post-office laws.

Working on Roads.—A. M. M., B—— S——, Va.—Neither postmasters, nor their assistants, are exempt from working on the roads. The only exemptions are stated in Sections 39 and 40, Laws of 1866.

Letters to the Department.—A. P. M., R——, Mich.—We presume the instruction in section 34 of Regulations, that the letter should be postmarked, refers to postmarking the envelopes only, though the letter itself should contain the name of the post office, county, and State, plainly written or printed.

Looking for Letters.—C. T., B——, Vt.—We consider it the duty of a post-office clerk to look for letters every time he is requested to do so. It is far more satisfactory to the applicant to know that a proper examination has been made than to trust to the memory of the clerk.

Postbilling Unpaid Letters.—S. W. K., A——, Ill.—The regulations are clear respecting the use of postbills. By section 92 they are required only when mailing direct, and no account is to be kept of letters not postbilled. As the Superintendent of the Railway Postal Service has instructed you not to postbill certain letters, of course you keep no account of them. An account is kept by the postal clerks; should you also keep one, there would be two charges on the same letter, against the same office.

Making up Mails.—L. M. S., J——, Mich.—It is the duty of postmasters to make up mails for other offices, and send them by the earliest conveyance. Sec. 75, Reg. of 1866.

Balance of Account.—A. M., S——, Ill.—The balance of account for a previous quarter is to be entered in the General Account. Postmasters should understand that nothing enters into the Quarterly Account Current, but the accounts for the quarter for which it is made. Sec. 334, Reg. of 1866.

Envelopes.—H. J. E., G——, Ill.—Envelopes for official use are not furnished to offices of the fourth class.

Request Books.—S. B., W——, R. I.—No attention is to be paid to the request to return books, if not called for, unless provision is made for the prepayment of postage for such return. Books sent to the Dead Letter Office are returned to the person who mailed them, if possible.

Cigar Boxes as Mailable Matter.—G. de L., H——, N. Y.—Cigar boxes are not, strictly speaking, mailable matter, but if they do not contain anything that can injure mail matter, they may be mailed under Section 245, Laws of 1866.

Disposition of Copper Cents.—S. E. B., A——, Ga.—If you cannot dispose of copper cents as money, sell them for old copper, as which they are worth their coin value. They are not a legal tender for a greater sum than four cents.

Insufficient Receipts.—F. W. R., R——, W. Va.—When the receipts of an office are not sufficient to pay the salary, the postmaster will be paid by a special draft; but in all such cases of insufficiency, the Postmaster General should be immediately informed, together with a statement of the cause.

Insufficiently Prepaid Matter.—J. W. R., A——, N. H.—The deficiency on insufficiently prepaid matter received at an office, may, unless accompanied by a postbill, be paid by affixing stamps and canceling them; but it seems that this method would either add to the trouble on delivery, or else subject the postmaster to the payment for the stamps.

Location of Post Office, etc.—J. G., St. M——, Minn.—1. When the Government does not own the building, postmasters are generally allowed to select the site for their respective post offices. 2. A postmaster who is a Justice of the Peace may administer the oath to his assistant; but 3. An assistant should not make oath to the Quarterly Returns, except in the unavoidable absence, or inability of the postmaster—this oath must be made by the postmaster himself.

Quarterly Returns.—L. B. W., M—— H——, Ala.—We have no means of knowing whether your return was acceptable to the Postmaster General. You can only learn this from himself..... W. A., P—— P——, Texas.—An affirmation to Quarterly Returns instead of an oath is allowable; but, of course, you understand it must be made before a person empowered to administer oaths.

Foreign Letter Marked Paid.—M. L. S., H——, Texas.—The word "paid" on a letter for Germany, is not sufficient, even though the letter bears the mark of having had a stamp affixed. The loss of stamps from letters is an occasional petty accident and annoyance, to which letter-writers are subject, and to the consequences of which they must cheerfully submit.

Legal Tender.—F. K., T—— C——, Iad.—One and two cent coins are a legal teader for any amount not exceeding four cents..... E. D. M., R——, Ind.—There is a limit to the amounts, for which all the small coins of the United States are a legal teader. Post-office business is rather peculiar—in it receipts generally being in very small amne, while its payments are as generally in large sums. To meet the exigencies of this condition of things, postmasters must expect to bear a small loss in exchanging their small coin and bills for larger denominations. This question of receiving small coins or bills, the disposition to be made of them, and the payment of contractors and others, is very frequently presented to us; we would therefore add to our suggestion above, that, while postmasters, contractors and others are entitled to the benefits of the law regulating legal tender, yet in very many cases it is not courteous or judicious to exact them too rigidly.

Franking.—H. A. B., B——, O.—An assessor has not the right to frank The Internal Revenue Record to an assistant assessor. The franking privilege is confined to his official business..... E. W., A——, Neb.—A postmaster has the right to frank a request to another postmaster to forward letters..... T. S., S. W. R. R., Ga.—Though assistant assessors have only a very limited franking privilege, yet Route Agents have nothing to do with the postage on their letters received from a post office. If offered, according to Section 470, a Route Agent should refuse to receive all letters not properly prepaid, or franked.

Unclaimed Engravings.—P. J. K., V——, Pa.—Unclaimed engravings should be sent to the Dead Letter Office. Section 390, Regulations 1866.

Forwarding.—J. A. F., B——, Vt.—1. Neither regular nor transient newspapers should be forwarded, unless prepaid additional postage. If a subscriber to a paper removes, he should notify the publisher to change the post-office address on the paper, and should take from the former postmaster a receipt for postage, to be exhibited to the postmaster at his new residence. 2. A weekly paper may be sent, free of postage, to a subscriber living in the county, even though the office of delivery is in an adjoining county; provided, it is the office at which he usually receives his mail matter. Sec. 229, Reg. 1866..... H. J. C., C——, Mich., and others.—Unpaid letters, when forwarded, should be charged with additional postage, the whole charge should be entered in the Account of Mails sent, while the original charge against your office should be entered in the Account of Overcharges..... M. V. P., S—— P——, Wis.—1. You can notify publishers, free of postage, by sending the notice to the postmaster. Sec. 392, Reg. 1866. 2. See above, answer to J. A. F.

Registration.—J. R. L., P——, N. J.—I. Transcripts of registered letters received and sent, are no longer required to be sent with the quarterly returns. 2. A letter bearing a request to be kept till called for, should be held at least one week, then advertised, and then held about a month, unless there are reasons to believe that it can be delivered by holding it for a longer time, in which case it must be indorsed "Special, hold for delivery," and may be retained three months. Secs. 365, 367, Reg. 1866..... W. D., S—— V——, Pa.—You can procure blank applications for registered letter envelopes from the Third Assistant Postmaster General..... A. T. L., P—— Y——, N. Y.—Have you studied the regulations for registration carefully and thoroughly? We commend to your especial attention paragraph 6, page 4, of those regulations. We are not more explicit in our answer, because we want you to study for yourself. Our aim is to aid in understanding the post-office laws and regulations, where they are liable to misconstruction, rather than to take the place of them in instructing.

Postage.—S. S., P—— A——, W. T.—The postage on letters to Victoria, British Columbia, has not been reduced to 6 cents. The reduction applies only to the Dominion of Canada.....G. M. & Co., S—— F——, Cal. The sample you send is not considered a newspaper, and is therefore rated according to the fourth column in our Table of Foreign Postages, viz.: 6 or 8 cents per 4 oz. or fraction thereof..... J. U. F., S—— P——, Ill.—Entomological specimens should be charged at letter rates..... J. S. U., G——, N. J.—The charge, at quarterly rates, on a daily paper commencing June 12th and ending August 12th, should be for one quarter, and the amount should be entered for the quarter ending June 30th..... C. L. H., D——, Md.—Dry goods and notions should be charged at letter rates..... C. H. H., U——, N. Y.—Architectural drawings containing manuscript explanations and references should be charged at letter rates..... J. H. H., C——, Tenn.—Samples of wheat or coffee are chargeable at letter postage rates..... L. H., R——, N. H.—You do right to collect postage on unpaid transient matter arriving at your office. Transient matter should be prepaid, but the laws and regulations expressly provide, "if any mail matter on which prepayment is required, shall reach its destination without such prepayment the prepaid rates shall be charged and collected on delivery." Sec. 150, Reg. of 1866. Postage must be collected quarterly in advance, or at the transient rates. Not less than one quarter's postage can be collected. See Section 154 of Regulations of 1866..... S. S. S., N—— Y——, N. Y.—By treaty between the North German Union and the United States, each party has the right to fix the postages on newspapers mailed; the latter has fixed it at 4 cents, and the former, we presume, at 10 centimes; were it not so, there would be no charge and fine on your papers on delivery.

THE Independance Belge publishes a letter from a merchant of Galata containing very curious narration, namely, that the Italian brig San Gennaro, having lately been becalmed in its course from Naples to Odessa in the waters of the Greek Archipelago, the crew engaged in fishing. The head cook, who was expert in the art, had already succeeded in spearing several fine tunnies, when he struck his harpoon into the body of an enormous sword-fish, which after a time was hauled on deck with much labor. The ivory sword was four feet long, and the total length from its point to the end of the tail not less than fifteen feet. But great was the astonishment of the crew, when the carpenter, in cutting open the body, discovered in the stomach a moderate-sized box, stamped with a cross and stars, the emblems of Turkey, and bearing these words in French, "Poste locale." It was a Constantinople letter-box containing nearly thirty letters, which the captain took charge of with a view to a punctual delivery.

A "very good story, and very well told;" but we should have been glad to know the name of the captain, also that of the cook, and the exact dimensions of the "moderate-sized" box. The particulars as to this latter would have been very useful in enabling readers of the story to judge how big a thing may be safely "swallowed."

BURGLARIES AT POST OFFICES are again becoming frequent, and we would advise postmasters in all sections of the country to guard against these visits by making arrangements—when that can conveniently be done—for sleeping accommodations for a clerk in the office. If that is not feasible, a good watch-dog should remain on the premises at night. Postage stamps and stamped envelopes, when appropriated by burglars, are charged to the postmaster, and he is obliged to account for them the same as if they had been sold.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retlino and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Tbralla, Incholi, Jaffa, Kerussund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tsaitcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.
2. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
3. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)
4. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pecific) rate is abolished.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Post Office Blanks.

DISTRICT No. 1—Supplies blanks for the District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakotah, Kansas, Nebraska, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. Postmasters in either of these States, wanting blanks of any kind should address "First Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, District of Columbia."

DISTRICT No. 2—Supplies blanks for the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, California and Oregon, Washington Territory and Nevada. Postmasters in either of these States or Territories, wanting blanks, should address "Blank Agent, New York, N. Y."

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

O. Laws, Edition of 1866.*]

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

CIRCULARS, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

ON MISCELLANEOUS MAILABLE MATTER (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over four oz. in weight, 2 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 4 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 6 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 8 cts.

By a recent order of the Postmaster General, the fifth subdivision of the 42d instruction of the Post Office Law, approved March 3, 1863, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows: "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two ounces."

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds, roots, cuttings or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Weekly newspapers and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from countries bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞ All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short-paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly prepayment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribers. No such paper should be delivered, unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office, or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so prepaid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail, they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removal from office for neglect.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Important to Postmasters.

IMPROVED STAMPING INK.

ALL know the great want of a good Stamping Ink. We offer a superior article now used by the New York, Boston and Philadelphia Post Offices. Our Stamping Ink is always ready for use, does not dry up, evaporate or gum the stamp, and is indelible. Price for the Black, $2; Blue, $3; Red, $3; per can, containing 1 lb. Can be sent by Express or Mail. If sent by mail, Letter Postage to be added. FRANCIS & LOUTREL,

TO POSTMASTERS.

COLLECT POSTAGE IN ADVANCE.

TRYON'S SYSTEM for Newspaper and Box Accounts enables you to do this in accordance with Postal Law and Regulations with ease, certainty and little cost of time and labor.

The blank forms are on folio sheets of the usual size of post office blanks, and are arranged to embrace a period of four quarters.

Fifteen sheets for offices of the 4th class and ten for the 5th class are ordinarily sufficient to last that period, and will be sent, together with a copy of the explanations, directions and examples, by mail, postpaid, as follows:

For ten sheets.....$1.50
For fifteen sheets.....2.00

The blank form for Postage Receipts, $4 per 1,000 Receipts. Address

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29, 1866.—I have examined "Stone's Post Office Account Book, for the Quarterly Record of Box Rents, Newspaper and Letter Postages," and believe it well calculated to facilitate the business of Post Offices, and to insure accuracy in keeping the accounts, and that its use by Postmasters will tend to increase the revenues of the Department.

ST. JOHN B. L. SKINNER,
First Ass't P. M. General.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. VIII., NO. 12. NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER, 1868. WHOLE NO. 96.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, August, 1868.

My sojourn at Quaking Lake was pleasant while it lasted, but it was materially abbreviated by circumstances over which I had not the slightest control. Very soon after my arrival the women folk somehow or other found out that I was a member of the ancient and honorable order of bachelors, and my years and appearance carrying with them convincing evidence of my tractability, the unprotected and unmated ones—there were four—went for me, and almost every hour of the day I was called upon to chaperon one or all of them in a ride, a ramble or a drive. "O, Mr. Tonson, won't you drive us up to Muddylove?"—(a model post office, if it is a small one), or "Do please come with us, Mr. Tonson, for a ramble in Huckleberry Park," or "Won't you ride with us to Grogway Glen (an outlying great feature of Quaking Lake), you dear old soul?" fell on my ear as frequently, but not as crushingly, as the infernal old gong that summoned us to our meals. And here I would note, that my experience as a traveler has taught me that the loudest bells and the noisiest gongs always unmistakably indicate poor fare, and limited at that. One day, as I sat poring over an interesting book, two or three members of this rural Sorosis (an abbreviation, I presume, for sorrowful sisters), waited on me and tendered an invitation to take a row on the water with them, and without giving the matter a thought I consented. Now, I am no boatist—that part of my education was entirely neglected; but nevertheless, I handed three ladies to seats in the trowel-shaped vessel, and taking one myself, I grasped the oars in true "Jolly Young Waterman" stylo, and shoved off. I had often seen the thing done, and had no doubt of its simplicity and my ability. Just at the point from where we started, a brawling brook entered the lake, but it had been swollen to the magnitude of a small river by a heavy rain up in the hills the day previous, and shot out into the calm expanse with extraordinary force. An awkward stroke or two swung our craft into this current, and out we went with it until it lost its force. As the shore receded and the boat advanced without the least exertion on my part, I entirely forgot my responsibility, and was calling the attention of the party to a flight of birds overhead, when I was awoke to a realization of it by a request from one of the ladies to "go ahead now, Mr. Tonson." I immediately felt for the oars which I had relinquished temporarily to adjust my spectacles, when lo and behold one of them was gone, and none of us had observed it as it floated away. Here was a fix. I looked all round, but couldn't see it, and noticing that the ladies appeared rather uneasy, I, in my quiet way, you know, said "it was a matter of no consequence, we would go ashore and get another one." As I made this remark I glanced landward and it appeared to me that we had, somehow or other, floated further than I had supposed. The first thing to be done was to turn the boat round. This I accomplished after considerable exertion, but the "go ahead" part was more difficult. Suddenly I bethought me of the sculling process, and thrusting the oar over the stern and facing it, I commenced churning vigorously just as I had seen others do often. I worked away and watched the wake in the water, and imagined I was making the land in gallant style, and secretly resolved at the same time to stay there when it was reached, when I was almost dumbfounded by one of the ladies saying to me, in rather a tart manner: "O, do stop your nonsense, Mr. Tonson, and row us ashore—you have turned the boat round about a dozen times, and if you keep on we will all get dizzy and fall overboard." As she spoke I turned about, and on my word I do not believe I had moved an inch from the spot where I discovered the loss of the oar. It had become exceedingly warm in the meantime, and the last breath of air had died away. Suddenly a growl was heard in the distance, and looking toward the southwest I saw a great black cloud swiftly rising, and swelling and blackening as it rose—seams of fire zigzagged through it, followed by a peal of thunder which fairly shook the earth. All at once a rushing sound was heard in the forest which girt the shore, and the great trees swayed and bowed their green crowns—and soon a fierce blast of wind swept over the hitherto calm lake, and in a moment its whole surface appeared to be boiling. Our boat rocked and danced in the fierce wind, and in attempting to bring her bow round, a sudden squall struck her on the side, and over she went.

Of course all hands went over with her, and in an instant we were splashing about in the water like a school of porpoises. I am something of a swimmer, and with great presence of mind I huddled the screaming creatures about me, who were kept afloat by their parachute-like apparel, and bade them be calm and I would land them all in safety. Meantime the wind blew furiously—the rain began to fall in torrents—thunder deafened and lightning almost blinded me; and to add to the unpleasantness of the occasion, the skirts of my fascinating companions became so water-soaked as to lose their buoyancy and they began to sink, and as they sunk they shrieked and clung to me with such tenacity, that I at last began to think things looked a little mixed. I did not know how much of a yawning cavern lay under us, but I was satisfied there was water enough to engulph us all and leave not a bubble to tell where we rested. Occasionally, with painful effort, I would raise myself high enough to enable me to sight the shore, but the weight of the women and their deadly clutches at my neck and shoulders were too much, and I found I would have to go under. In a moment, all the years of my life flashed before me with their deeds of omission and commission. I saw all I had done, and wished to live to undo some of them. I thought of Mary Jane and that long ago lost letter; and then the wrong inflicted on me by the non-delivery of that all-involving missive came sweeping down like an avalanche upon my excited brain—driving thence the crowd of memories that were thronging there for a hearing. All that I had said for and against post office management, came back in letters of living light, but I saw nothing to pain me, nothing that I could add to or diminish, nothing to regret, nothing to take back, and the hope rose within me, that after I had gone through this hydraulic process for stopping the circulation, some one more capable, more zealous, and more convincing would take up the subject and keep it alive. As I thus mused, I gradually sunk, and the cluster of trembling, shrieking women clung so tightly to me as to entirely prevent every effort to keep us afloat, and, with a brief prayer and a bursting sigh, I looked skyward, as I supposed for the last time, and went down—about four feet—where I found good footing on a level sandy bottom. In a moment I was myself again—cast the feminines off, and told them to stand up, and bravely they obeyed. Almost as suddenly as the storm commenced it subsided. The wind fell, the rain ceased, the clouds opened and the bright sun came down upon us, and in gallant style I headed the party and we waded manfully and womanfully to terra firma. Out of danger, we laid our heads together to keep our misfortune a profound secret—for not a soul had seen us, we believed—but judge of our mortification at meeting, at a turn of the road, a crowd of persons coming lakeward, who had been informed by some "peeping Tom," that an old Baptist preacher was immersing his whole congregation in the lake, at the mouth of the brook.

Of course our moist condition excited surprise, and inquiries fell thick and fast. I had no explanation to give, nor had the ladies just then. We returned to the hotel to refurnish. In the office I found a letter requiring my immediate presence elsewhere. I sent word to my shipwrecked friends, that to my great regret (?) I was suddenly called away, but would soon return. I have not been there since; and, owing to the lateness of the season, I think I will defer my return for about eleven years.

Now, if I had been suddenly cut off in that never-to-be-forgotten expedition, it might have made it bad for me, no matter whether my official friends would have felt sad, glad or indifferent; but as I was not—and for which, I trust, I feel truly thankful—I hope to be able to continue through the columns of THE MAIL, from time to time, my observations on men and things connected with the postal service. In attempting to benefit a certain class, I perhaps lay myself open to the charge of being impertinent or eccentric; but I am perfectly willing to be clamored at, if good results from the diffusion of my thoughts and fancies. The consciousness of philanthropically laboring to infuse honesty, diligence and urbanity into the minds and manners of young officials—and dignity, watchfulness and obedience into the economy and administration of postmasters is approbation enough for me. "All that teachers can do in the way of instruction is to show their pupil what is to be learned, to watch over him, and, by motives either of pain or pleasure, stimulate him to perseverance in the work. All the rest must be his own doing." As this is the season of relaxation, and as I have, perhaps, taken too much space already in detailing my personal troubles, I will not open the catalogue of officials' shortcomings, which I have prepared from information taken upon the spot, but will keep it in reserve. That's all.

I see by the papers that you, Mr. Editor, are going abroad. I heartily wish you a speedy and pleasant voyage to the Old World, a general good time, an abundance of good things in the way of sights, sounds and sustenance, and a sufficiency of official facilities and courtesies while there, and a safe return home.

MONS. TONSON.

COMMUNICATIONS.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL—I am pleased to see by the last issue of the MAIL that the postal family are discussing the best mode of collecting postage. I am also pleased to observe the unanimity of views entertained on this subject.

This is a question of great importance to the Post Office Department, if its just earnings are to be collected and applied toward its self-support.

At present, prepayment of postage is required on letters, transient and miscellaneous matter. This is right, but why stop here? Why leave it optional with subscribers to newspapers, magazines and periodicals to pay postage at the office of mailing or delivery? These articles embrace the bulk of mailable matter, and the question of the collection of postage on them cannot well be exaggerated. Let us see how the law works. The N. Y. Herald, if you please, sends several wagon loads of its issue to the office to be mailed to its subscribers throughout the country. If payment is made at the New York office, it is necessary that some account of it should be kept, and that the office of delivery should be apprised of the fact. This plan, it will be readily perceived, is liable to many errors, or, if at all practicable, in view of the immense numbers mailed, would prove a great labor, and require the utmost vigilance. When these papers reach their several destinations the question of the payment of postage comes up. Some persons produce their receipts, and the question is so far settled. Others assert that the postage has been paid, but are unable to produce any evidence of the fact; nevertheless, the postmaster realizing that his tenure of office depends, in a very great measure, on the good-will of the community, and, besides, being of an obliging disposition, accepts as true that which he should verify. In this, and other ways, the Department is defrauded.

But what is the remedy? Payment of postage at the mailing office. This is the true answer. But can it be applied? I think not. And why? Because it would involve some trouble, and, perhaps, some expense to publishers. They would immediately array themselves against it, and defeat any legislation looking to this end. What then is practicable and expedient? Why, simply to restrict the payment of postage on newspapers, magazines and periodicals sent to subscribers, to the office of delivery. This would remove from the subscriber every possible pretext for evading payment, and from postmasters all doubt as to their duty in regard to the postage on such matter. DOF.

AWAY UP IN VERMONT, August 7, 1868.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL—I recollect an invitation in the MAIL, some time since, to its readers, and P. M.'s in particular, to "uncork" (and let off their gas, I suppose), and have often felt like unstopping myself and taking the consequences, after reading the suggestions of your correspondents, and have determined to do so for once.

And first, in relation to prepayment of newspaper postage, I discover a growing uneasiness among postmasters in relation to the subject, and hope it will continue to grow, until prepayment is a fixed fact, or until some official shall be able to show that is not equally practicable with prepayment upon letters and other mailable matter.

I would suggest conventions of postmasters or petitions to Congress, or both, setting forth facts, &c.; and if that kind of agitation won't effect the change, just prevail upon the appointment office to make postmasters of all the members of Congress, and compel them to attend personally to keeping newspaper accounts and collecting the postage, and, my word for it, the thing will be done.

I notice the numerous inquiries of your correspondent from St. J——, Michigan, in the August number, and the answers seem to be implied, at least by J. M. C., that such postmasters are few and far between, and, judging from my own experience, the answer would be correct.

I am inclined to think but few postmasters pay that attention to laws and regulations that their oath of office requires.

The reasons are many, such as ignorance, carelessness, and, in many cases, willful neglect of duty. I say willful, because they are furnished with laws and regulations, and they either do not read them or disregard them, and in either case it is willful and wanton neglect of duty. And I hold that a postmaster who will send through the mail, iron bolts, tailors' shears, linen coats to citizens, a half-peck of Yankee notions, etc., wrapped up in newspapers, with a two-cent stamp affixed, without ascertaining the contents, ought to be "weeded out;" and if he permitted them to pass with the knowledge of the contents, he should be excommunicated for willful violation.

I have collected several dollars upon such traps as the foregoing within as many months, and am invariably told that other postmasters don't examine transient papers, and, if there is a little something in them, they don't go peeking into them to get a few cents extra postage.

Now I like to be accommodating, especially as a postmaster, but think none but India-rubber postmasters will allow their spirit of accommodation to extend beyond the law they are compelled to swear to obey, before they are allowed to interfere with the business.

Now, if all postmasters would collect letter postage upon all matter attempted to be smuggled through it would end very soon, as my own experience has demonstrated; when I took possession of this office, I found several families doing a regular correspondence upon margins of transient papers, even to flirtations between young ladies and gentlemen, and it took but a short time for both ends of the line to ascertain that it was rather expensive, and I seldom now look into any transient matter of theirs passing through the office, unless it looks like a new correspondent.

When will postmasters learn to plainly postmark letters, and effectually deface stamps? I think there is a remedy for all these troubles. Compel every postmaster to take the MAIL or resign, and, perhaps, if they won't read the laws, they might get a stray shot from some correspondent that would bring them to their senses.

What say you to this? I think it would increase your correspondents, consequently you must enlarge the MAIL and the price. I am confident the only reason subscribers do not ventilate these subjects more thoroughly, is that they are conscious that the delinquents do not see the MAIL—so you see I am on the principle of the physician who first put his patients into fits, as he was death on fits.

I think my plan would be calculated to give them fits, and perhaps we might then cure them—who knows?

These are rather scattering remarks, it is true, but then a scattering shot-gun would only hit a few of them. I hope the time will come when we shall get the Howitzer loaded with grape and canister, and fire in quick succession until the entire party surrender.

POSTMASTER.

The following letter has been widely circulated in New England, and we, being strongly opposed to sectionalism in any shape, are averse to confining the extraordinary advantages set forth therein to that section of our postal territory, we, therefore, publish it for the benefit of the whole service. This tempting document evidently means business; and as the new postal law rather interferes with the prospective successful results of "gift enterprises," the ingenuity of the benevolent and very honest gentlemen engaged in their management is concentrated upon the conception, perfection and operation of some new dodge, which, while it is certain to pay them liberally, and their verdant patrons not at all, will either evade the law or render it inoperative through collusion with officials whose integrity they imagine is not temptation-proof. We know some postmasters who would be most happy to respond to Mr. Williams' modest request if he would make it personally instead of by letter, in a way that he would remember whether he sent the "handsome present every month" or not. Whether the sphere of his usefulness will be enlarged or abridged by the publication of his scholarly circular we will not stop to inquire, we give him the benefit of our columns:

PLAISTOW, N. H., Aug. 15, 1868.

Postmaster, P——, Ct.—Dear Sir.—Having been informed by a mail agent that used to run near your place that you are a square man, I take the liberty to address you, as I wish to do some business through the post office in your place.

I am in the "gift enterprise" business, and I wish your assistance, and only so far as for you to do your DUTY as a postmaster, viz., "Mind your own business." What I wish is for you to know nothing about my business, only that I receive my letters through your office same as other people, etc. Of course, if there have been any complaints about my business, it is not your business to investigate them, unless they infringe upon the postal laws. This is what I wish, and if you will assist me in this way, I will make you a handsome present every month—to you as a man, not a postmaster.

You may say that if that is all I wish (for you to do your duty), that I need not trouble myself about any business I may do through your office. That is true. But many postmasters THINK it their duty to know all about the business being done in their towns, and through their post offices, and if they suspect or think that the business done does not agree with their ideas of law and honesty, why they must constitute themselves as special detectives, and try and find out all about the business, tell all the citizens, and do all they can to prevent such business being done, and take great pride to make the public believe they have been the means of breaking up some great humbug, etc. If you seek any such notoriety, I do not wish to do any business through your office; but if you are a man (as recommended) that attends to your own business, regardless of what other people are about, I should like to come to your place and do business right along.

Please write me by return mail if you would like to have me do business through your office, and oblige,

Yours most respectfully,
ALEX. WILLIAMS.

ELSEWHERE we have given a few hints on the use of our Foreign Postage Table. Since the article was written, we have had occasion to visit the Foreign Newspaper Department of the New York Post Office, where our attention was called to a small "stack" of newspapers, books, pamphlets, etc., from all parts of the country, which were detained for insufficient postage. Some of these will be returned to the original mailing office, some will find their way to the paper mill, to the chagrin and sometimes loss of the parties interested. This can not happen if Postmasters and others consulting the Foreign Postage Table will do so according to our suggestions.

☞ WE continue to receive many letters advocating the prepayment of newspaper postage at the mailing office—more than we can possibly publish—and yet we do not wish their coming stopped, for they show, with our other correspondence, that our friends in the country are determined their offices shall no longer be the self-running, self-regulating, rickety machines that some years since supplied, if they did not answer, the purposes of the public, but which, in these days of lightning presses, electric telegrams, Union Pacific Railways and immense foreign immigration, with millions of readers and of letter writers, by no means meet the demands of the times. Postal affairs, with their classification of mailable matter, rates of domestic postage, intricate and changing system of foreign postages, detailed and minute accounts, and numerous rules and regulations, has become a science requiring study and practice. It therefore affords us great pleasure to meet, either personally or by letter, with a postmaster or a post office clerk who is desirous to do his duty to the Department and the public, and we may add to his own oath of office, by studying to master that science, at whatever cost.

POSTMASTERS, recollect in all cases of prepayment of postage on letters to foreign countries, such prepayment must be by stamps. And see that the stamps are thoroughly and effectually affixed, so that they will not drop off, and postage be charged at the office of delivery; and also recollect that if foreign letters are sent unpaid, it does not require a three-cent stamp to forward them to the port of departure. Let the postage be either wholly paid or wholly unpaid.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER, 1868.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 96, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, Aug. 3d, 1868.

The Blank Agency for District No. 2, at the City of New York, having been discontinued on the 1st inst., all requisitions for Blanks, Paper and Twine will be filled from the Blank Agency at Washington, D. C., and all requisitions for the same must be addressed to that Agency.

ST JOHN B. L. SKINNER,
Acting P. M. Gen'l.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
FINANCE OFFICE,
August 17, 1868.

SIR—The Postmaster-General has made the following order, which you will please publish in the next issue of the U. S. MAIL.

Very respectfully,

A. N. ZEVELY,
Third Assist. P. M. General.

JAS. GAYLER, Esq., Special Agent, New York.

"Ordered—That from and after October 1, 1868, the use of the Account of Unpaid Letters Sent be discontinued at all offices."

"Where unpaid letters are sent, the Letter-bill will still be used for entry in Account of Mails Received."

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster-General.

IMPORTANT ARRANGEMENT, Establishing a Direct Postal Communication with the British East Indies, at Reduced Rates of Postage.

A Postal Convention has just been concluded between the United States and British Post Office Departments, for establishing and regulating an exchange of mails between the United States, the Straits Settlements, and the British East Indies, by means, conjointly, of the Line of United States Mail Steamers plying between San Francisco and Hong Kong (China), and of the Line of British Mail Packets plying between Hong Kong and Singapore, Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and Aden.

Its leading provisions are as follows:

On and after the 1st of November, 1868 (the date on which this Convention is to be carried into operation), the postage to be levied and collected in the United States upon correspondence of all kind posted in the United States, and addressed to the Straits Settlements or the British East Indies, for transmission by this route, will be:

10 cents per single rate of half ounce or under, on letters.

2 cents each on newspapers: and 2 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof, on book packets, patterns and samples.

The correspondence thus prepaid in the United States will be delivered at destination for the British East India Possessions free of all charge whatever.

Prepayment is obligatory on newspapers, book packets, and patterns: but letters posted unpaid, or insufficiently paid, will, nevertheless, be forwarded, and charged at the place of destination in the Straits Settlements or the British East Indies, with a postage of 10d. (20 cents) per single rate, together with a fine of 6d. (12 cents).

Paid correspondence of all kinds received from the Straits Settlements and the British East Indies by this route, will be delivered at the office of destination in the United States free of all charge whatever; but unpaid or insufficiently paid letters so received will be charged on delivery with a postage of 10 cents per single rate of half ounce or under, together with a fine of 12 cents each.

No accounts will be kept between the respective Post Departments on the correspondence thus exchanged, each Department retaining all the postage which it collects, both on paid matter sent and unpaid matter received.

New York and San Francisco are the offices of exchange on the side of the United States; and Singapore, Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and Aden are the exchange offices in the Straits Settlements and the British East Indies.

Postmasters will charge postage accordingly on and after the first of November next.

WE are authorized to state that, by an act passed June 25th, 1868,

"Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October next, repealing section 259, postal laws," and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

Postmasters will be governed accordingly in rating postage to the territories between Kansas and California, after the 1st of October.

Registration to Foreign Countries.

Under Article 8 of the Postal Convention of 1867, between the United States and Great Britain, letters may be registered, via England, to Amoy, Canton, Foo-Chow, Ningpo and Swatow, in China; Nagasaki and Yokohama, in Japan, and to Shanghai. The full postage and a registration fee of 16 cents must in all cases be prepaid.

☞ The editor of THE MAIL will, before the appearance of this number, sail for Europe, which he visits principally on official business, and where he will remain for a month or two. During his absence, B. K. SHARRETTS, Esq., an experienced Special Agent of the Department—and who moreover wields "the pen of a ready writer"—has kindly consented to assume charge of the paper. The editor also hopes to be able to contribute, from the other side of the water, such notes of his observations there as may be found interesting to his official and other readers.

A WORD TO OUR CANADA NEIGHBORS.—The practice obtains to a certain extent of charging postage on matter returned to the United States which has been accidentally sent into Canada. On both sides there are offices of similar names, and sometimes the superscriptions are so badly written or so illegible as to make it a difficult matter to decide upon correct destination. Again, many of our lines of travel connect with routes running into the "Dominion," and in making up the mails which pass over them, mistakes may frequently occur on both sides. Our custom is not to take undue advantage of these estrays, but to hurry them home as fast as possible without inflicting any penalty on them for the sins of others—and our official brethren across the border should, in this case at least, join with us in keeping alive a neighborly reciprocity.

☞ OUR FOREIGN POSTAGE TABLE is now of interest to a very large number of people. Postmasters should, therefore, be perfectly familiar with it. We do not propose that they should learn it "by heart"—it is better to thoroughly understand its construction, and then always keep a copy of the latest issue of the U. S. MAIL on hand for reference. We do, however, propose a few words of explanation of the table and directions for its use. The first column, containing the names of countries, seems simple enough were it not that, in many cases, two or more routes are given, with the same or different rates of postage. The question then is to decide on the best route, expedition and expense being considered. In some cases there is no choice: in others it may be made by consulting, in connection, the tables of departure of steamers, etc., on our first and third pages. The next five columns are explained by the headings. These headings should be learned so that each column may be known at a glance. The notes at the bottom of the page should also be sufficiently studied to be readily understood and applied. Then, before deciding on a rate of postage, see if there is any note that refers to it, and consult that note. There is also much in our miscellaneous information, on the third page, which relates to foreign postage, and which should always be taken in connection with the foreign postage table. By following these suggestions, postmasters will often avoid many mistakes, which result in loss of time and money in sending foreign matter.

A CORRESPONDENCE between the Postmasters at Bangor, Me. and Boston, Mass., has been submitted to us—and also published in a Boston paper—in which it is impliedly asserted that the Table of Foreign Postages in THE MAIL is incorrect. The correspondence was called forth by a letter for Spain, prepaid by a ten cent stamp, mailed at Bangor and sent to Boston D. P. O., and twice returned thence for additional postage. It seems scarcely necessary to say that our Table of Foreign Postages is officially correct; as, however, we find the word "direct," in the instance before us, liable to misconstruction, the words "open mail" have been substituted. If the letter in question had been sent to New York instead of being returned to Bangor—New York being the principal shipping port, and the UNITED STATES MAIL correct—the letter would have reached its destination many days earlier than it now will. We can not concede the right of any Postmaster to return or unreasonably delay, for additional postage, a letter rated according to the UNITED STATES MAIL; it is rather his duty to assume the postage to be correct, and to endeavor to find by what route or from what port the letter can be forwarded. By a correspondence with the New York Post Office it would have been learned that letters for Spain, prepaid ten cents, are forwarded every week.

In the absence of the Editor of THE MAIL, in person, we refrain from comment on this attempt to discredit the OFFICIAL ORGAN of the Post Office Department. See Section 259 Regulations of 1866.

WE intend that the matter in THE MAIL shall interest all our readers. But in this paragraph, we depart from our usual course, and write only in the interests of some of our subscribers and of ourselves. Now, while we do not forget our patrons, some of them, we fear, forget us, and in the multitude of business cares overlook the—to them—little fact that their subscriptions remain unpaid. Pay up, gentlemen! and do not let crops, or merchandise, or politics banish from your minds the thought, "There, I must send that dollar for THE MAIL immediately!"

Sundry Post Office Matters.

We have before us quite a long letter on stamping inks and pads; while we have not space to publish the letter, we would not have it thought that we attach but little importance to the subject. On the contrary, we think it of great importance, and that too much attention cannot be paid to it. Its results—clear, legible postmarks, and thorough canceling of postage stamps—are among the very essentials of postal efficiency. It not unfrequently happens in the course of our official investigations, that the indistinctness of a postmark is a cause of much delay and uncertainty, and sometimes puts us at fault entirely. Clean stamps and good ink are two requisites for a legible postmark; a third is a good pad, not too thickly spread with ink; with these it is almost impossible but that a postmark will be as legible as though printed on a press. We have from time to time published in our paper directions for procuring ink and pads, and for cleaning marking stamps. Good printers' ink is as good an article as can be used; pads are readily made by stretching two or three thicknesses of woolen cloth over a block, or, as our correspondent suggests, buckskin stuffed with wool. To clean stamps, any good solvent of grease—as benzine, soda, ley, etc.—is sufficient; only be careful, if either of the latter two is used, that the stamps are thoroughly rinsed and wiped dry. In connection with this subject, we reply to a correspondent who has made a requisition on the Department for marking stamps, and received for reply that, "by his report he is not entitled to them." He alleges that the gross receipts of his office are nearly $100 a quarter. Where the accounts of an individual office are under consideration, it is impossible for us to express an opinion. We can only state the general order lately made by the Postmaster-General, "that post offices, the gross receipts of which amount to $50, etc., per annum, shall be entitled to circular marking stamps," etc. See the order in the MAIL for September, 1867.....Another correspondent wants to know if a postmaster's wife can act as his assistant, and if not, what would be the consequence if he was complained of for letting her do so. We reply, a postmaster's wife can act as his assistant, but she should take the necessary oath. The consequences of a complaint, as stated, we cannot tell—they might be serious, and might not; but avoid all cause of complaint by having her sworn.....Another correspondent asks our opinion on the legality of paying postage by what might be called "in gross." He received a package of letters weighing 2½ ounces, and addressed to different individuals. The outside letter alone bore stamps, and those to the amount of $1.20, while the letters rated singly made the postage in the aggregate $1.65. We consider that this mode of prepayment is illegal, and the postmaster who allows it should be reported to the Department. He also complains of the mode of mailing some third-class matter by cutting a notch in a sealed envelope. We think if a sufficient examination of matter mailed in this way cannot be made, that a postmaster is perfectly justifiable in charging letter postage, according to section 213, Reg. 1866.....Another tells of a postmaster who charges more than the legal price for stamped envelopes, and also charges for advertised letters when he pays nothing for advertising. Both these acts are illegal and wrong. To the first is attached a penalty of a fine of from two to five hundred dollars. Sec. 172, Reg. 1866. And though we do not find that any penalty attaches to the latter, unless under section 315, laws of 1866, it is none the less illegal, and payment should be refused.....Another complains of receiving his letters loose, and states the main difficulty to be that often there are letters on which there are charges, but no post-bill accompanying them. So far as the general complaint goes, we would say, though the practice is contrary to the regulations, yet some folks have a loose way of doing everything, and that there are some such folks in the service of the Department as well as elsewhere. The difficulty concerning the missing post-bill could be obviated by entering the amount in the Account of Mails Received, and making a note opposite: "No bill."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Registered "Request Letters."—W. B., R—— M——, O.—1. No registration fee is to be charged on returning registered letters bearing a request to be returned. 2. You send a registered letter bill, and a return bill, as in ordinary cases; the return of the latter to you indorsed "correct" is all the receipt you require. Be careful, however, to make a memorandum to the proper place in your Account of Registered Letters Received, that such a letter was returned, giving the date.

Paying Post Office Drafts.—J. H. R., P——, I.—A postmaster holding a draft for collection is not obliged to go after the party on whom it is drawn; he notifies him, and the money must be tendered at the holder's place of business.

Custody of Mails at Night.—R. W. K——, Mo.—The mail pouch must be carried, directly to your office. Section 106, Regulations of 1866, requires "when the mail stops over night where there is a post office, it must be kept in the office."

Rate of Box Rents.—S. W. D., V—— B——, Ark.—There is no established rate of box rents; it varies from twelve cents to twelve dollars a year. Postmasters on first erecting boxes fix the rate to suit their particular localities.

Blank Applications for Stamps.—J. H. R., C——, Mass.—Blank applications for stamps are furnished by the Blank Agency at Washington. You will observe by consulting Miscellaneous Information that there is now but one Blank Agency, and that is located at Washington.

Furnishing Postage Stamps.—A. P. G., O——, O.—The Department will furnish postage stamps at any time, but expects postmasters to order such quantities as may, upon a careful estimate, be a sufficient supply for three months. Sec. 163, Reg. 1866. Application should always be made in time to secure a supply before the stock on hand is exhausted.

Envelopes Spoiled in Directing, etc.—M. D. H., O—— G——, Ill.—Envelopes spoiled in directing, that have been redeemed by a postmaster, should be sent, with a special letter, to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. Sec. 189, Reg. 1866.....E. E. W., R——, Mich.—1. See above: it is only envelopes spoiled in directing, and not stamps, that may be redeemed. 2. The amount of postage on transient matter that arrives at your offices, with charges on it, and no bill, may be entered on your Account of Undercharges, and, if not collected, entered on the Account of Overcharges. These two entries make the accounts balance.

Franking the Internal Revenue Record.—J. H., F—— C. H., Va.—Our reply in the last MAIL was based upon the postal laws, and applied to an individual case which seemed to us an attempt to evade them. Where the Record is sent to assessors under a contract with the Revenue Department, for them to distribute, we think it may be franked, the same as other official matters of that Department.

Number of Clerks allowed to an Office.—E. S., M——, Iowa.—The number of clerks allowed to an office is not specified. Postmasters at first and second-class offices are required to furnish the Postmaster-General with an estimate of expenditures for clerk-hire, rent, etc., which he can allow, or not, as he deems proper. Sec. 17, Reg. 1866.

Mail Carrier Receiving Letters between Offices.—C. C. K., C——, N. H.—A mail carrier may, if he please, receive letters anywhere between two post offices, provided the postage is prepaid, or stamps or money therefor tendered him. Such letters must in all cases be deposited in the next post office, and it is the duty of postmasters to see that the postage is prepaid before receiving them for mailing.

Franking.—T. H. B., C——, Mo., and J. H. DeC., B——, Me.—The franking privilege covers all letters or packages not weighing over four ounces, to or from a member of Congress, no matter from or to whom or on what business. There is no postage to be paid on mutilated currency sent to the Treasurer for redemption.

Mail Carrier carrying Telegram.—J. R., P——, W.—The law makes no distinction between telegrams and ordinary letters; a mail carrier therefore can only carry a telegram outside the mail by its being inclosed in a Government stamped envelope, according to section 300, Laws of 1866.

Postage Paid for a Year on a Regular Paper.—W. P. H., M—— D——, Pa.—"Newspapers cannot be forwarded from one office to another without the payment of additional postage; but when postage has been paid yearly in advance, and the subscriber changes his residence, upon causing his paper to be sent direct from the mailing office to his new place of residence, then the certificate of the postmaster where the postage was paid will be sufficient authority to the office of delivery to deliver the paper, to the end of the term, without additional charge."

Liability of Postmasters for Subscriptions to Newspapers.—W. P. C., S——, N. Y.—The statement in the slip you send is incorrect; "there is nothing in the postal laws which renders a postmaster liable for the subscription-price of a newspaper, where he neglects to notify the publisher." But this does not relieve him from the risk of removal, by the Postmaster-General, for such neglect.

Delivery of Letters addressed to the Officers of Institutions.—R. B., F——, Pa.—"The right to receive letters is in the officer, rather than the individual;" hence a letter addressed "John Doe, Cashier of First National Bank," while Richard Roe is the Cashier, should be delivered to Roe, and not to Doe

Establishment of Money Order Office.—A. M. G., L——, Mo., and others.—"Whenever a postmaster, or any individual or class of individuals, desires any particular office to be made a money order office, the proper way to proceed, in order to secure the object, is to make application, by letter or petition or otherwise for that purpose, to the Superintendent of the Money Order System, in which application should be distinctly stated the reason why the petition should be granted."

Post Bills.—J. G. P., R——, Mass., and others.—About a year ago, in reply to a correspondent, we stated that post bills were not required to be sent with the quarterly returns. We made this statement after a careful study of Chapter XXVIII of the Regulations of 1866, to which we referred. In reply to a correspondent in our last number, we made the conflicting statement that post bills are required to be sent with the quarterly returns, basing our reply upon our knowledge of the practice, instead of referring to the Regulations. Our attention having been called to these conflicting statements, we took means to settle the question, and we are now authorized to make the following corrections in section 304, of Regulations of 1866, viz: Insert after note 2, "The post bills that accompany unpaid letters received," and strike out "note 9 respecting transcripts of registered letters received and sent." With these corrections, Chapter XXVIII gives a complete list of the papers constituting the quarterly return.

Postage.—H. C., B——, Ill.—No postage is to be charged on communications and models sent to the Patent Office, but the latter should not exceed the weight allowed by law. You are wrong in exacting it.....G. A. D., E——, N. Y.—Sections 221, 222 and 245 of the laws of 1866, enumerate the various articles that may be sent by mail. It is very clear that grain bags, hay caps, hair covers and the like, do not come under section 222, and just as clear that they do come under section 245.....R. U. R., J——, N. Y.—If a paper is received but three months at an office, you collect but three months' postage, but where the subscription is for more than a quarter, the regulations of 1866, section 154, require the postage, if paid at any other time than the beginning of an official quarter, shall be paid to the end of the next following quarter.....W. H. J., F——, Fla.—Postage at the ten cent rate cannot be prepaid in Brazil, but must be collected at the office of delivery in the United States, and it must be prepaid at the mailing office on letters for that country. See section 270, regulations 1866.....J. R., P—— J——, N. Y.—Book manuscripts passing between author and publishers are chargeable with two cents per four ounces or fraction thereof.....A. D., R——, Pa.—See above reply to G. A. D., E——, N. Y. Any one must have queer eyes to find table-cloths, window-curtains, stockings and n dry goods store geoerally, mentioned in section 222, of laws 1866.....C. W., B—— F——, Me.—Postage is chargeable on papers published in Canada; postage paid in that country pays only to the line; the United States postage can, however, be collected quarterly at quarterly rates, the same as on domestic papers. See section 261, regulations 1866.....H. N. H., C—— S——, O.—No deduction can be made in the postage on small Sunday-school papers, published weekly, sent in package to one address.....O. A., P——, N. Y., and P. B. M., G——, O.—1. Circulars in packages, sent to one address, should be classed as miscellaneous printed matter, and be charged at the rate of two cents for four ounces. 2. Blank checks, drafts, accounts, etc., bound in book form, must be charged at book rates. 3. A letter arriving at an office with evident marks of having been prepaid by stamp, and with no charge marked on it, should be delivered as prepaid.....D. B., M——, Pa.—Several insurance policies filled in may be sent in one envelope to an agent.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Mode of Indicating the Prepayment of Postage upon Letters Received from Foreign Countries.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery

Registering Foreign Letters.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retlmo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz. : Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Canadian Correspondence. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

Collections in Coin.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. To or from Great Britain.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. Patterns and samples of merchandise (including seeds and grain), 8 cents per four onnces or fraction of four ounces. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not ao prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. To or from France, Algeria, &c., in French Mail or via England.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyront, Coustantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibmila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, ou prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria) and to or from Belgium and the Netherlands, by Closed Mail via England.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and au additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article ahall he insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. To or from Italy and Switzerland, by Closed Mail, via England, Belgium and Germant.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)

5. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria), by Direct Mail via Bremen or Hamburg—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will bo forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and anbject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. Newspapers and other Printed Matter.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photogmphs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. Book-Packets.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. Patterns or Samples of Merchandise.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abolished.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

[All printed matter (except single copies of newspapers, magazines, and periodicals sent to regular subscribers from publishers) intended to go by mail westward from the western boundary of Kansas, or eastward from the eastern boundary of California, must be prepaid by stamps at letter postage rates. Sec. 259, P. O. Laws, Edition of 1866.]

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

On Miscellaneous Mailable Matter (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and, sample cards, photographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bnlbs, roots and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over four oz. in weight, 2 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 4 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 6 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 8 cts.

By a recent order of the Postmaster General, the fifth subdivision of the 42d instruction of the Post Office Law, approved March 3, 1863, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows: "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two onnces."

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wmpper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds, roots, cuttings or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Weekly newspapers and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from countries bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞ All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short-paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly prepayment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribers. No such paper should be delivered, unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office, or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so prepaid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail, they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removed from office for neglect.

Post Office Blanks.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Every postmaster will be careful never to send a registered letter "direct," when there is a distributing post office between his office and the office to which the letter is directed. He must inclose it, with the registered letter bill, in a "Registered Package Envelope," directed to the postmaster at the first distributing post office on the route, and also send the Return Registered Letter Bill in a common envelope to the same postmaster by same mail—just the same as if the letter were for delivery at the distributing post office.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

Important to Postmasters.

IMPROVED STAMPING INK.

ALL know the great want of a good Stamping Ink. We offer a superior article now used by the New York, Boston and Philadelphia Post Offices. Our Stamping Ink is always ready for use, does not dry up, evaporate or gum the stamp, and is indelible. Price for the Black, $2; Blue, $3; Red, $3; per can, containing 1 lb. Can be sent by Express or Mail. If sent by mail, Letter Postage to be added. FRANCIS & LOUTREL,

TO POSTMASTERS.

COLLECT POSTAGE IN ADVANCE.

TRYON'S SYSTEM for Newspaper and Box Accounts enables you to do this in accordance with Postal Law and Regulations with ease, certainty and little cost of time and labor.

The blank forms are on folio sheets of the usual size of post office blanks, and are arranged to embrace a period of four years.

Fifteen sheets for offices of the 4th class and ten for the 5th class are ordinarily sufficient to last that period, and will be sent, together with a copy of the explanations, directions and examples, by mail, postpaid, as follows:

For ten sheets $1.50
For fifteen sheets 2.00

The blank form for Postage Receipts, $4 per 1,000 Receipts. Address

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. IX., NO. 1. NEW YORK, OCTOBER, 1868. WHOLE NO. 97.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

The English Postal System.

LONDON, Sept. 14, 1868.

To obtain materials for giving the readers of THE MAIL some idea of the management of postal affairs abroad being one of the main objects of my trip to "foreign parts," I have, since my arrival here, devoted a good portion of my time to that duty, and will endeavor to set forth, as briefly as possible, some of the results of my observations and inquiries. And I feel it just to begin by acknowledging the valuable aid I have received through the uniform kindness and courtesy of all the officials of the Post Office Department here. All with whom I have met have, with the greatest readiness, afforded me every assistance in their power, and furnished me with every facility which could be desired for obtaining the information I sought. There may be "Tite Barnacles" and "Circumlocution Offices" here (as well as at home), but my own experience as one who "wanted to know, you know," will certainly not justify me in directing inquirers for the locality of those institutions to the English Postal Service.

The general organization, and the principal working details of all modern Post Office Departments being substantially the same throughout the civilized world, it will not be necessary or desirable to occupy space with a description of what is already sufficiently familiar to the official readers of THE MAIL, at least; and I shall therefore confine myself to noting such points in the British Postal System as most prominently show a difference from our own. Conspicuous among these is the system of APPOINTMENTS.

With the exception of the Postmaster General (who, as with us, is a cabinet officer, and retires from office on the occurrence of a change of ministry), the officers of the British Post Office are appointed for life or during good behavior. All postmasters are appointed by the Postmaster General, and are of three classes: Head-Postmasters, Sub-Postmasters and Receivers—the latter having charge of the receiving houses, where letters, etc., are received to be forwarded to a sub or head office for dispatch. All postmasters are under the immediate direction of the Post Office Surveyors of their different districts (the office of Surveyor being equivalent to that of a Special Agent of our Department), and the sub-postmasters and receivers are also under the immediate direction of their head-postmasters. Postmasters are practically intrusted with the appointment of their own clerks, letter-carriers, sorters and stampers; but, in cases where the salaries of those officers exceed ten shillings per week, the nomination must be made by the postmaster to the surveyor, and, if the nomination be approved by him, it is submitted to the Secretary (whose duties are in general about the same as those of our First Assistant Postmaster General), and after furnishing through the nominating postmaster certificates as to health, age and good character, the candidate is examined by the Board of Civil Service Commissioners, and, if found eligible, he receives a probationary appointment for six months, at the end of which time, if his duties have been satisfactorily performed, his permanent appointment is confirmed by the Postmaster General. No person is eligible for appointment in the Post Office who is connected, directly or indirectly, with the ownership or management of an inn or other public house, or who is in any way connected with the editing or publication of a newspaper. Until within a short time, no person in the postal service was allowed to vote for or otherwise take part in the election of Members of Parliament, but this singular restriction has been removed. Persons of either sex are eligible to appointment to clerkships; but no woman must be appointed as a Letter Carrier, without the express permission of the Postmaster General. The power of dismissal of postmasters and of all other officers, except those which postmasters are empowered to appoint unconditionally, rests with the Postmaster General alone.

COMPENSATION.

The compensation of postmasters varies, both in amount and form, according to their grade and the amount of business performed at their respective offices. At all of the largest offices and at many of the other head offices, the postmaster is allowed a fixed salary, without other allowances, but at the majority of offices he is allowed a commission (called "poundage") of one per cent. on the sales of postage stamps, also a commission on money orders issued and paid, on Government Life Insurance Policies and Annuities (which are issued at most post offices), and on the purchase of postage stamps, which are bought from the public at any post office at a discount of two and a half per cent. The compensation of clerks in the principal offices varies from £80 to £350 per annum, and is so arranged that it increases at the rate of about £10 for each year's service until it reaches the maximum allowance. Sorters begin at a salary of about twenty-four shillings per week, which is increased one shilling a week for each year's service until it reaches forty-five shillings, which is the maximum; stampers are paid twenty-one shillings per week, increased to thirty-five shillings after ten years' service; while letter carriers begin at eighteen shillings, and after twelve years' service can receive thirty-five shillings. It will be seen that the rate of compensation is very much lower than with us, especially in the cases of sorters and stampers (whose duties are those of our clerks) and carriers. The clerks here—who receive the highest pay among the subordinates—are employed in strictly clerical duties, and not in the handling of letters as with us. At these not very munificent rates there are employed in the London district alone (which includes a circuit of twelve miles from the General Post Office), 520 sorters, 337 stampers, 1,300 letter carriers and about 1,050 men temporarily employed for such time as they may be needed, who earn about ten shillings per week each, but who have also other occupations.

DELIVERY OF LETTERS.

At all the larger offices, the delivery is almost entirely by carriers, and is free. The box-delivery system is almost unknown at such offices, though at many of the smaller offices private boxes are rented—the rents being, in most cases, the perquisites of the postmaster. The carrier deliveries in the large cities are performed with admirable punctuality and dispatch, the men being employed in large numbers—two or three being placed on a short route or "walk," as it is called here—held to strict accountability for delay or other neglect of duty, and being incited to faithfulness by security in office during good conduct, and promotion to higher grades of service if found competent. They also collect from the "pillar boxes."

In the country districts, the delivery is performed by "rural messengers," who convey mails between post offices, and at the same time deliver letters in villages and at detached houses along their routes. They are also required to provide themselves with stamps for sale, and to receive letters for posting. They must also collect letters from the "road boxes," or pillar boxes on their routes.

REGISTRATION OF LETTERS.

The British system of registration is in many respects similar to our own. Instead of inclosing the registered letters in an envelope similar to our "Registered Package Envelope," a special sealed pouch is made use of, and each letter is tied and sealed with green tape. They are not numbered consecutively from the beginning of each quarter, as with us, but the numbers begin anew with each registered letter bag dispatched. Letters found in the mail, unregistered, evidently containing coin, are registered and charged with a double registration fee, which must be paid before delivery. For all irregularities committed in the registration of letters a fine, varying in amount from sixpence to four shillings, according to the gravity of the offense, is charged and collected—each postmaster being notified of his delinquency, either by the office at which it is discovered, the Head Postmaster to whom he is responsible, or by the Secretary of the General Post Office. A failure to report an irregularity is itself finable. I am informed that this plan works admirably in securing proper attention to the important duty of registration, and am by no means sure that its introduction into our own system would not tend to produce similar desirable results. There is a not uncommon but erroneous impression prevalent in the United States, that the British Post Office Department guarantees the safe delivery of registered letters. Such is not the case; but they are seldom lost or tampered with.

THE GENERAL POST OFFICE, LONDON.

The inspection of the interior of this vast establishment will well repay one interested in postal affairs. Its arrangements and fittings are admirably adapted to their purpose—especially in that department which we would call the Distribution. The assorting of the letters and papers for dispatch on the various inland routes into "divisions" and "roads" is most systematically arranged for securing accuracy and speed. An improved machine for postmarking and stamp-canceling is found to work well, about thirty of them being in use. The increasing business of the office, however, renders more extensive premises necessary, although the Money Order and Life Insurance offices are already located in separate buildings, and the Government is about to purchase an entire square immediately opposite the present edifice, and occupy the whole space by another post office building.

I have already exceeded the space which I intended this letter to occupy; and, though there are several matters of interest connected with this subject which I would gladly refer to at length, I must for the present defer doing so.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, September, 1868.

I have been exceedingly gratified at receiving through you a number of letters of sympathy and congratulation on my late inland-sea adventure, and narrow escape, and for which I tender my heartfelt thanks. It is very pleasant to receive such mellow-toned and soothing missives, some of which I am happy to say are the gilt-edged offerings of the gentler sex, and it almost makes one wish to be in dangerous situations more frequently, if such delicate attentions result therefrom. But every rose has its thorn; every day its share of sunshine and shade; and every hour of pleasure its moiety of pain. While the letters referred to more than compensate me for my misfortune, there came with them one that excited no delight. It is addressed to you, but inasmuch as you have enclosed it to me, the inference is that I am expected to notice it. To give your readers some idea of the nature of this diabolical document, I insert it here:

MONSIEUR L'EMITEUR—In ze last nombaire ov ze U. S. MALE, you maike von grand blondaire, witch is you say "Monsieur Tonson again."

Mons. Tonson no come again—ze raison is zat he is von ded man, an is depart for ze "born," as Mons. Shakespear say, "from witch no person vat is travelling evire come back to return."

You offaire ze insulte to ze grate mans. You outrager ze memoire ov him. Vat satisfaction you offair ta ze jentleman vat is ze son? He?

I ville challenge you to ze doill, if you have vat ze Yankee call "ze sponk," "ze grit." Entender vous? You ville be shoot, or I vill rou your body through ze sord, and you ville give ze explanation to Mons. Tonson in ze ozzair vorlde.

TONSON, JR.

Now, in the name of all that is astonishing, what have I done to excite the ire of this little Frenchman? He evidently can't take a roke! I don't feel disposed to quarrel with this son of his father, either with a pen, gun or sabre, however much he may mean business; but if he knew my breadth of beam, he would pause before he attempted to "run my body through a sord," unless it were a weapon of unheard-of proportions. My good fellow, whoever you are, and wherever you are, don't be so sensitive—go slow. I have "sponk" enough for ordinary purposes, but prefer not to exhaust it in fencing with you. Ostensibly you wish to go to war with me, because I say "Mons. Tonson again;" but really, I believe, because you are a postal official, and feel vexed at some truths I have told, which meet your case exactly. You may be a postmaster, who does every thing but his duty, and dislikes to be told of it; or you may be an assistant, or clerk, whose devotion to too-ral-looral and baseball interferes sadly with the business demands of the office, and feel cross with me because I have tried to break up your social circles, so that you could devote your whole time to your sworn duties, and please and accommodate the community in which you live, instead of entertaining a lot of loungers, whose

"Only labor is to kill the time,
And labor dire it is, and weary woe!"

If such is the case, however, you should face the music in good English, and not adopt the Indian mode of firing through the bushes, or ambuscading me from behind a wall of unpronouncable words. And yet, after all, this epistle may be the work of some modern Gaul, whose fervent spirit has been so stirred up by some fancied injury, as to make him bloodthirsty.

There is still another theory, and this may be the correct one: The seemingly injured innocent may be a merchant who has set apart the dingiest, dirtiest, and most inconvenient part of his store-room for post-office use, and is fearful that the fact may get into your columns; or he may be the owner of some windjacked, isolated wooden shed, which is rented for postal purposes, when it is absolutely hardly fit for a chicken-coop. Seriously speaking, there are such, I know, for I have seen them. If this letter had only been garnished with coffins, daggers, hieroglyphics, torches, and other symbols of death and destruction, I might have charged it to the account of some official Kuklux; but as it is entirely devoid of any illumination, I banish the idea. With these remarks I dismiss the bellicose individual.

And now for something else. It is said that constant dropping wears away a rock, and I suppose it does; but if some officials whom I have in my eye were rocks, I don't believe that anything short of a double charge of nitro-glycerine would ever make any impression on them. They are intelligent, unofficially energetic, and are regarded as valuable members of society, but they appear to have no desire to aid or assist the Department by carrying out its orders and instructions, or by laboring to make the institution popular by placing its advantages within the reach of every one dependent upon its facilities for business or personal purposes. If they are merchants, manufacturers, or professional men, they take great pains to popularize their specialties; but clothe them in garb official and it acts like a wet blanket upon their ardor. I have repeatedly spoken of this indifference, and have endeavored to stir up the inenergetic, but the effect has only been to galvanize them into a momentary display of efficiency, to relapse again into more profound listlessness. I do not write this through envy, hatred, or uncharitableness, but I claim it is the right and duty of every private citizen to endeavor to make the Post Office the most perfect, as it is the most important, Department under our Government. It don't furnish guns for our armies, ships to protect our commerce, blankets and beads for our Indians, lands for settlers, patents for implements and machinery, or funds to defray our national expenses—but it furnishes the blood which pulsates regularly from the heart to the remotest extremity of the vigorous body of our Republic—keeping it fresh and healthy, and promoting intelligence, domestic felicity, and love of country; and, in my humble opinion, the public functionary who passively or negatively exercises the authority vested in him, with "malice aforethought," is the wrong man in the wrong place.

MONS. TONSON.

AWAY UP IN VERMONT, Sept. 10, 1868.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL—Your correspondent "Dop," in September number of THE MAIL, expresses himself as pleased to observe the unanimity of views of the "Postal family" as to the best mode of collecting postage, which he afterward defines more particularly as newspaper postage.

Yet I infer by his remarks that he is not as well pleased with the views as with the unanimity; as I understand the word, the unanimity consists in a desire for prepayment of all matter.

I should also infer from his remarks that he was either a publisher or interested in favor of publishers.

The idea of publishers chuckling over the defeat of any attempt at reform reminds me of the Irishman who, having discharged his gun at a mischievous squirrel without effect, except that the gun kicked him over, while the squirrel ran off with a "chirre," remarked to the squirrel: "Be jabers! you'd not 'cbirre' if you had been at my end of the gun." I think Dop is not at our end of the gun, or he would see how very easy it would be for publishers to fix a price for their papers covering postage; and harmony between publishers and Congress would easily adjust a system of prepayment by stamps, so as to obviate all difficulty. This would also inure to the benefit of both publishers and P. O. Department, as the Department would be sure to collect all postage without loss, with less trouble to postmasters, and the tendency would be to establish more firmly the system of prepayment of newspapers to the publisher.

I trust this subject is not to be allowed to slumber through fear that publishers will oppose it.

I have several other matters to write about, but enough for this time.

POSTMASTER.

"Dop" has elicited several communications, which we would gladly publish, if we had room.

IOWA, September 11, 1868.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL—Enclosed, please find $1 for THE MAIL for one year. Your paper is a welcome visitor, and I am glad to see that you are trying to correct some of the abuses of the post-office business. Now if you could only get Congress to make every thing prepaid, it would be some pleasure to run an office. How would it do for every postmaster that takes THE MAIL, to write to the Congressman from his district, say about the same time, the time to be given through THE MAIL? I think the amount of letters that would be sent to Washington would open their eyes to their duty, and might effect some good. I make this suggestion to see what you think of my plan. We are all living off the fat of the land here, and have big crops of every thing.

H. R. C., P. M.

POSTMASTERS will bear in mind that with the first of the present month postage on miscellaneous matter for the Territories west of Kansas is to be charged at the usual rates for such matter elsewhere, and not at letter rates as heretofore. Postage rates are now equal throughout the United States.

Letter Addresses.

This letter for my dear friend John,
Please, Postmaster, hurry it on;
For news important it will bring
To the oldest son of Osborn Wing.
He always was a real good boy,
And now lives in Aurora, Illinois.

To Newburgh, on the Hudson gay,
Haste ye hence without delay.
At Front street, No. 2, B. Bradley
Will take you in with welcome gladly.
I send you to his kind protection
For Patrick Cassidy's inspection.
Your three-cent stamp will bring you through,
Prepaid and mailed by Uncle Hugh.

ROUTE AGENTS' RECEIPTS FOR REGISTERED PACKAGES.—We have heard of instances of postmasters refusing to forward route agents' receipts for registered package envelopes, under the plea that they were not entitled to pass free. This is clearly wrong. Such receipts are a part of the registration of a letter for which a registry fee is exacted, and are very necessity of the case: not only should they be forwarded free, but they should be forwarded promptly, especial care being taken that they are not delayed. Postmasters may err, through ignorance in this respect; but, when once their duty is known, any dereliction of duty should be immediately reported to the Department. Every person handling a registered package who is entitled to a receipt therefor, should strenuously insist on that receipt at the earliest possible time for, in the event of loss of the package, the value of the receipt may be of vast importance to the holder. Any detention or obstacles, therefore, thrown in the way of obtaining it should be reported without fear or favor.

In this connection, we would call the attention of postmasters to the necessity of returning promptly the receipt signed on the delivery of a registered letter, to the office where originally mailed. The mailer is entitled to this receipt, and in some cases the object in registering is to obtain it.

We would state to several correspondents who have made inquiries respecting the late postal law, that we had expected to be able to give them in this number the information desired, but have been disappointed in procuring it in time.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, OCTOBER, 1868.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" (see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866), and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number indicates the issue for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 97, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

THE DEPARTMENT has recently transmitted to all money-order post offices a new Book of Instructions, containing such modifications therein as are rendered necessary by the act of July 27, 1868, and also a new list of money-order post offices, embracing two hundred and forty-five additional offices of this character, which are to go into operation on Monday, the 5th instant. A careful perusal of this Book of Instructions will prove of great service to postmasters. New forms of application, in accordance with the rates established by the act in question, have also been forwarded, and postmasters are instructed to make use of these forms immediately upon receipt thereof, and to discard forthwith the old forms of application and the rates stated thereon.

On orders not exceeding $20	10 cents.
Over $20 and not exceeding $30	15 "
Over $30 and not exceeding $40	20 "
Over $40 and not exceeding $50	25 "

The special attention of postmasters at money-order offices is furthermore called to the following changes which have been made in the names of certain money-order post offices since the publication of the last list:

Ruby City, Idaho Terr.,	changed to	Silver City.
Adriance, Ind.,	"	" Kentland.
New Jefferson, Iowa,	"	" Jefferson.

Volume IX. of the U. S. Mail.

It is customary, at the commencement of a new volume of a paper, to call attention to the fact by a review of the past and promises for the future, with more or less of self-laudation. We waive the custom, except so far as to state that this number of THE UNITED STATES MAIL is the first of Volume IX. It is a good number with which to advise your neighbors to commence a subscription, or to prompt forwarding the amount due for renewal.

OFFICIAL COURTESY.—If post-office clerks would not interchange impertinences, when good-natured advice, inquiries and suggestions are offered between offices, the sympathies of postmasters would not be, as they are, frequently misdirected. Perfection is no more to be found in post offices than elsewhere, and if a post-office clerk blunders, and his official brother at the next office discovers and tells him of it, he should be thankful instead of indignant. But, alas, for human young weakness, the good offices of kissing and coaxing are not returned in kind, and the consequence is that eventually, through misrepresentation and falsification, postmasters become antagonistic and the service suffers.

We tender this as a hint for postmasters to crack.

To Whom it may Concern.

Through accident or design mail bags are frequently injured in their passage between post offices, and sometimes rendered quite unsafe for service. We cannot too strongly urge upon postmasters, route agents and local agents the importance of carefully examining bags made up at their offices, or passing through their hands. It must be obvious that the perfect ease with which mail matter can be abstracted from a mutilated pouch is a temptation too strong to be thrown in the way of the rank and file of unofficials who necessarily have the handling and transferring of mails on our railways, and the only way to avoid trouble and unpleasant suspicions is to see that every bag is securely locked and unmutilated before it is given to irresponsible railway people.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

The first letter we notice among our selection for our usual article is from a correspondent, a previous communication from whom was published in our August number. It is a sprightly letter, and, but for want of room, we would publish it entire. He asks to be referred to the number of THE MAIL, "for," he says, "in THE MAIL I get my law"—in which it is stated that the regulation requiring postage on forwarded foreign letters has been rescinded. We must confess it is not in THE MAIL officially—but then it should be. In September, 1867, we addressed the Department on the subject, with a view to publish the information obtained in the October number; a reply was received in due time, and filed away among the copy for THE MAIL. By some mischance, when sending this copy to the printer, this reply was not among it; we did not notice the omission till our attention was called to it by our correspondent, when we made search and found the estray. It is as follows:

"I learn the understanding now is, to treat the foreign letters precisely as the domestic letters are treated under the 1st section of the act approved June 12, 1866."

Our next letter contains an inquiry whether a package originally sent by mail, but carried by private hand to another place to which the party addressed has removed, can be deposited in the post office at that second place, for delivery, without additional postage. We answer, no; postage must be collected at local receipt for a registered package envelope can be forwarded free, in strict compliance with the laws regulating the franking privilege. Yes; such receipts are a part and parcel of the registration. We refer our correspondent to our editorial columns for a few hints on this subject is.... Our next is on the subject of accounts, to which in this case we cannot give a satisfactory reply, because it is one of those special cases which require a knowledge of the circumstances attending it. We judge, however, that our correspondent has overpaid the Department, and now wants to get back the amount overpaid. A letter to the Third Asst. P. M. General, or to the Auditor of the Treasury for the P. O. Department would doubtless point out the way..... Our next is on the subject of working on the roads. Our correspondent thinks it would be well for Congress to exempt postmasters from this duty. As his salary is 25 cents a day, and the fine in his locality, for not working on the road, $2 50, we think in his case at least it would. We would also say to him that papers and circulars, bearing a request to return, cannot be returned unless provision is made for prepayment of the postage.

☞ A few mornings since, we received among our mail matter two copies of the U. S. MAIL, tied together and indorsed as follows: "U. S. MAIL, don't you know there are no such offices in Ohio?" The papers were in their original wrappers, and addressed to postmasters at offices in that State. On referring to our file, we found the name of one of these offices in THE MAIL for March last, the other in that for April.

We have here another instance of the correctness and utility, and we might add indispensability, of THE MAIL. We are ignorant as to whether the writer of the words quoted in a subscriber to THE MAIL; but if not, we suggest that he, and all others having charge of forwarding mail matter, who are not become such, and if such, or when such, that he and they read carefully each number of the paper as received, and make such notes or memoranda of the new information contained therein as will enable them readily to use that information. The post-office list in each number may be made available by a simple plan; provide an index-book, of a size adapted to your locality and duty, and enter therein, under the proper initials, the names of all offices to which you send direct; as mail matter for all others go to one or the other of the several distributing offices, it is only necessary to know the State to which you are to send it. You will thus have a book of reference, so that if you take up a piece of mail matter bearing the name of an office of whose location you are ignorant, you have in your Post Office Directory and your index-book all the information needed to enable you to forward it, and you will not, through your ignorance, be the cause of delay in the reception of matter more or less important. You may say this plan involves a great deal of trouble, for which you are not paid. You are, however, paid to do it, for you are paid for certain duties, and it is your duty to send forward, if possible, the mail matter that comes to your hands for that purpose; but the trouble is not great—try the plan and see how little trouble it is and how much trouble it will save. Had it been pursued in the present instance, two postmasters in Ohio would have received their papers from two to three weeks earlier than they did.

And now postmasters, post-office clerks, postal-car clerks and route agents, you have a higher duty to perform than to fling, helter-skelter, mail matter coming to your hands; it is your duty to know, and if you do not know to learn, and when you are tempted to delay or return a letter or paper because you do not know what to do with it, be sure you are right before you go ahead.

NEWSPAPERS.—This word seems to have rather an indefinite meaning in the heads or minds of many postmasters and their clerks, their judgments thereon causing additional charges on delivery, or delay, or return for increased postage. The legal definition of newspaper may be found in Section 216, Laws of 1866, as follows: "Any printed publication, issued in numbers, consisting of not more than two sheets, and published at short stated intervals of not more than one month, conveying intelligence of passing events, and bona fide extras and supplements of any such publication."

In applying this definition it is better for postmasters to hold strictly to it, even too strictly. Do not pass anything as a newspaper which is not unmistakably a newspaper; it is better that a charge should be too great than too small, especially on matter to foreign countries. In our Table of Foreign Postages is a column expressly of newspaper postages, and, except only to Great Britain, no other printed matter than newspapers should be rated according to this column—circulars, magazines, periodicals, etc., (and, we may add, for the benefit of some postmasters we have heard of, drygoods stores, steam engines, etc.), are not newspapers, as embraced in that column; their rating (except for the drygoods stores, steam engines, etc.) is found in another one. To Great Britain, alone, circulars may be rated as newspapers, but nothing else—except, of course, newspapers themselves. Again, in rating according to the newspaper column, be careful to know whether the rate is so much for each paper, or so much for each four ounces. A timely use of these hints will save the detention and return of a large amount of printed matter addressed to foreign countries.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Increase of Salary.—O. B. M., L—— R——, Pa.—1. To obtain an increase of salary you must apply to the Postmaster General, when you will be instructed what course to pursue. 2. There are five classes of officers; the salaries vary from $4,000 down to $400, which is the lowest we have heard of. 3. To obtain marking and rating stamps, the gross receipts of your office must amount to at least $50 per annum; for letter balances, $75 per year must be collected in postages. Sec. 16, Reg. 1866.

Mail Registers.—B. S., P——, O.—No allowance is now made for returning mail registers.

Expenses, etc.—S. W. M., F—— S——, Ark.—1. Offices of the third class are not permitted to purchase boxes and office furniture; all the furniture allowed at the expense of the Department, is a cheap, plain desk. Sec. 26, Reg. 1866. 2 Nor are they allowed stationery 3. Nor, being a separating office, any extra allowance, except in certain cases for clerk hire, Sec 32, Laws; nor for rent, Sec. 91, Laws.

Payment of Drafts.—W. H. D., R—— C——, Wis.—The postmaster on whom a draft is drawn, must tender the money in payment of it to the holder.

Boxes.—P. N., B——, Ill.—Boxes must be rented, not sold. Sec. 92, Laws 1866.

Administering Oath.—C. J. P., S—— G——, Pa.—A postmaster cannot administer the oath to his assistant. His commission is not of the character referred to in Section 53, Laws of 1866..... C. W., B——, Tex.—The officer who administers an oath to a postmaster has a right to charge for the same.

Changing the Site of a Post Office.—J. K. P., D——, N. Y.—If no material change is made in the site of a post office, it is not necessary to notify the Department. Sec. 33, Reg. 1866.

Ownership of Post Office Regulations.—W. W. F——, Ind.—The Book of Laws and Regulations is the property of the Post Office Department, and must be accounted for by the officer to whom it is sent.

Enclosing two Letters in one Envelope.—J. F. M., A——, Va.—1. The Law forbids the enclosing of two letters to different persons in one envelope, but is silent respecting two letters from different people to the same person. We should judge the latter, however, to come within the meaning of the law, and that, therefore, it cannot be done legally, even if prepaid by two or more stamps. Sec. 214, Laws 1866. 2. There is no revenue tax on salaries of $1,000 or less Delivering Mail Matter addressed to another Office.—G. B. C., D——, Md., and H. R. J., S—— B——, N. Y.—Postmasters cannot deliver letters from their respective offices which may be addressed to and deliverable from other offices, except in case of discontinued offices. Sec. 63, Reg. 1866.

Salary.—F. L. S., E—— T——, Mass.—If the Postmaster General has fixed your salary to commence at a certain date, we do not see how you can expect proportionate compensation for services previous to that date..... R. Y. W., M——, O.—You must pay the balance due to the Department on demand; the balance due you on previous quarter will be paid by special draft.

Franking.—W. H., G——, Ind., and others.—This question seems interminable; we are almost inclined to vote it no matter. To meet the wants of our correspondents would take nearly a column of our paper every month, and as what we would say would be but a repetition of what can already be found in print, we must refer all inquirers to Chapter XX of the Regulations of 1866, and to a thorough and useful examination of back numbers of THE MAIL, including the Miscellaneous Information on our third page.

Postage.—T. R. S., W—— W——, Conn.—A book-book with writing in it is subject to letter postage. If without writing, to book postage..... R. J. E., L——, Tenn.—Manuscript for publication in newspaper is chargeable with letter postage. Only book manuscript can be sent at miscellaneous rates..... G. S., F——, N. C.—The mistake you made in rating the magazine to Scotland is a common one, for which we cannot think postmasters who take THE MAIL are excusable. We find that the matter of foreign postage generally is not carefully and thoroughly studied; in our last number we gave a few hints on the subject, and in the present number we add a few more, applicable to newspaper postage, which just meets your case. If we have failed to reply to other questions, it certainly was not for want of disposition to do so, but probably because, from the very large number we receive, they were classed with those a reply to which could already be found in THE MAIL. Such is the case with your present question, which, however, we have cheerfully answered, hoping it may profit many others than yourself..... S. A. G., T——, Pa.—A pattern having written directions, however few or short, is chargeable with letter postage..... E. M. D., P——, N. J.—Local circulars, delivered through post-office boxes, at offices where there is not a free delivery, should be charged at the rate of 1 cent..... S. A. A., S——, Pa.—Transient newspapers are chargeable with two cents for four ounces, irrespective of the number of papers..... J. A. P., M——, Mich.—Postage on drop letters where there is not a free delivery is 1 cent each half ounce. Sec. 261, Law 1866..... F. P. M., J—— C——, Kan.—1. Section 204, Regulations, fixes the postage on 10 to 12 circulars at 8 cents; while, by a decision of the Department, published among our "Answers" in the last MAIL, a package of circulars to one address may be rated as miscellaneous matter, viz., at two cents for four ounces. We take the distinction to be this: where a party, in good faith, sends circulars in quantities to one address, to be distributed by the party addressed as his agent, they are rated as miscellaneous matter; but where several are sent to various parties as circulars, and not for distribution, they should be rated as circulars. 2. Some articles of merchandise, such as paper, cards, etc., can be sent as miscellaneous matter. Such matter is fully described in Section 37, Reg. 1866..... G. H. T., D——, N. Y.—If you look at the dates of passing the sections referred to, you will find Section 222 much the later, and of course the later section repeals the earlier. .....J. B. G., G—— M——, Mich.—Postage-stamps are not a legal tender..... D. E., P——, Pa.—The postage on packages of papers distributed according to Section 211, Regulations 1866, must be paid at the quarterly rate on each paper.

Registration.—R. M. G., H——, Mich., and G. T. W., W——, Mass.—Postmasters at intermediate offices are not required to give or take receipts to or from each other for registered package envelopes in transit, but there is no objection to doing so; on the other hand, it would be very proper..... J. L. O., J——, N. Y.—Where postmasters or route agents send registered packages outside the mail-bag by a route agent or a mail messenger, they should always take a receipt. The neglect to do this may render them liable to be charged with the loss of a package, if any should occur. As a general rule, a registered package should never pass from hand to hand without a receipt, and its presence in a mail-pouch should be noted by every postmaster or person opening the pouch in which it is contained..... W. L. H., C——, N. Y.—We can scarcely understand how a postmaster can ask such a question as yours. Does not the bill accompanying the registered letter show from what office you receive it? Suppose a letter, originally mailed in Philadelphia, Pa., is received by you with registered letter-bill from New York D. P. O. If you enter, on your Account of Registered Letters Received, Philadelphia as the post office whence received, you at once create confusion. New York will have an account of having sent a letter to your office, while you will have no account of its receipt; on the other hand, you will have an account of a letter received from Philadelphia, while Philadelphia will have no account of sending such a letter. Your registered letter-bill always shows from what office you receive a letter, no matter where it was originally mailed. Sec. 357, Reg. 1866..... R. W. B., W——, O.—1. You have no right to open a registered letter to learn its contents. 2. Respecting a carrier or mail messenger, you will have to address the Second Asst. P. M. General. 3. A post office must be kept open the usual business hours of the place. Sec. 27, Reg. 1866.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the Germau States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retlmo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. Patterns and samples of merchandise (including seeds and grain), 8 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover. and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which Frsnce has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia. Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, ou prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints and patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abolished.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fmetion thereof.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

[All printed matter (except single copies of newspapers, magazines, and periodicals sent to regular subscribers from publishers) intended to go by mail westward from the western boundary of Kansas, or eastward from the eastern boundary of California, must be prepaid by stamps at letter postage rates. Sec. 259, P. O. Laws, Edition of 1863.]

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

CIRCULARS, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

ON MISCELLANEOUS MAILABLE MATTER (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic papers, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over four oz. in weight, 2 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 4 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 6 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 8 cts.

By a recent order of the Postmaster General, the fifth subdivision of the 42d instruction of the Post Office Law, approved March 3, 1863, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows: "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two ounces."

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds, roots, cuttings or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the clnb of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Weekly newspapers and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from counties bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞ All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short-paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly prepayment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribers. No such paper should be delivered, unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office, or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so prepaid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail, they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removed from office for neglect.

Post Office Blanks.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $112 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29, 1866.—I have examined "Stone's Post Office Account Book, for the Quarterly Record of Box Rents, Newspaper and Letter Postages," and believe it well calculated to facilitate the business of Post Offices, and to insure accuracy in keeping the accounts, and that its use by Postmasters will tend to increase the revenue of the Department.

ST. JOHN B. L. SKINNER,
First Ass't P. M. General.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. IX., NO. 2. NEW YORK, NOVEMBER, 1868. WHOLE NO. 98.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

PARIS, Oct. 15, 1868.

ORGANIZATION OF THE FRENCH POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

The organization of the Post Office Department of the French Empire differs in many respects from that of the British, as also in numerous details of the service. The official title of the department is the "Administration Generale des Postes," and its chief officer the "Directeur Général des Postes," who also holds the rank of Councillor of State. This office is now held by Mons. EDOUARD VANDAL. There is also a "Council of Administration," composed of three members, presided over by the Directeur Général. The supervision of the details of the various branches of the service is in charge of the three members of the Council of Administration, each of whom is the responsible chief of a "Division," which is again divided into three or four Bureaux, each of which is under the charge of a "Chef de Bureau," assisted by from one to three "Sous-chefs," with the necessary number of clerks. To these officers is entrusted the conduct of the correspondence and the enforcement of the regulations respecting the domestic and foreign service, dead letters (called "letters tombes en rebut"), postage stamps, railway post offices ("Bureaux ambulants"), money orders, registered letters, post-office accounts, ocean service, etc., etc. The duties appertaining to each bureau are specified with great minuteness of detail, and comprise substantially the same which belong to corresponding branches of our own and the British services, with some additions, among which I noticed one which it would be hardly popular to include among our foreign importations, viz., the "seizure of newspapers and other publications arriving from foreign countries"—such of them, that is, as are deemed by the Government to be of a dangerous and incendiary character. The bureau answering to our appointment office is under the supervision of the Directeur Général.

The French Empire is divided territorially into eighty-nine Departements—similar to our counties, exclusive of the "Department of the Seine," which comprises Paris and its suburbs. For postal purposes these Departments are arranged in six "Circonscriptions," called "Circonscription of the North, South, East, West, Southeast and Southwest." For each of these Circonscriptions an "Inspecteur" is appointed, who has the supervision of the postal affairs of his district, which in some instances includes twenty-four Departments. For each Department, again, a "Directeur," a "Controleur" and a "Receveur Principal" are appointed. The latter officer is the actual Postmaster of the city or town of his residence, besides being a sort of Postmaster General of his Department. Then come the postmasters at the smaller offices, who are known as "Receveurs" and "Distributeurs."

Post offices are called Bureaux des Postes, and are of four kinds: the Bureau composé, the Bureau simple, the Bureau de Distribution and the Facteur-Boiteur. The Bureau composé is managed by a Receveur (postmaster), assisted by the necessary commis (clerks), appointed by the Administration; the Bureau simple by a Receveur and aides, nominated by himself and approved by the Administration; the Bureau de Distribution by a Distributeur alone. The Facteur-boiteur receives and forwards dispatches and attends personally to the delivery of correspondence in the place of his residence—the delivery being performed, at the three first-named classes, by "Facteurs Ruraux" (Rural Letter Carriers).

DELIVERY BY CARRIERS.

In France, as in Great Britain, the delivery of letters is performed almost exclusively by carriers, who are called "Facteurs," and the system is substantially the same as that followed in Great Britain—small salaries included. At Paris, and at some of the other principal offices, letters directed to the larger banking-houses are delivered to them from boxes at the General Post Office, as are also letters addressed to soldiers in garrison—the number of the latter being quite large; but with the exception of these, and those addressed "Poste restante," and intended for temporary residents, all mail matter is delivered by the facteurs. These wear a semi-military uniform, and bear, some a satchel or valise, and others a box, carried by a strap over the shoulder, and resembling in shape a portable writing-desk. Each one is furnished with a small marking-stamp, with initials and change-able dates, with which he is obliged to stamp each letter which he receives and delivers, and which indicates the hour at which it was intrusted to him. He also makes use of this stamp to record, on a sheet posted in the office, his hours of departure and return from each delivery. He is furnished with postage stamps for sale, to a certain amount. The Facteurs of Paris are conveyed from the General Post Office (Hotel des Postes) in omnibuses, each man leaving the omnibus at the commencement of his route (tour), and, after completing his delivery, awaiting the return of the vehicle at a certain point, to be reconveyed to the office. There are thirty-nine sub-post offices within the city proper, besides sixteen in the environs, each under the direction of a Receveur, and five hundred and seventy-six boxes for the reception of letters for the mails and city delivery. They are not street "pillar-boxes," as in London, but are either inserted in the walls of houses or kept at the tobacco shops (which are conducted by persons appointed by Government, which derives an immense revenue from the monopoly of the sale of tobacco and cigars), where also postage stamps are required to be kept for sale.

RAILWAY POSTAL SERVICE.

The First Bureau of the First Division of the Administration Générale is charged with the general supervision of the Railway Post Office service (Bureaux Ambulants), and the service on each of the eight principal lines of railway is superintended by a Directeur and a Controleur. There are five hundred and forty-five agents (Railway Post Office clerks), divided into three classes. The service is performed substantially in the same manner as on our own Railway Post Offices.

REGISTRATION SYSTEM.

In its main features, the French registration system resembles the English and our own—each agent or other person into whose hands a registered letter comes in course of transmission being obliged to keep a record of the fact and give a receipt for the letter—but there are many of the details of the system which differ from both the others named. Registered letters are called "lettres chargés," and the registration fee is payable according to the weight of the letter. The sender of a lettre chargé is obliged to place on the back of the envelope five wax seals, all alike, and stamped with his private device (the impressions of ordinary seals, of pieces of money, thimbles, etc., not being allowed). Letters deposited in a Post Office, bearing more than one wax seal, are considered as containing articles of value, and are registered, not being delivered as unregistered at the office of destination, until they have been opened by the person addressed in presence of the postmaster or some other postal agent and found to contain no valuable inclosure. It is forbidden, under penalty of a fine, to deposit a letter containing coin in a post office without registration. In case of the loss of a registered letter, an allowance of fifty francs ($10) is made to the owner.

There is another class of registered letters called "lettres contenant des valeurs declarees." The sender of such a letter is required to inscribe upon the envelope the exact value of the contents (which must be bills or notes payable to bearer), and pay, in addition to the postage and registration fee, a premium of ten centimes (two cents) for each one hundred francs ($20) or fraction thereof. The contents must not exceed in value 2,000 francs ($400), though the same person may, on the same terms, send several letters at once to one address, each containing the above amount. In case of the loss of such a letter, the entire amount is made good to the owner, except when the loss has occurred through "superior force," and not through dishonesty or negligence on the part of a person in the employ of the post office.

Valuable articles of small dimensions (called "valeurs cotées"), are also received and registered—the articles being brought uncovered to the post office and deposited in their boxes or cases in presence of the postmaster, the package being sealed with the private seal of the sender and the official seal of the post office, and the value (not less than $6 nor more than $200) declared. On payment of one per cent. of this declared value, and the affixing of a four-cent revenue stamp to the package, the post office becomes responsible for the whole amount in case of loss.

RATES OF LETTER POSTAGE.

The rate of postage on a letter weighing ten grammes (about one-third of an ounce) or less, from one post office in France to another—or to Corsica or Algeria—is four cents; over ten grammes and not over twenty, eight cents; from twenty to one hundred grammes, sixteen cents; from one hundred to two hundred grammes, thirty-two cents, and so on, advancing sixteen cents for each one hundred grammes, or fraction thereof. A city drop-letter, in Paris, is charged two cents the quarter ounce, and the same charge is made on a letter deposited in any other post office intended for any place within the delivery of that office. Prepayment of domestic letters is optional, but unpaid letters are subject to a rather heavy tax on delivery.

MONEY ORDER SYSTEM.

Money orders are known in France as "Mandats d'articles d'argent," and are issued payable not only in France, but in Algeria, Cayenne, and other French colonies, and also in Italy, Switzerland, and Belgium. They can not be indorsed over to another person by the payee, though, in case of necessity, their payment to a third party can be obtained by complying with certain rather troublesome formalities. The fee charged is one per cent. of the amount of each order, and, in addition, a tax of four cents, payable by revenue stamp, is levied on each order exceeding ten francs in amount.

STATISTICS.

The following figures are taken from the last annual report of the French Post-Office Department, and show its operations for the year ending December 31, 1867:

Number of ordinary letters carried, 341,579,726; registered letters and packets, 4,305,120; official documents, 116,000,000; newspapers circulars, book-packets and samples, 305,319,320; money orders, 4,995,260—total, 772,199,426.

Money orders issued, 4,995,260, amounting in value to 146,000,000 francs ($29,200,000), on which fees were paid amounting to 1,461,000 ($292,200), and taxes to the amount of 592,200 francs ($118,440).

The total receipts from all sources, during 1867, had not yet been correctly ascertained. Receipts from all sources, during 1866.....81,853,529 francs.
Expenditures during 1866..62,024,386 "

Excess of receipts over expenditures.....19,829,143 "
(or nearly $4,000,000.)

It is possible that this large surplus will not excite so much surprise after a glance at the following facts, condensed from the report of Mons. Vandal, for 1866:

There were at that time in France, 16,406 "Rural Postmen," of whom 673 received sixty dollars, or less, per annum; 996, who received between $60 and $80; 2,970, between $80 and $100; 9,988, between $100 and $120; and 1,779, who received over $120.

Postmasters' salaries (Bureaux simples).	$160 to $440.
" " (Bureaux de Distribution).....	$100 to $160.
Clerks' "	$120 to $420.
Controleurs "	$580 to $800.
Steamship Mail Agents' salaries	$400 to $800.

All the subordinate officers are paid in about the same proportion—a fact not creditable to so great a nation, and one of which the effects are most unfavorable to the efficiency of the service—as Mons. Vandal, in his report, does not hesitate to set forth in the plainest possible language.

The Hotel des Postes, in Paris, is, in respect to space, ventilation and general convenience, scarcely an improvement upon what the shabby old Nassau street building was before Mr. Kelly's recent changes. The carriers' department, especially, is much overcrowded; but I learn that a change for the better may be expected ere long.

I learned, for the first time, of the existence here of a journal in some respects similar to THE U. S. MAIL. It is called the "Journal des Postes," and is devoted entirely to postal matters, though it has not a strictly official character. It contains "Answers to Correspondents" on postal subjects, with editorial articles, correspondence and miscellany, which render it a very entertaining sheet. The editor, Mons. LOUIS, has within a few months established a "Caisse Postale" (Postal Fund), a sort of health insurance society, sustained by small contributions from members—all in the postal service—and distributions are made each month among the sick and disabled.

My thanks are due to Mons. CHASSINAT, Receveur principal of the Department of the Seine, and to other gentlemen of the Administration, both for the valuable information and polite attentions which I have received from them while here.

Before the appearance of another MAIL, I hope to be once more within speaking distance of its readers. J. G.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, November, 1868.

In a country so extensive as ours, and embracing as it does every variety of climate and nationality, where room is abundant, facilities for everything inexhaustible, money plenty, intelligence ubiquitous, progress continually on the wing, and the approaches to perfection in art, science and literature thronged with brain-laden genius, it is a little surprising that comparatively so few individuals attain to that pre-eminently high position which lifts them above the surrounding crowds and makes of them a light for present guidance and a landmark for future example by those who, coming after us, desire to know what manner of men preceded them.

This is attributable, to some extent, no doubt, to the fact that modern conveniences for the acquirement of scholastic knowledge are so cheap and so general that all can be educated up to the same artificial level, and only those tower up above their fellows whose intellects, prepared by nature, receive and retain impressions which create an insatiable appetite for knowledge, which "makes the meat it feeds upon," and unremittingly asks for more.

Again, the greed of gain, the itching to grow rich, in a country like ours, where fortunes and reputations are made and marred as frequently as the changes of the moon, is so all absorbing that mental culture is made subordinate to business cunning, and masked morality indorses the adage, "Make money—honestly, if you can—but make money." With the increase of wealth, however, come the stirrings of ambition; and filthy lucre purchases reputations which, in the olden time, were only acquired by patient toil and honest teaching.

Nearly every individual among us who aims at distinction, selects as his model some one from the living great or memorable dead, and swells with pride when favorable comparisons are made which bring him near his prototype; and, in this way, our self-supposed great men have become so numerous, that scarce a village in the land but can boast its profound philosopher, whose wisdom the world suffers for the want of; its statesman, whose mighty mind has power and its poet and its painter, "with hearts pregnant with celestial fire," only waiting the opportunity to show the universe the extraordinary scope of their pent-up capacities. I do not want to be understood as saying or meaning that all who struggle to become rich succeed, or that all who believe themselves to be men of genius succeed in making others think so—but, out of a diluted admixture of wealth and intelligence, there has sprung up a hybrid class of characters, among them some of these village celebrities, whose greatness found no other outlet, who devoted their mixed morals and money to the establishment of purely native fraudulent and deceitful enterprises, from South Sea schemes to the meanest of petty larceny, lottery and gift swindles, to mature and manipulate which cheating projects require considerable sagacity, and to neutralize the effects of which, and save the unsuspecting from their dishonest designs, is not the easiest thing in the world.

Many of these contemptible frauds, endorsed by pseudo magnates took advantage of postal facilities to ply their vocation, but timely and commendable legislation has closed this avenue to their victims, and their inventive genius must, if it has not already, originate some other mode of robbing their poor credulous dupes. It is very probable that they will even attempt to use the post office again, in some covert manner; but I fancy they cannot succeed unless by colluding with officials, and this is scarcely within the range of possibilities. Post-office people, I am informed, are endowed with their proportion of the general intelligence which blesses our land, and are fully familiar with the latest promulgations from head-quarters, and any attempt to tamper with their integrity would certainly, I assume, bring direful punishment on any tempting offenders. There may be exceptions, whose natures are too feeble to resist temptation, too susceptible to flee from its seductive influences, or too avaricious to refuse its hush money, but on the honor of a benevolent and contemplative elderly gentleman, I believe they are as rare as four-leaved clover. If there be any such, they are confined to the very few who are too lazy to read or learn for themselves, or too slovenly to take care, for the protection of others, of the printed and written laws, regulations and instructions of the Department, and, consequently, know nothing about their legitimate duties, rights and responsibilities—but accept the situation, open the valves, and take the chances.

This ignorance, however, in regard to postal statutes and regulations is unfortunately not confined to those localities where tact is considered talent and cunning cleverness—where they are used for selfish aims and purposes, and where the functionary might shield himself behind his verdancy, although

"The village all declared how much he knew,
'Twas certain he could write and cipher too."

No, sir; you will find in many of the extensive institutions, where they pretend to know everything without learning anything, where they exercise discretionary power with such great authority as to throw entirely in the shade the mandatory, directory and advisory orders from the fountain head; champions of indifference to system and discipline; anti-promoters of the public good, adherents to old fogy customs, drags on the wheels of progress, and shallow, loud-mouthed fault-finders with everything that emanates from head-quarters which is intended to amplify, simplify, utilize and popularize the postal service, and make it commensurate with the present and prospective wants of the country.

Now, whether these sagacious individuals are familiar or not with the growth of the mail service since the days of Dr. Franklin, when he was pretty nearly "captain and all hands," is not for me to say or know, but any one to see the airs and assumptions of some of them would be justified in supposing them to be the incarnation and embodiment of all power and control over the vast postal system; and its success of failure, its usefulness or worthlessness entirely dependent upon their willful or skillful, active or passive caprice or pleasure. These are some of the self-estimated, overlooked, great men to which I allude in another part of my letter, whose mighty intellects are bound to show their size whenever the opportunity offers. Happy, happy post offices, to be the possessors of such rare human jewels!

"Shine out, fair sun, till they have bought a glass,
That they may view their shadows as they pass."

The plans and economy of the Department are sufficient for all its requirements, and if followed and respected as they ought and deserve to be, illegitimate practices would get no foothold; irregularities would never occur; crime would lack incentive and opportunity, and every part of the official machinery would work in harmony.

Happily the number of disobedients is small and scattered, and their ability to force their queer freaks and fancies on true men, amounts to very little. Occasionally a small office, however, in pursuit of knowledge under trying circumstances, regarding the workings of some more elaborate neighbor as the very acme of perfection and exactly the very thing to copy after, falls into the hands of one of these manufacturers of home-made law and gospel to suit the occasion, whose teachings almost always result in placing the credulous custodian of the aforesaid small office, with reference to the Department and his patrons, hors de combat.

But, probably, I have said enough on this subject, and more, perhaps, than an officious outsider will be thanked for. Nevertheless, it is said; and, by way of corollary, I will add, that so far as my knowledge extends, wherever attention is paid to the established and current rules of the Department, a well-managed and popular post office will be found; and where they are ignorantly and intentionally disregarded, you will find exactly the reverse—only a good deal more so.

MONS. TONSON.

GIVE PARTICULARS.—Postmasters or others in reporting losses of letters should give the full particulars of writer's name, mailing office, name of person addressed, office of delivery, and any other information that may have a bearing on the case, and in further correspondence relative to a loss already reported, some definite reference should be made to the previous letter, by which the two can be readily associated and brought together. To say, as many do, "in my letter of the — ult.," without any reference whatever to the subject matter of that letter of the — ult., almost invariably gives rise to much needless puzzling of the brain and search among a mass of correspondence, whereas, if the writer would but add, "regarding the loss of a letter addressed to ——," or whatever may be the subject of the letter, no difficulty would be experienced in understanding the case and referring to the previous communication. And in acknowledging the receipt of a registered package envelope, before reported as missing, give the particulars of number, office and date of mailing, etc, in the acknowledgment, as well as in the report of the loss.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, NOVEMBER, 1868.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances foe subscriptions or in reference to ths business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the city of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, &c., &c.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Tables of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster General.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when dne, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 9, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
Washington, Oct. 23d, 1868.

SIR—I inclose herewith a slip, showing the reduction of postage between the United States and Prince Edward Island, which is to take effect on the 1st proximo.

You will please insert the same in the next issue of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and modify the table of postages in accordance therewith.

I am, very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Supt. Foreign Mails.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. Mail, N. Y.

Reduction of Postage between the United States and Prince Edward Island.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
Washington, Oct. 23, 1868.

Under a new arrangement just conelnded between the Post Office Departments of the United States and of Prince Edward Island, the single rate of postage on international letters will be reduced, on and after the 1st of November, 1868, from ten to six cents, if prepaid at the office of mailing in either country. But, if posted unpaid or insufficiently prepaid, they will be subject to a postage charge of ten cents per single rate in the country of destination.

The authorized weight of a single letter will be fifteen grammes (by the metrical scale) in the United States, and half an ounce in Prince Edward Island.

Postmasters will levy postage accordingly on and after the 1st day of November proximo.

[OFFICIAL.]

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, Oct. 2, 1868.

SIR—You will please insert the following article in the issue of the U. S. MAIL for the month of November next, for the information of all concerned. I am, very respectfully,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Superintendent.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. MAIL.

Registration of Letters by British Mail, between the United States and the British and Foreign West Indies, and Ports in the United States of Colombia, Ecuador, Bolivia, Peru and Chili.

We are requested to state that an arrangement has been concluded between the Post Departments of the United States and Great Britain, to take effect on the 1st of January, 1869, for the registration of letters conveyed between the United States and the countries and places above named, in the British Mail.

The registration fee, to be levied and collected in the United States on each registered letter so forwarded to the said countries, etc., is eight cents, in addition to the rates of ordinary postage chargeable thereon.

Our Foreign Postage Table.

Several very important changes have been made in our Foreign Postage Table, in accordance with conventions with the Post Departments of other countries.

New Regulations respecting the Registration of Letters.

We received, some time since, from the Department several copies of the "New Regulations respecting the Registration of Letters," too late, however, for notice in our October paper, which we the more regret because they went into operation on the 1st of that month, and we find that some of our answers on the subject of registration were contrary to them.

We call attention to a few of the changes made in the Regulations of 1866. It is conspicuously declared to be the "DUTY OF POSTMASTERS TO ENCOURAGE THE REGISTRATION OF LETTERS."

SEC. 2. Postmasters at offices supplied wholly or in part by route agents or postal clerks will deliver all registered matter to go over such routes into the hands of the agents or clerks, and obtain their receipts therefor, instead of sending the same in "brass-lock pouches," as heretofore. Registered matter to go over other routes (i. e., routes on which there are no route agents or postal clerks) is to be sent as formerly, with the exception that the postmaster at the mailing office will affix to the registered package-envelope a blank receipt, to be signed and returned to him by the postmaster at the office where the pouch containing the same is next opened. Such postmaster will sign and return the receipt to the postmaster from whom he received it, and forward the package, with another blank receipt attached, to be signed and returned likewise to him. This plan of receipting is to be continued until the registered package shall have reached the office of final destination.

By this section it will be seen that there is no longer any distinction made in sending registered matter in some cases in brass-lock pouches, but that, wherever practicable, such matter is to be delivered into the hands of postal clerks or of route agents; and also that the registered matter to go over routes where there are no route agents or postal clerks, is to be accompanied by "Receipts for Registered Packages," in such a way as to form a series or chain of receipts, which will embrace the acknowledgment of every postmaster at whose office the pouch containing the registered matter is opened.

The "registered package envelopes" must be used for no other purpose than that of inclosing registered letters. All "registered package envelopes" spoiled by misdirection, or otherwise rendered unfit for use, are to be returned to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General at the close of each quarter. When a postmaster is superseded before the close of a quarter, he will forward them when he surrenders the office to his successor.

In like manner postmasters are required to report quarterly the number of registered letters mailed, stating separately the number of domestic and foreign, the number of "registered package envelopes" used for the same, and the amount of registry fees paid on each class. These reports to be addressed to the THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Particular attention is called to this change, and to the fact that the report of the number of the registered letters mailed is not a part of the quarterly returns, but is a special report to be sent to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

No account of the fees thus paid in stamps is required to be made in the account current.

This is too plain to require comment.

The section respecting "preparing and mailing registered letters," has been considerably modified. Postmasters are now instructed to enter in the heading of the bill—i. e., the registered letter bill and return registered letter bill—"the date on which the letter leaves his office," as well as the name of the office to which the letter is sent; if the letter is directed to an office beyond the first distributing office on the route, the letter is to be sent to such distributing office, the initials D. P. O. being added to the name. The registered letter, and the registered letter bill, are to be placed in the same registered package envelope. The "return registered letter bill" is to be inclosed in a red envelope, furnished by the Department for that purpose, and to be sent by the same mail as the registered letter. Letters for delivery and for distribution, sent to the same distributing office, are to be inclosed in the same envelope, but entered on different bills; that for distribution, containing the addition D. P. O. to the name, separate return bill are also to be filled up and sent.

Two noticeable features in this change are, that the registered letter bill is to bear the date the letter leaves the mailing office, and the use of the red envelope in which to forward the return bill

On opening a pouch at any time, if a registered package envelope be found addressed to that office, search must be made among the ordinary letters for the red envelope containing the return bill.....Registered package envelopes received, containing letters, are to be kept on file six months, and then returned to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

If a registered letter is received at the office of delivery, with the registration fee unpaid, the fee is to be collected, and stamps to the amount thereof affixed to the letter, and canceled.

Besido which, the Postmaster must immediately report the delinquent Postmaster to the Department.

The return receipt is to be sent to the original mailing office of the letter in one of the red envelopes.

If, on opening a pouch, a return bill is found, but no corresponding registered package envelope not registered letters are found, or received within a few days, the Postmaster will indorse the same "not received."

The further proceedings are the same as in the regulations of 1866. Postmasters will notice the words in italics. It has been found in practice that, in some cases, the return registered bill is received before the registered package envelope containing the letters, and that after the former was indorsed "not correct," and returned to the Postmaster and the case reported, that the package envelope would come to hand; hence it has been deemed proper that Postmasters should wait a few days before action in case of non-receipt of a package envelope; how long they must wait will depend on the frequency with which they receive mails and their own judgment

SEC. 18. No accounts or records in relation to registered letters are to be forwarded to the Department with the quarterly return. They are to be carefully preserved by the postmaster for reference.

N. B. By section 8 of the new Regulations, it will be seen that the fee for registering letters addressed to any part of the United States, or to Panama, N. G., will be reduced to fifteen cents, on the first of January, 1869.

We have thus reviewed the new Regulations for Registration, and given such extracts therefrom as we deem specially entitled to the attention of postmasters; we have done this, not with the wish to relieve postmasters and their clerks of the duty of reading and studying for themselves, but the rather to incite them to do so.

As a fitting adjunct to the above, we give some wise counsel to postmasters on the subject of Circular 46, generally called a tracer for registered letters. In more than one instance we have known these circulars to be stopped and returned before they have reached their destination, simply because some postmaster has thought it not worth while for them to go any further. There is no authority whatever for this, and no satisfactory reason. One of these circulars, once sent out, should be dispatched from office to office, according to its terms, till it reaches the office of destination of the letter, and in addition to the foregoing we must urge upon postmasters the importance of sealing the registered package envelope.

Caution to Postmasters.

The passage of the law prohibiting the mailing of Lottery, Gift Enterprise and all other swindling circulars, which has recently gone into effect, meets the case exactly; but the individuals who have hitherto managed the business are resorting to shrewd and adroit dodges to neutralize or evade its application. Adams & Co., of Boston, lead off in this wise: A number of blank circulars, with a one-cent stamp placed on each, and inclosed in an envelope addressed and registered to the postmaster at A. B or C, with a letter accompanying from the firm stating that under permission of the Post Office Department the circulars are thus sent to the said postmaster to be distributed and delivered through his boxes. This is all bosh. No such permission was ever given, and under Section 13 of the Act of July 27, 1868, Adams & Co.'s and all similar circulars must be excluded from the mails.

Below will be found the instructions of the Postmaster General, accompanying the Act of July 27, 1868. The act itself was published in our August number, but postmasters were then required to wait for these instructions, before acting on it. The act and the instructions are now in full force, and postmasters will be governed accordingly:

INSTRUCTIONS.

[Accompanying the Act of July 27, 1868.]

SECTION 1. It will be noticed that this section rescinds the 236th section of the Regulations of 1866. Postmasters will therefore promptly return to the writers all letters unclaimed, upon which are indorsed the names and addresses of such writers, whether a specific request for such return is indorsed or not—provided the original postage has been prepaid according to law. Requests printed on circulars are not to be regarded.

SEC. 3. This section is applicable only to weekly newspapers, issued from a known office of publication, when deposited in the post office nearest the office at which they are published. They must be properly folded and addressed, and the person to whom they are sent must be a regular subscriber thereto.

If such papers are delivered by letter carriers, they are chargeable with postage at the rate of 5 cents per quarter, payable quarterly, or yearly, in advance; but, if delivered by the post office, no charge will be made.

SECS. 10 and 11. Postmasters will report to the Department any violation of these sections of the law, with the evidence relied on to prove the charge.

SEC. 12. It will be remembered that this section applies only to post offices that may be specially authorized by the Department to sell postage stamps and stamped envelopes in the manner indicated above. In no case will authority be given to appoint agents, except in the large cities.

SEC. 13. Postmasters will promptly notice violations of this section, and immediately forward to the Dead Letter Office all letters or circulars concerning lotteries, etc. At same time, but separate from the package, a letter should be sent to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, advising him of their transmission.

SEC. 20. Postmasters at free-delivery offices will receive special instructions upon this section.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Our letters laid aside for our usual article are few in number. The first we take up is on the subject of extending the money-order system to the smaller offices. The efforts to have a small office, eleven miles from any bank or money-order office, embraced in this system, having failed, our correspondent addresses us, and makes a good argument. We therefore say, wait patiently; we believe the money-order system will eventually become the general rule for Post Offices..... Our next letter is on the question of salary. Our correspondent thinks "it rather rough on an old postmaster, who has served the Department faithfully, to have his salary cut down one half," especially when the salary is but thirty cents a day. While we withhold our opinion on the roughness of the case, we would suggest, by way of comfort to our friend, that salaries depend on the business of the office, and not on the fidelity of service. .....And then comes a letter on the subject of the prepayment of newspaper postage, in which our correspondent states that, "with a salary of sixty-one dollars, to be done being 'board' by collecting postage, he would willingly take twenty dollars instead of sixty-one." To say the least, this is a very forcible way of conveying the writer's opinion, but, if carried out, would not be at all profitable to him; he might better propose to pay the postage himself.....A clerk inquires if a Post Office clerk, receiving a yearly salary of less than one thousand dollars, is entitled to twenty per cent. on his wages. The question is too general for us to answer definitely. The Postmaster General ordered that Postmasters at Post Offices of the first and second classes, where the Department pays the clerk hire, be authorized to pay all clerks in their respective offices whose salaries are one thousand dollars and under, an increase of twenty per cent., to date from the 1st of March, 1867. Our impression is that this order was intended to apply to employees of the Department at that time.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Forwarding Foreign Letters Free, etc.—L. H. S., P——, N. Y.—1. In our "Sundry Post-office Matters" of last month you will find a reply. 2 You do not charge any post office with the postage on an unpaid letter sent to a distributing post office. You are aware, doubtless, that the use of "The Account of Mails Sent" was discontinued on the 1st of last month.

Transfer of Post-office Funds.—R. V. N., F—— C——, N. M.—The transfer of post-office funds must be made at the risk of the postmaster making the transfer.

Account of Unpaid Letters Sent.—S. G., W—— K——, Conn.—You are to "understand" exactly what the September number of THE MAIL states, viz., that no account of unpaid letters sent is to be kept, and no accounts or records in relation to registered letters are to be forwarded to the Department with the quarterly returns. We think this is clear. Do not muddle it by understanding that no account of registered letters is to be kept.

County Paper.—J. L., P——, N. Y.—If the post office to which the county paper is sent is the office at which the subscriber usually receives his mail matter, and if the subscriber lives in the county of publication, he may receive the paper free of postage..... S. S. F., N—— B——, O.—A county paper, to pass free in the mails, must be sent to a bona-fide subscriber, residing in the county of publication. It cannot be sent free to a person residing in another county, no matter who pays for the subscription. Sec. 223, Reg. 1866.

Borrowed Postage Stamps.—J. R. G. G—— M——, Wis.—You are not required to make any return to the Department of stamps purchased or borrowed of another postmaster. Sec. 161, Reg. 1866.

Payment of Post-office Draft.—N. A. S., W——, O.—On collecting a post-office draft, you credit the Department in your "General Account." Sec. 335, Reg. 1866.

Post-office Hours.—T. E., G——, Wis.—The Department requires a post office to be kept open the usual business hours of the place where located, and also that a postmaster, or a sworn assistant, should be always in readiness to receive and dispatch mails. Sec. 27 and 77, Reg. 1866.

Credit for Stamps returned to the Department.—E. K. B., C——, Conn.—You will receive notice from the Department how to obtain credit for stamps returned.

Application for Money Orders.—J. W. McK., M——, Mo.—The applicant for a money order must enter for himself, or cause to be entered for him, all the particulars of amount, name, address, etc., before the order can be issued. Sec. 527, Reg. 1866.

Sale of Stamps.—J. B. S., N—— M——, Ky.—There is no prohibition on the sale of stamps, except the charge for them; in other words, every one is at liberty to sell stamps, but not at liberty to charge more than the regular price. Sec. 172, Reg. 1866.

Report of Mail Failures.—L. G. P., P—— E——, Pa.—1. The failure of an agent to leave or to take a catch mail may be reported by the agent or the postmaster. 2. There is no limit to the speed of the cars, the catching of the mails must depend upon the dexterity of the agent. 3. If the agent is not at his post, he should be reported to the Department. Sec. 117 and 470, and Reg. 1866.

Salary.—H. S. R——, Ill.—We have frequently stated that we have no means of judging of questions of salary in individual cases. We can only express an opinion on the law generally applicable to the subject. You took the right course in writing to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Residence of Postmaster.—J. A. T., R—— F——, Wis.—A postmaster must reside within the city or town where the post office is situated, and within its delivery. Sec. 9, Reg. 1866.

Quarterly Returns.—J. M. H., M——, Kan.—You will find the papers constituting the Quarterly Return, named in section 304 of the regulations of 1866, with the exceptions of the changes noted in one of our "answers" in THE MAIL for last September.

Request Letters.—H. D. L., S——, Ind.—Request letters, if not delivered, should be returned on the expiration of the time named in the request, though the person addressed should have left orders for his mail matter to be retained till he calls for it. Sec. 394, Reg. 1866.

Return Letters.—H. P., O—— P—— C——, Va.—By the regulations (Sec. 364, Reg. 1866) return letters are not to be advertised, but where it may be done without expense, we see no objection to doing it.

Forwarding Letters.—G. W. J., C——, Me., and J. T., F—— H——, Wis.—Section 248 of the regulations of 1866 has been rescinded, and paid letters may be forwarded free at the request of the party addressed, but not after they have been delivered to any person or hotel to whose care they were sent. If once delivered beyond the control of the Post Office Department, letters on forwarding are chargeable with postage.

Legal Tender for Coins.—G. N., P—— Ill.—The one and two cent coins are a legal tender for any amount not exceeding four cents.

Exemption of Postmasters, Etc.—1. H. F., U—— C——, Tenn., and others.—1. Postmasters and their clerks and drivers of mail stages are exempt from militia duties and serving on juries, but not from working on roads. Secs. 39 and 40, laws of 1866. 2. Boxes must be rented and the rents accounted for to the Department. 3. Advertise letters by a manuscript list.

Franking.—H. W., B——, Ill., and others.—The franking privilege of Members of Congress commences with their terms of office, and ends with the first Monday of the December after the expiration thereof.

Registration.—E. R. K., W—— R——, Mich.—A registered letter should not be returned at the request of the alleged writer. But if a request is indorsed on the letter itself, it must be returned, and neither registry fee nor postage is required.

Postage.—M. T. M., J——, N. C.—Postage should be collected on a foreign letter with the United States postmark in black, though the letter is not accompanied by a post bill, as the absence of the latter would be undoubtedly accidental. On your Account of Mails Received enter the amount and make a memorandum opposite it, "No bill."..... L. B., L—— S——, Ill.—Postage should be charged on papers brought to your office for delivery, if the papers are printed and published in another town. See Secs. 50, Reg. and 251, Laws, 1866, also Sec. 3 of Act of July 27, 1868.....1. T. W., N—— L——, Coun.—Postage to Tahiti is 10 cents, prepayment compulsory. Sec. 270, Reg. 1866.

COMMUNICATION.

F——, La., August 20, 1868.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL.—Your welcome visitor for this month is received. If you have any room in your next issue, I wish to say a few words in regard to postage on papers. Some postmasters have a great deal of trouble about collecting postage on newspapers and other printed matter. I will just state things as I have seen them.

We will say the quarter commences first of next month. M—— receives a paper. The postmaster says, "M——, you owe 35 cents for postage on your daily papers. The post office requires it to be paid in advance, at least for one quarter." He says, "Well, I will pay you to-morrow." The postmaster says, "That won't do, I must collect in advance." He says, "I have not got any money with me." The next time he comes in, the postmaster says. "Have you got that change with you?" He says, "No, I have not got it." He says, "You and your postage are a sight of trouble," but still he does not pay it. Still it goes on that way until the quarter is over and he has not paid it, then the postmaster has to pay it out of his own pocket. The next quarter is the same way. If you refuse to give out the papers, you make your friends mad with you. Then they find fault with you, and want you turned out of office. They get up a list, and take it around the town, getting every one to sign it. They send it to Washington, D. C., making complaints that the postmaster is not doing his duty; they say he refuses to give them their mail; and he will not keep his office open on Sundays, and, at the same time, he is following his post-office regulations. Therefore, I suggest that it would be more profitable for the Post Office Department to have all postage paid in advance at the mailing office. As for myself, I do not have much trouble with my office, but I hear of complaints being made by other postmasters that have a great deal of trouble about collecting postage and box rent. As for myself, I have blanks printed for box rent and postage, and at the beginning of every quarter, I make out my bills and present them to the parties; if they don't pay up, then I give them one week, and at the end of that time if they have not paid, I discontinue their boxes. When they find out that I am in earnest about it, they come up and pay. But a postmaster makes more enemies than friends. I must close my letter, fearing I have too long trespassed on your time. I hope I have not worried you any. I thought I would give you a few lines of mine in regard to post offices.

Yours, truly,
J. C. F., Postmaster, F——, La.

We commend our correspondent for his firmness, in insisting on the payment of postage and box rents according to the requirements of the law, but we cannot think he will make enemies of any whose friendship is worth having. However, much they may be annoyed, people in the end will respect the man who unflinchingly does his duty.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entrle s on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

MISCELLANEOUS CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. Patterns and samples of merchandise (including seeds and grain), 8 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices (viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibrulla, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mityiene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo), can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 8 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 8 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 2, 3 and 4) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

I. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana (or by American packet, leaving New York 22d each month), the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Prepayment compulsory.

Anegada,	Dominica,	*St. John,
Anguilla,	Grenada,	St. Lucia.
Antigua,	Grenadines,	*St. Thomas,
Barbadoes,	Jamaica,	St. Vincent,
Barbuda,	Montserrat,	Tobago,
Cayman (Great & Little),	Nevis,	Tortola,
	St. Christopher,	Trinidad,
Caymanbrack,	*Santa Cruz,	Vieque,
Cuba,	St. Eustatius,

* To St. Thomas, St. John and Santa Cruz, via Havana, the postage on letters is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each.

To the Bahama Islands, (which consist of Great and Little Abaco, Andros, Crooked Islands, Eleuthera, Great Bahama, Great Exuma, Great and Little Inague, Long Island, Mariguana, New Providence, Providenciales, San Salvador and Watling Islands), the postage on letters is three cents per half ounce, (to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received)—on newspapers, 2 cents each; on book packets, 4 cents per four ounces. The mails for the Bahamas leave New York once a month by direct steamer to Nassau. See Table of Dates of Departure of Foreign Mails.

To the following islands the postage on letters, via Havana or St. Thomas, is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each:

Buen Ayre,	Guadeloupe,	Orniba,

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutant-General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abolished.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

CIRCULARS, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

ON MISCELLANEOUS MAILABLE MATTER (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over four oz. in weight, 2 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 4 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 6 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 8 cts.

By a recent order of the Postmaster General, the fifth subdivision of the 42d Instruction of the Post Office Law, approved March 3, 1863, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows: "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two ounces."

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds, roots, cuttings or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Weekly newspapers and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from countries bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞ All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short-paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly prepayment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribers. No such paper should be delivered, unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office, or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so prepaid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail, they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removed from office for neglect.

Post Office Blanks.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. IX., NO. 3. NEW YORK, DECEMBER, 1868. WHOLE NO. 99.

THE NEW POSTAL CONVENTION.

The following is a copy of the Convention between the General Post Office of the United States of America and the General Post Office of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland:

The General Post Office of the United States of America and the General Post Office of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, being desirous of regulating, by means of a new Convention, the communications by post between the two countries, the undersigned, duly authorized for that purpose by their respective governments, have agreed upon the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

There shall be an exchange of correspondence between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the United States of America, as well for letters, newspapers, book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise, originating in the United States or in the United Kingdom, as for articles of the same nature originating in or destined for the countries or colonies the correspondence of which is forwarded through the United States or through the United Kingdom.

ARTICLE II.

Each office shall make its own arrangements for the dispatch of mails to the other office by well-appointed ships, sailing on stated days, and shall, at its own cost, remunerate the owners of such ships for the conveyance of the mails.

ARTICLE III.

The postage on a single international letter shall be sixpence in the United Kingdom and shall be twelve cents in the United States, and the authorized weight of a single letter shall be half an ounce in the United Kingdom or fifteen grammes (by the metrical scale) in the United States.

For other than single letters the same charge shall be made for every additional half-ounce or fifteen grammes or fraction thereof.

The question of the further reduction of the letter rates of postage shall be considered at the expiration of twelve months from the commencement of this Convention.

ARTICLE IV.

Every international letter insufficiently paid, or wholly unpaid, received in the United States from the United Kingdom, shall, in addition to the deficient postage, be subject to a fine of five cents, such fine to be retained by the United States Post Office; and every international letter insufficiently paid, or wholly paid, received in the United Kingdom from the United States, shall, in addition to the deficient postage, be subject to a fine of twopence, to be retained by the British Post Office.

ARTICLE V.

International Newspapers, Book Packets, (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, and so forth), and Patterns and Samples of Merchandise (including seeds and grain), shall be transmissible by either office under such regulations as the despatching office may from time to time lay down, and at the following charges, viz.:

For every Newspaper, not exceeding four ounces in weight, one penny in the United Kingdom, and two cents in the United States.

For Book Packets and Patterns:

When not exceeding an ounce in weight, one penny in the United Kingdom, and two cents in the United States.

When exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces in weight, two pence in the United Kingdom, and four cents in the United States.

When exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces in weight, three pence in the United Kingdom, and six cents in the United States.

For packets exceeding four ounces in weight, an additional rate of three pence, or six cents, for every four ounces or fraction of four ounces.

These regulations, however, shall include the following:

1. The postage shall be fully prepaid.
2. No book packet may contain anything which is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.
3. No book packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.
4. Neither office shall be bound to deliver printed papers the importation of which may be prohibited by the laws or regulations of the country to which they are transmitted.
5. So long as any customs duty is chargeable in the United States on the importation from the United Kingdom of any of the articles enumerated above, such customs duty shall be leviable in the United States, and the proceeds shall accrue to the United States Treasury.
6. Except as above, no charge whatever shall be levied in the country in which international newspapers, book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise are delivered.

ARTICLE VI.

The postage collected in the two countries on international letters, newspapers, book packets and patterns or samples of merchandise, together with the fees for registration, (but exclusive of fines for unpaid or insufficiently paid letters), shall be equally divided between the two offices, and in making said division the two offices shall account to each other for the following rates per ounce, or per pound, according to the weight in bulk of each class of international correspondence.

1. The British Post Office shall account to the United States Post Office for twenty cents an ounce on all paid international letters sent to the United States; for twenty cents an ounce on all unpaid international letters received from the United States; for seven and a quarter cents per pound on international newspapers sent to the United States; and for sixteen cents per pound on international book packets and patterns sent to the United States.
2. The United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office for twenty cents an ounce on all paid international letters sent to the United Kingdom; for twenty cents an ounce on all unpaid international letters received from the United Kingdom; for eight and three-quarter cents per pound on international newspapers sent to the United Kingdom; for sixteen cents per pound on international book packets sent to the United Kingdom; and for nineteen cents per pound on patterns sent to the United Kingdom.

ARTICLE VII.

That portion of the postage of transit letters, transit newspapers, book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise which represents the charge for the sea conveyance between the United Kingdom and the United States shall belong wholly to the despatching office.

For the purposes of this article, the charge for the sea conveyance of letters in closed mails across the Atlantic shall be computed at twenty cents per ounce, or per thirty grammes, and the charge for the sea conveyance across the Atlantic of newspapers, book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise shall be computed at three pence per pound, or twelve cents per kilogramme.

ARTICLE VIII.

The United States Post Office may deliver to the British Post Office letters or other postal packets, which have been registered, addressed to the United kingdom. Reciprocally, the British Post Office may deliver to the United States Post Office registered letters or other postal packets, which have been registered, addressed to the United States.

The postage of registered letters and so forth shall always be paid in advance.

In addition to this postage, there shall also be charged a registration fee, the amount of which shall be fixed by the despatching office.

ARTICLE IX.

The United States Post Office may further deliver to the British Post Office registered letters and so forth, addressed to those countries or colonies to which registered letters can be sent from the United Kingdom.

The United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office (in addition to the postage due to the British Post Office), for such sum as shall be chargeable to the inhabitants of the United Kingdom for the registration from the United Kingdom of every registered letter and so forth addressed to the countries or colonies above mentioned. On its side, the British Post Office may deliver to the United States Post Office registered letters, and so forth, addressed to those countries to which registered letters can be sent from the United States.

The British Post Office shall account to the United States Post Office (in addition to the postage due to the United States Post Office), for such sum as shall be chargeable to the inhabitants of the United States for the registration from the United States of every registered letter and so forth addressed to the countries above mentioned.

ARTICLE X.

The British Post Office engages to grant the transit through the United Kingdom, as well as the conveyance by British mail packets, of the closed mails which the United States Post Office may exchange, in either direction, with the post offices of United States Possessions or of foreign countries; and the United States Post Office engages to grant the transit through the United States, as well as the conveyance by United States mail packets, of the closed mails which the British Post Office may exchange, in either direction, with the post offices of British Possessions, or of foreign countries.

The country which sends or receives closed mails through the other shall render an account of the letters, newspapers, book packets and patterns contained in such closed mails.

ARTICLE XI.

The rates of postage to be mutually paid for the territorial transit (including the passage of the English Channel) of all letters sent from one country to the other for transmission to places beyond, in closed mails, shall be as follows: The British Post Office shall account to the Post Office of the United States for three and three quarter cents an ounce for the conveyance of such letters through the United States; and the Post Office of the United States shall account to the British Post Office for 1½d. (one penny one farthing) per ounce for the conveyance of such letters through the United Kingdom.

The transit rates of postage to be mutually paid for newspapers, book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise sent in closed mails, shall be four pence per kilogramme for transit through the United Kingdom, and six cents per pound for transit through the United States.

ARTICLE XII.

When, in any British or United States port, a closed mail is transferred from one ship to another, without any expense devolving on the office of the country owning such port, such transfer shall not be deemed a territorial transit, and shall not give rise to any charge for territorial transit.

ARTICLE XIII.

The rates of postage to be paid by the British Post Office to the United States Post Office for the sea conveyance, other than across the Atlantic, of correspondence sent from the United Kingdom to the United States, in closed mails, for transmission to places beyond, or brought to the United States from places beyond, in closed mails, for transmission to the United Kingdom, shall be the same that are paid by the inhabitants of the United States; reciprocally the rates of postage to be paid by the United States Post Office to the British Post Office for the sea conveyance, other than across the Atlantic, of correspondence sent from the United States to the United Kingdom, in closed mails, for transmission to places beyond, or brought to the United Kingdom from places beyond, in closed mails, for transmission to the United States, shall be the same that are paid by the inhabitants of the United Kingdom.

ARTICLE XIV.

The combined territorial and sea rates upon transit correspondence sent in ordinary mails, to be accounted for by one office to the other, shall be the same that are paid by the inhabitants of the country through which the correspondence is forwarded.

ARTICLE XV.

The British Post Office shall account to the United States Post Office for the sum of two cents upon every single paid letter sent through the United Kingdom in ordinary mails, addressed to the United States; and the United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office for the sum of one penny upon every single, paid letter sent through the United States in ordinary mails, addressed to the United Kingdom.

ARTICLE XVI.

There shall be an exchange of correspondence between the United States of America and the British Post Office Agencies established in the Danish Colony of St. Thomas, in Panama, in Colon and in San Juan (Porto Rico). The postage to be accounted for on such correspondence shall be fixed, from time to time, by the mutual consent of the two offices.

ARTICLE XVII.

The British Post Office shall prepare, at the expiration of every quarter, separate accounts, exhibiting the results of the exchange of correspondence, whether in ordinary mails or in closed mails, between the respective offices.

Such accounts shall be founded upon the acknowledgments of receipt of the respective offices during the quarter.

The separate accounts shall be incorporated in general accounts, which shall be compared and settled by the two offices, and the balance shall forthwith be paid, in the money of the country to which the payment is to be made, by that office which is found to be indebted to the other.

In converting United States currency into sterling, or sterling into United States currency, four shillings and two pence shall be considered as the equivalent of a dollar.

ARTICLE XVIII.

Official communications addressed by the United States Post Office to the British Post Office, or by the British Post Office to the United States Post Office, shall not give rise to any account between the two post offices.

ARTICLE XIX.

The two offices shall, by mutual consent, make detailed regulations in accordance with the foregoing articles, such regulations to be terminable on a reasonable notice by either office.

ARTICLE XX.

The convention for regulating the communication by post between the two countries, signed in London on the 18th June, 1857, shall cease to have effect on and from the date on which the convention now to be concluded shall be put in operation.

ARTICLE XXI.

This convention shall come into operation on the 1st January, 1869.

ARTICLE XXII.

This convention shall be terminable at any time, on a notice by either office of one year.

Done in duplicate, and signed in London the seventh day of November, and at Washington the twenty-fourth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight.

[L. S.] MONTROSE,
Postmaster-General of the United Kingdom.
[L. S.] ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster-General of the United States.

I hereby approve the foregoing convention, and in testimony thereof I have caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

[L. S.] ANDREW JOHNSON.

By the President:
WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.
Washington, November 24, 1868.

DETAILED REGULATIONS

Arranged between the General Post Office of the United States of America and the General Post Office of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the execution of the Convention of the twenty-fourth day of November, A. D., 1868

ARTICLE I.

Each office shall send mails by well-appointed steamships of approved speed, sailing on stated days, between Liverpool and New York or Boston and New York, or Boston and Liverpool, via Queenstown; and also between Southampton and New York, and New York and Southampton, as often as such steamships shall be despatched; provided that the mails so sent shall not be delayed by such mode of despatch, and provided that the cost of transit can be arranged by each office in accordance with the rates which that office may think it right to pay for the conveyance of mail matter.

If it be shown by either office that the sending of any portion of the international letters to any designated port causes a delay to such letters, it is agreed that the other office shall cease to send such letters to said port unless when letters are specially addressed to be so sent.

ARTICLE II.

Accommodation for the sortation of letters on board shall be provided by the despatching office, when desired by the office to which the mails are sent; the two offices to determine by mutual consent whether sorting officers—if employed—shall belong to the British or to the United States Post Office, or partly to the one and partly to the other; the salaries of the sorting officers to be paid by that office to which the officers shall belong.

ARTICLE III.

The following shall be the regulations for the exchange of mails between the British and the United States Post Offices.

1. The office of London shall exchange mails with the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Portland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco.
2. The office of Liverpool shall exchange mails with the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Portland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco.
3. The office of Southampton shall exchange mails with the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco.
4. The office of Dublin shall exchange mails with the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Portland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco.
5. The office of Cork shall exchange mails with the offices of New York and San Francisco.
6. The office of Londonderry shall exchange mails with the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Portland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco.
7. The office of Glasgow shall exchange mails with the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Portland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco.
8. The office of New York shall send mails to the British Packet Office at St. Thomas (West Indies).
9. The British Packet Office at Panama (United States of Colombia) shall exchange mails with the offices of New York and San Francisco.
10. The office of New York shall send mails to the British Packet Office at Colon.
11. The office of New York shall send mails to the British Packet Office at San Juan (Porto Rico).

ARTICLE IV.

The mails which are sent from the office of New York to the British Packet Office at St. Thomas shall comprise correspondence passing between the United States of America and the British and Foreign West Indies.

Upon the correspondence despatched from New York to St. Thomas, addressed to any foreign port in the West Indies, the United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office at the rate of four pence per half ounce for letters and one penny each for newspapers.

The mails which are exchanged between the British Packet Office at Panama and the offices of New York and San Francisco, shall comprise correspondence passing between the States on the western coast of South America or the British Colonies of Australia and New Zealand and the United States of America.

Upon the correspondence despatched from New York or San Francisco to Panama, addressed to any of those States or Colonies, the United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office as follows:

1. Upon correspondence addressed to the States on the western coast of South America:
   — 1s. 0d. for each half-ounce letter.
   — " 2d. for each newspaper.
   — " 3d. per 4 oz. for book packets.
2. Upon correspondence addressed to the British Colonies in Australia or to New Zealand:
   — " 6d. for each half-ounce letter.
   — " 2d. for each newspaper.
   — " 3d. per 4 oz. for book packets.

The same rates shall be accounted for by the United States Post Office upon unpaid letters and newspapers originating in the States on the western coast of South America, in Australia or New Zealand, despatched from Panama, addressed to the United States.

The mails which are exchanged between the British Packet Office at Colon and the office of New York shall comprise correspondence passing between the United States of Colombia and the United States of America.

Upon the correspondence despatched from New York to Colon, addressed to the United States of Colombia, the United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office at the rate of four pence per half ounce letter and one penny each for newspapers.

The mails which are sent from the Post Office of New York to the British Packet Office at San Juan (Porto Rico) shall comprise correspondence passing between the United States of America and the Island of Porto Rico.

Upon the correspondence despatched from New York addressed to Porto Rico the United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office at the rate of four pence per half ounce for letters and one penny each for newspapers.

ARTICLE V.

Upon ordinary correspondence despatched from the United States in ordinary mails, by way of the United Kingdom, addressed to the countries and colonies enumerated in Table A, annexed to the present regulations, the United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office for the rates of postage set forth in that table.

ARTICLE VI.

Upon ordinary correspondence despatched from the United Kingdom in ordinary mails, by way of the United States, addressed to the countries and colonies enumerated in Table B, annexed to the present regulations, the British Post Office shall account to the United States Post Office at the rates of postage set forth in that table.

ARTICLE VII.

The exchange of registered letters and other postal packets between the post offices of the United Kingdom and the post offices of the United States shall be regulated as follows:

The letters, &c., shall be entered with all the necessary details, on special lists according to the Form C, annexed to the present regulations.

The registered letters, &c., and the nominal list shall be then tied together with a cross-string and placed in a canvas bag of an orange color, which shall be securely tied at the neck by a string, the ends of which shall be sealed with the seal of the despatching office.

The registered letters, thus made up, shall be placed in the mail of which they form part.

The number of registered letters entered on the special lists must be specified at full length, in words, in the place reserved for the purpose at the foot of the Letter Bill.

If it should happen that there are no registered letters to be forwarded, a blank list shall be sent enclosed as usual in the orange-colored canvas bag.

The special lists shall be retained by the office to which they are sent, which shall simply acknowledge the receipt, numerically, of the registered letters received by it, by the next list which it shall have to send to the corresponding office.

In case of any difference or error being discovered on the opening of the mails, the attention of the despatching office shall be called to the circumstance by the first post.

ARTICLE VIII.

The United States Post Office may deliver to the British Post Office registered letters, newspapers, book packets, and patterns or samples of merchandise addressed to the undermentioned countries or colonies, viz:

Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt, (viz: Alexandria, Suez, and Cairo), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong-Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria, Western Australia.

On its side, the British Post Office may deliver to the United States Post Office registered letters addressed to the undermentioned colonies:

Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia.

ARTICLE IX.

The following regulations shall be observed with respect to the registered letters referred to in the preceding article:

The United States Post Office shall account to the British Post Office for the sum of four pence, in addition to the postage due to the British Post Office upon every registered letter, newspaper, book packet, and pattern or sample of merchandise originating in the United States and addressed to any of the countries or colonies enumerated in the preceding article.

On its side, the British Post Office shall account to the United States Post Office for the sum of eight cents, in addition to the postage due to the United States Post Office upon every registered letter originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to any of the colonies enumerated in the preceding article.

ARTICLE X.

Every mail passing between the Offices of Exchange of the respective post offices shall be accompanied by a Letter Bill, specifying the amount of postage due to each office on each class of correspondence.

The office to which the mail is addressed shall acknowledge its receipt by the next post.

The Letter Bills from the offices of London, Liverpool, Southampton, Dublin, Cork, Londonderry, and Glasgow, for the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Portland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco, shall be in conformity with the form D annexed to the present regulations.

The forms of Letter Bills which the offices of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Portland, Detroit, Chicago, and San Francisco shall use, in their communications with the foregoing British Offices of Exchange, shall agree with the patterns above described.

The Letter Bill from the offices of New York, and San Francisco for the British Packet Office at Panama, shall be in conformity with the form F annexed to the present regulations.

The Letter Bill from the office of New York for the British Packet Office at Colon, shall be in conformity with the form G annexed to the present regulations.

The Letter Bill from the office of New York for the British Packet Office at St. Thomas, shall be in conformity with the form H annexed to the present regulations.

ARTICLE XI.

The respective Offices of Exchange shall mark with red ink, in ordinary figures, on the upper right-hand corner of the address of paid letters passing in transit, the amount due to the office to which the letters are transmitted; and, in like manner, shall mark, with black ink, on unpaid letters passing in transit, the amount due to the dispatching office.

ARTICLE XII.

The respective Offices of Exchange shall divide the correspondence which they shall mutually exchange into as many distinct packets as there are different articles in the Letter Bills.

To each packet shall be attached a label showing the number of the article in the account, as well as the amount of postage to be brought to account in respect to the matter covered by the label.

The labels which the respective Offices of Exchange shall make use of, in virtue of the provisions of the present article, shall be printed as follows:

1. On pink paper for paid international correspondence.
2. On yellow paper for paid transit correspondence.
3. On white paper for unpaid correspondence, whether international or transit.
4. And on blue paper for matter giving rise to no account.

ARTICLE XIII.

Dead letters, newspapers, etc., which cannot be delivered, from whatever cause, shall be mutually returned after the expiration of every month.

Such of those letters, etc., as shall have been charged in the account, shall be returned for the same amount of postage which was originally charged by the sending office, and shall be allowed in the discharge of the account of the office to which they were transmitted.

Dead letters, etc., which may have been received in closed mails, and which cannot be produced by the office which has to claim the amount, shall be admitted for the same weight and amount of postage which was originally charged upon such letters, etc., in the accounts of the respective offices, on a declaration, or on lists vouching for the amount of postage demanded.

ARTICLE XIV.

Letters forwarded for the purpose of annoying or injuring the parties to whom they are addressed (the postage of which both offices are authorized to return to the public even after they have been opened) may be included and admitted with the Dead Letters mutually returned.

ARTICLE XV.

Ordinary or registered letters, book packets and patterns of merchandise, misdirected or missent, shall be reciprocally returned, without delay, through the respective Offices of Exchange, for the same weight and amount of postage at which they were charged by the dispatching office to the other office.

The articles of a like nature addressed to persons who have changed their residence shall be mutually forwarded or returned, charged with the rate that would have been paid by the receivers.

ARTICLE XVI.

The detailed regulations agreed upon between the post offices of the United Kingdom and of the United States, in the convention signed at London on the 18th June, 1857, shall cease to have effect on and from the day on which the present detailed regulations shall be put into operation.

Done in duplicate and signed in London the seventh day of November and in Washington the twenty-fourth day of November, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight.

Mons. Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO.

Thanksgiving, with its dear, delightful family reunions, its banquets for the rich and its feasts for the poor, its sermons for the serious and its amusements for the fun-loving, its meetings and its partings, its promises fulfilled and reaewed, has past, and the long-dreamed-of destruction of battallions of turkeys and acres of pumpkin pies has been realized, and the sadness of separation materially softened by the consciousness that those who had to go forth did so with stomachs amply stuffed with the best of creature comforts, without regard to cost.

I was an invited guest at one of these domestic entertainments, and fully indorse the most extravagant praise that can be bestowed upon them as a peculiar institution. I was positively enchanted, and, with the exception of a slight drawback, I never enjoyed myself better in my life. This little check on my pleasure was innocently (no doubt) caused by the spineter sister of my host from Vermont, who, like myself, had chosen to live up to date "fancy free," and heloaged to the long catalogue of unclaimed human property. Whether it was the poultry, or the highly-flavored mince-pies, or the currant wine that softened the nature of Aant Tabitha, or whether, in very desperation, she determined to overcome any objections I might have to madly rushing into the realms of Benedictdom, or whether she was stimulated to claim the traditional privilegee of leap year, heaven only knows. But I do know that such sweet-toned toaes, such affectionate glances, such frequent examinations of the (borrowed for the occasion) diamond ring on my little finger, and the necessary pressure in turning my hand to get the effect of the light on the brilliant, accompanied by the lovingest of looks, amazingly confused me, and the queer replies I gave to some questions which, in my agitation, I did not really comprehend, convinced the rest of the family that I was a "gone ap" bachelor—and, on my honor, they seemed to govern their conduct accordingly. In fact, they talked over domestic matters precisely as if I were a party directly interested, and the absurdity of the whole thing was climaxed by two or three chubby cherubs addressing me (schooled to it, no doubt, by some one), as "Uncle Toonsy." After dinner, we retired to the parlors for the music part of the arrangement, and on our way thither, as the escort of Aunt Tabitha, I happened to address her as "Miss Tabitha." "Pray, dear Mr. Tanson," she half whispered in my ear, "don't speak to me as if I were a school-girl; call me plain Tabitha—you may—and I will like you all the better for it, and if I knew your Christian name I would call you by it—pray what is it?" Without stopping to think, I told her, and, before many minutes had elapsed, Mona Tanson was dropped and Mantemorenci (that's my maiden name) was used to ring the changes upon. It was rather too much for the children, however, and, after two or three futile attempts to master it, they gave it up; and, when they afterwards particularly desired to attract my attention, they confined themselves to "say oo," probably meaning "say, you." The longer I stayed the sweeter the lady appeared to be getting, and what the result would have been I can't tell; but just when interruption was desired the most by me, a servant announced that a letter-carrier was in the hall, with a letter for Miss Tabitha. She followed the servant out, and in a few moments a piercing shriek resounded through the house. I rose to ascertain the cause, when in the afflicted lady rushed again, grasping an open letter, which she handed me, with the exclamation, "Read that, Monty—read it!" and threw herself, half drowned with tears, upon a sofa. Carefully adjusting my spectacles, I held the fearful missive before me and read:

"MARBLEDUST, Vt., Nov. 23th.

"COUSIN TABBY—Cum ham rite away, sum one hruk in last nite and tuk every mite af mapel sugar, npeot all the pikels and let the aider run ent—and his darg fit and kild yure pet cat which woks us up and it run away. So father ses you better cum bum rite away and help to fix things. No mare at present from your luving little cussin. AMOS."

This was most too great a tax on my gravity, and it was with the utmost difficulty I could refrain from a burst of laughter. In the mean time the letter passed from my hand, and was commented upon by all—due allawance being made for its imperfections, as the writer was only a seven-year old. Suddenly Miss Tabitha rose, and in a tragic voice said: "Laban, when do the cars leave for Brattleboro?" "At 4:47 P. M.," was the reply. "What time is it now?" "Just faur." "Then help me to pack up. I am going tonight. O, my poor, poor cat!" And she did go, and scarcely said good-by to any one. I pretended to regret her sudden leaving, but I was glad, very glad, and finished up the evening gloriously. After I retired I reviewed the affairs of the day, and the only individual to whom I felt I owed that day more than I gave was that letter-carrier. I always did like the letter-carrying system, and this made me think more of its advantages. That letter might not have been called for until next day, and where would I have been? Where—oh, where? Independent of this personal benefit, I cannot for my life see why people object to have their letters brought to them by authorized postmen, which insures more safety, speed and certainty. I am inclined to believe that these objections do not originate with those who are served; I think that postmasters themselves are the cause of having fault found with the method, by their indifference to its proper, thorough and popular working—and by temporizing with employees who regard it as an innovation upon the rights and privileges of the ancient order of B. and D. sentinels. Many postmasters, too, cannot comprehend the advantages af the postal-car system; but, like the ignorant traveler who had clambered up a high mountain to look into a temporarily suspended crater; and not having sense enough to discern the smouldering, hidden forces beneath, descended again in disgust, convinced that there was nothing in it, and made a note to that effect in his journal. The secret of this is, I fear, that the celerity with which letters are carried between the most distant as well as the intermediate points, calls for more exertion and more attention to business—more experts handle mail matter—and the postmarks are unmistakeable guides to offices where good and bad work is done, and where delays occur. And these experts don't fail to remind, in various ways, delinquents af it; and this exposition of their sins of omission and commission makes them dislike this great and, when perfected, most complete beneficial public improvement of our country. A return to the mail service as it was performed under the direction af Modecai, P. M. General to King Ahasuerus, when "letters were sent by posts on horseback, and riders on mules, camels and young dromedaries," would suit better, perhaps; and even that might be regarded as too fast by some af them, especially the mule service. Luckily, these opposition members are not numerous or influential enough to inflict any permanent injury on either of these branches af the mail service, and no efforts af theirs can for a moment retard their advance, or complicate their workings. The carrier system is now a city necessity, and its great advantages are every day becoming more familiar and more desirable to all; and the traveling post office organization is a natural necessity, so great in its demands and so grand in its contemplated combinations, that any sane man should be ashamed of displaying opposition to its elaboration, or chagrin at its inevitable success. But there always have been, and there always will be, official Fadladeens, and no modern teaching can school them to ask this question:

"Had we not best be mute and hide our ignorance
Than spout to publish it?"

MONS. TONSON.

P. S.—Refuse all letters for me, sent to you, post-marked "Marbledust"—let 'em go to the Dead Letter Office.

SIR—You will please insert the following instructions in the next issue of the U. S. MAIL for the information af Postmasters and the public.

Very respectfully,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Supt. Foreign Mails.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. MAIL, N. Y.

Instructions Concerning "Return Receipts" for Registered Letters Dispatched to or Received from the North German Union:

By section 2 of the Detailed Regulations arranged between the Post Departments of the United States and the North German Union for the execution of the Postal Convention recently concluded between the two countries, it is provided that in either country the sender of a registered letter may demand, by a notice on the address, that a receipt shall be annexed thereto by the dispatching exchange office for the signature of the person receiving the same, and that, after the signature of such person is affixed to such receipt, it be promptly returned to him or her as the case may be.

Whenever, therefore, a letter is posted and registered at any office in the United States for any place within the North German Union, and the sender thereof shall demand that a receipt for the delivery of such letter be returned to him or her, as the case may be, it shall be the duty of the postmaster of the office at which the same is posted, to indorse upon such registered letter the following words, viz.: "Return Receipt demanded"—whereupon the United States Exchanging Office dispatching said letter shall annex a "return receipt" thereto, which, when returned from Germany to such United States Exchange office, shall, without delay, be forwarded from thence to the postmaster of the office of mailing, by whom it shall, as early as practicable, be delivered to the sender of such registered letter.

There shall be no fee levied for the delivery of a receipt.

On the other hand, when a registered letter from the North German Union having a "return receipt" attached, is received at any office in the United States for delivery, the postmaster of such office shall cause said receipt to be signed by the person to whom the letter is delivered, which receipt he shall, as soon as possible after signature, forward DIRECT to the United States Exchange Office from whence it and the registered letter which accompanied the same were received.

In cases where registered letters from North Germany having "return receipts" attached cannot from any cause be delivered, such receipts with the registered letters to which they refer, should, in the usual course, be sent to the Dead Letter Office at Washington.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, Nov. 14, 1868.

SIR—I have to inform you that in consequence of changes which have taken place in the rates of postage on the correspondence exchanged between Trieste (Austria), and Egypt, the postage hereafter chargeable upon the correspondence forwarded from the United States to the North German Union for Egypt, via Trieste, will be as follows:

By direct Mail to Hamburg or Bremen: Letters, per each 15 grammes (½ ounce), for Alexandria, 15 cents; for Lower and Middle Egypt (excluding Alexandria), 20 cents—prepayment optional; and for Upper Egypt, 20 cents—prepayment compulsory. On printed matter and samples of merchandise—for Alexandria: Newspapers, 8 cents, and book-packets and samples of merchandise, 11 cents per each four ounces or fraction thereof—prepayment compulsory. Small newspapers, however, not exceeding two ounces in weight, can be forwarded on prepayment of 6 cents postage; and for Lower, Middle and Upper Egypt, newspapers, 9 cents, and book-packets and samples of merchandise, 12 cents, per each four ounces or under—prepayment compulsory. Small newspapers, not exceeding two ounces in weight, will, however, be forwarded, if prepaid 7 cents.

By North German Union closed mail, through England: The charge for each 15 grammes on letters will be 20 cents to Alexandria; 25 cents to Lower and Middle Egypt (except Alexandria)—prepayment optional; and to Upper Egypt, 25 cents—prepayment compulsory. On printed matter and samples of merchandise—for Alexandria: Newspapers, 9 cents, and book-packets and samples, 13 cents, per each four ounces or fraction thereof—prepayment compulsory. Small newspapers, not exceeding two ounces in weight, are, however, transmissible on prepayment of 7 cents each. And for Lower, Middle and Upper Egypt: newspapers, 10 cents, and book-packets and samples of merchandise, 14 cents, for each weight af four ounces or fraction thereof—prepayment to be made in advance. Small newspapers, however, weighing two ounces or under, are transmissible at a charge for postage of 8 cents.

I have further to inform you that the International register fee of 8 cents per letter prepays the cost of registration af letters by this route to Alexandria and Lower and Middle Egypt, but letters only can be registered: registration to Upper Egypt not being admissible.

You will please make the necessary changes in the table of foreign postages in the next issue of the U. S. MAIL.

Very respectfully,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Supt. Foreign Mails.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. MAIL, New York.

[NOTE.—The northern portion of Egypt is known as "Lower" Egypt; the central portion as "Middle" Egypt; and the southern portion as "Upper" Egypt.—ED. U. S. MAIL.]

Rates of Postage

BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, ON AND AFTER JANUARY 1, 1869.

The new Postal Convention just concluded with the United Kingdom, which goes into operation on January 1st, 1869, establishes the following rates of international postage, viz.:

1. Letters—12 cents per single rate of 15 grammes (half ounce) in the United States, and sixpence (12 cents) in the United Kingdom, prepayment optional.

A fine of 5 cents in the United States, and twopence (4 cents) in the United Kingdom will, however, be levied and collected in addition to the deficient postage on each unpaid or insufficiently prepaid letter received by one country from the other.

2. Newspapers—2 cents each in the United States and one penny each in the United Kingdom, if not exceeding four ounces in weight.

3. Book-packets (including printed papers of all kinds, &c. &c.) and patterns or samples of merchandise (including seeds and grain):

When not exceeding one ounce in weight, 2 cents in the United States and one penny in the United Kingdom.

When exceeding one ounce and not exceeding two ounces in weight 4 cents in the United States, and twopence in the United Kingdom.

When exceeding two ounces and not exceeding four ounces in weight 6 cents in the United States and threepence in the United Kingdom.

When exceeding four ounces in weight, an additional rate of 6 cents in the United States, and threepence in the United Kingdom will be charged for every additional four ounces or fraction thereof.

The postage chargeable as above, upon all articles of printed matter, including patterns or samples of merchandise, must be fully prepaid at the mailing office in either country, and is in full to destination—the receiving country delivering the same in all cases without any charge whatever.

Erratum.

The attention of Postmasters is called to a mistake which appears in the 8th section of the "new regulations respecting the registration of letters." The fee for registering letters addressed to Panama, New Grenada, is EIGHT (8) cents and not TWENTY (20), as stated. The fee for registering domestic letters only will be changed on the 1st of January, 1869.

Postmasters receiving registered letters from foreign countries with "return registered letter receipts" attached, will be careful to have the same properly signed, etc., by the person addressed, and immediately returned to the United States exchange offices from which such letters and receipts were received—New York, Philadelphia, Boston, or Chicago, as the case may be.

Particular attention is called to the duty of plainly postmarking with the stamp of the office all registered package envelopes, as well as letters.

The Postmaster General has modified the existing regulation so as to allow circular postmarking stamps to ALL Post Offices, and Postmasters not now furnished should at once apply for such stamps to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

A. N. ZEVELY,
Third Assistant Postmaster General.

Lottery and Gift Enterprise Letters, etc.

Section 13 of the Act of Congress, appraved July 27, 1868, provides that—

"It shall not be lawful to deposit in a post office, to be sent by mail, any letters or circulars concerning lotteries, so-called gift concerts, or other similar enterprises offering prizes of any kind on any pretext whatever."

The Instructions of the Postmaster-General under this section are as follows:

"Postmasters will promptly notice violations of this section, and immediately forward to the Dead Letter Office all letters or circulars concerning lotteries, etc. At same time, but separate from the package, a letter should be sent to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, advising him of their transmission."

The object of the law and instructions quoted above is unmistakable. It is to prevent the United States mails from being any longer used to further the schemes of the villains who for years have been enriching themselves by plundering the unwary by means af letters and circulars relating to pretended lotteries and gift enterprises—some appealing simply to the cupidity of the victims, others mixed with various proportions of bogus piety, philanthrophy and patriotism. Up to the time of the passage of the above law, there was no method by which the post office authorities could lawfully avoid a forced participation in these swindles, except by the return to the writers of such letters as were addressed to clearly fictitious names assumed by the lottery rogues. (Sec. 60, Regulations af 1866.) This means, however, was found to be altogether inadequate to check the evil, awing to the difficulty—often impossibility—af obtaining sufficient proof of the fictitious character of the names under which the operators disguised themselves; and although in a number af cases some of the most prominent rascals were made to gnash their teeth over the loss of the entire harvest which they had hoped to reap from the artful and enticing circulars which the post office had been compelled to sow for them broadcast over the land, yet it is a fact that in the majority of instances the Department was powerless to apply a remedy.

But, fortunately, "we have changed all that." Congress—not improbably at the suggestion of the Department—has, in the above brief section, left the once prosperous and defiant gift-enterprise swindler "ant in the cold." So far as the post office is concerned, he is left without rights (in the practice of his friends) which anybody is bound to respect. As it is not the province af the General Government to punish crimes which do not involve the violation af a national law, he is threatened with no pains and penalties for depleting the pockets af his credulous fellow-citizens—he is simply deprived of the aid of the national postal establishment in carrying ent his designs. The gay Galus Hubbard (jr.), the affable Todd, the gentle Jason Tuttle, the elegant Elias and the covetous Kelley, may cantiane to angle fer gudgeons at their own sweet wills, either under the names given them in baptism by their sponsors (if any such were rash enough to "promise and vow" for them), or disguised under such aliases as their fertile fancies may suggest; only—the post office will not henceforth be a "pleasant place" for their "lines" to fall into. This we take to be the intention af the law referred to—and the instructions of the Postmaster-General are in strict accord with this view.

We have received from postmasters a number of letters containing inquiries on this subject, one af which we print:

"Recent law forbids the circulation through the mails of gift enterprise advertisements. At which end is it to be determined that a given circular is a gift enterprise or lottery swindle—at the mailing or delivery office? New York, St. Louis, Chicago or Philadelphia may mail lottery circulars by the thousand to other offices. Suppose such villainous papers reach me, addressed to known citizens of this place, shall I withhold their delivery? Is that the meaning of the law? I hope so."

We can only say in reply to the above and similar inquiries, that, while we are entirely without authority to add to or abate the language af the official instructions on this subject, it seems to us clear that it is simply necessary for a postmaster to know that a letter or circular "concerne a lottery or gift enterprise," to justify him in sending it to the Dead Letter Office—and this whether it be posted at his office, "to be sent by mail," or arrive there for delivery. Such a letter or circular, if in a post office or in a mail, is always there "unlawfully," and is consequently subject to the treatment plainly prescribed by the instructions.

Postmasters, however, should be careful not to take any action in this matter which is not justified by the terms of the law. For instance, they cannot lawfully refuse to issue a money order payable to the proprietor of a gift enterprise or lottery—(though there is no law forbidding the offer of a little friendly advice to those who apply for such orders); nor can they presume that all letters addressed to the swindlers concern their swindling business. The fact must be known, either from information given by the writers, or otherwise, before such letters can be treated as "unlawfully deposited."

☞ ALL post offices are now entitled to be furnished with postmarking stamps. See official order of Third Assistant Postmaster-General, in this number of THE MAIL.

☞ WE are unwilling to delay the publication of THE MAIL until the assembling of Congress, and are therefore unable to furnish our readers in the present number with our usual annual abstract of the Report of the Postmaster-General.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Delivering Letters.—H. M. H., R——, O.—A mail pouch should not be opened at a landing or station to deliver letters. Letters should only be delivered from the office to which they are addressed, except in case of discontinued offices. Sec. 63, Reg. 1866.

Changing a Mail Schedule.—J. F. C., C—— C——, Ind.—A mail schedule cannot be changed without the consent of the Department. Write to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General, Contract Office.

Mail Driver Voting.—G. E. W., E——, Mass.—A mail driver, like any other person, can only vote at his place af residence.

Opening Return Letters.—D. H., S—— L——, N. Y.—It is not necessary that a letter returned from the Dead Letter Office to the writer should be opened in the presence of the postmaster. If an ordinary return letter, it is simply to be delivered like any other.

Newsdealers' Package.—D. S., N—— W——, Md.—A newsdealer must pay the postage on every paper in his package; the postage may be prepaid for one quarter, or paid on the packages as received. Sec. 202, Reg. 1866.

Payment of Money to Contractors.—A. M., S——, Ill.—Payments must be made to contractors, according to the terms of the orders of the Department, whether the amount be more or less than is their due. Sec. 278, Reg. 1866.

Letter bearing Illegal Stamp.—J. S., B——, Tenn.—A letter bearing an illegal stamp is unpaid as much as though it bore no stamp at all, and hence is unmailable, and should be send by the mailing office to the Dead Letter Office; but if by any chance it reaches the office of destination, postage should be collected. Sec. 158, Reg. 1866.

Newsdealers' Packages.—J. M. W., K—— C——, Wis.—The section (254) of the laws to which you refer seems to contemplate the delivery, by route agents from mail cars or steamboats, af newsdealers' packages sent in their charge, and not that such packages should be allawed in mail pouches to be transparted long distances from railroad stations.

Post-office Boxes.—J. K. N., W——, O.—The Department neither owns, erects or repairs letter-boxes, except when the building is owned by the United States. But, if boxes are erected in a post office, rent must be collected for their use, and accounted for to the Department. Chapter 42, Reg. 1866.

Registration.—W. W. L., A——, Ill.—The Department is not responsible in case of a loss of a registered letter.....A. P. S., P——, N. Y.—It is the duty of a postmaster to fill the date and name of the mailing office, in a return registered-letter bill. Sec. 10, Regulations for Registration. The blank space in the return registered-letter bill for the date of mailing, to be inserted by the mailing office, is, in our judgment, very clearly shown. It follows after the words "Registered letters received from," the blank lines above being for the name of the receiving office and the date of receipt.....C., W——, N. Y.—Registered letters are to be sent to the first D. P. O. on the route. See Section 10 af the "New Regulations for the Registration af Letters." You are mistaken in supposing that the Department has first in view the carrying of registered letters expeditiously. Security is the first object; after that, as much expedition as is compatible with security. Our rule requires correspondents to give their names; we have departed from it in this case, because we deem an answer of importance to others than yourself; but, generally, correspondence, to receive attention, must be accompanied by the full names and post-office addresses of the writers.....P. J. K., V——, Pa.—The red envelopes are furnished by the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

Mail-messenger Receipts.—H. M. J., D——, O.—Mail-messenger receipts are furnished by the First Assistant Postmaster-General.

Postage.—A. P. S., P——, N. Y.—Manuscript music is chargeable with letter postage. .....J. Y., E——, Ala.—Insurance policies filled in with writing, whether sent in packages of one, or a dozen, or more, are subject to letter postage.....C. A., M——, Min.—Samples and sample cards, as used in the law, apply to specimens of cloth, dry goods, or other flexible material, of no other value except as samples, and not intended for use. .....A. S., W——, Pa.—An English postage stamp cannot be used to prepay postage on a letter mailed in the United States, and addressed to that country.....J. C. C. H., S—— C——, Iowa.—It is a universal rule that any manuscript alteration in printed matter, except of conrse corrected proofs, and franked matter, subjects the same to letter postage. Sec. 216, Reg. 1866.....W. M. D., K——, Ill.—Papers should be sent regularly from a known office of publication or by newsdealers to pass through the mails without prepayment. Secs. 202 and 225, Reg. 1866.....L. S. D., S——, Oregon.—Newspaper manuscript should be charged at letter rates.....J. W. C., P——, Pa.—Local or drop letters are subjected to the same rule of prepayment as mail letters, differing only in rate, hence if unpaid, or not prepaid one rate, they should be sent to the dead-letter office. Sec. 360, Reg. 1866. .....C. W. G., O——, Ill.—The two cents paid on papers to France, pays only the United States charges, and a charge is made on delivery. The same is the case with papers sent from France, they are chargeable with two cents, the United States postage, on delivery here. This charge should be marked on by the exchange office.....A. D. B., P——, N. J.—The postage to Formosa is thirty-four cents the half ounce.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES.—That there is a strong and increasing public sentiment in favor of a reform in the matter of appointments and removals in the civil service of the country is evident from the fact that some of the most decidedly partisan of our newspapers are urging the necessity of such a reform—pointing out the evil results which attend the custom of removing competent and faithful public servants for political reasons and filling their places with those who, though perhaps equally worthy otherwise, lack the experience necessary to a proper fulfilment of official duty, and who are themselves liable, as soon as that experience has been acquired, to be displaced in their turn. There is no branch of the public service in which the workings of this system prove more disastrous than in the Post Office; and we are glad to believe, from the above and other indications, that this obstacle to its progress and usefulness is in a fair way to be removed.

LIST OF POST OFFICES.—J. Disturnell, corner of Third avenue and Seventh street, New York, has just published a revised and correct List of Post Offices in the United States. See his advertisement.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United Stntes, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labnan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierm Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registmtion fee (in stamps) of sixteen centa. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stmps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in this preceding paragmph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal Sintes via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. Patterns and samples of merchandise (including seeds and grain), 8 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepeid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, engiogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter nddressed to Fmnce, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which Fmnce has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Incholi, Jaffa, Kerassund, Lainkla, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinopc, Smyrna, Suline, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to Fmnce direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; hooks, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. Fmnce in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient posinge, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA mnet, in all cases, be collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediarica, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

PROSPECTUS OF

Frank Leslie's Publications.

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

The aim of this paper is to furnish a pictorial history of current events. Between thirty and forty illustrations appear in every weekly number, including eight engravings of the pictorial spirit of the foreign press, events of national or local interest, railroad or steamboat accidents, amusing and thrilling incidents, comics, etc. The literary matter comprises, besides well-written editorials on the leading questions of the day, and descriptions of the engravings, a serial story of thrilling interest, entertaining narratives and tales, humorous anecdotes, choice poems, etc.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Chimney Corner.

A purely literary pictorial. Excluding events of the day, its aim, as its title indicates, is to furnish amusement for the leisure hour. Its contents consist principally of original stories by able writers—including a serial, accounts of remarkable adventures, biographical sketches of self-made men—with portraits, descriptions of manners and customs in remote countries, short poems, fairy stories, enigmas, conundrums, charades, etc. Illustrated with large and spirited engravings, of which there are from fifteen to twenty in each weekly number.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustrirte Zeitung.

A pictorial newspaper in the German language, containing a large number of engravings illustrating events of the day, exciting and amusing incidents, adventures and manners and customs in all parts of the world, with a large amount of literary matter, including numerous interesting tales. This paper combines for the German reader the attractions presented in the illustrated Newspaper and the Chimney Corner.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustracion Americana.

An illustrated paper in the Spanish language, with all the attractive features, pictorial and literary, that have made Frank Leslie's other publications so popular.

Subscription price in the United States, $12 currency.

Frank Leslie's Boys and Girls' Weekly.

One of the cheapest pictorial papers ever published. Intended for the amusement of youth of both sexes. The illustrations and literary matter are such as especially recommend themselves to the young. It contains, besides a continued story and well-written tales, accounts of wonderful adventure, descriptions and illustrations of foreign manners and customs, anecdotes and pictures of animals, familiar and funny fables, parlor magic, etc. From twenty to twenty-five engravings appear in each weekly issue.

Subscription price, $2 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine.

The leading fashion periodical in America. Each monthly number contains a large colored plate of the latest fashions, from designs sent from Paris as soon as invented, which are thus published simultaneously in New York and Paris; also a four-page uncolored fashion plate, embracing the various leading styles. These are accompanied with full descriptions and explanations, with numerous other illustrations. Every number contains an original letter from Paris, describing the very latest modes, by a lady whose position gives her access to fashionable society. The literary portion of this magazine comprises a continued story, numerous interesting tales, poetry, anecdotes, etc. The whole profusely illustrated with fine engravings.

Subscription price, $3 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Budget of Fun.

This is a comic pictorial newspaper, published on the first of every month. Its remarkable success, and the steady increase in its circulation, attest its adaptation to the popular taste. It looks at things of the day from a comic point of view, and its illustrations—of which there are from forty to fifty in every issue—are directed, without respect to station or person—against the follies and vices of the times. It constitutes an almost inexhaustible source of amusement and fun.

Subscription price, $1 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Pleasant Hours.

The cheapest periodical in the United States, containing eighty large octavo pages of letter-press, with from twenty to twenty-five illustrations besides two full-page engravings, on tinted paper, in each number. A continued story, and well-written tales and stories of adventure, with humorous anecdotes, descriptions of manners and customs, amusements for young people, etc., constitute the reading matter.

Terms of subscription, $1 50 per year.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. IX., NO. 4. NEW YORK, JANUARY, 1869. WHOLE NO. 100.

"Politics and the Post Office."

[Six years ago a communication under the above title was published in THE MAIL. As the matter of which it treats is just now receiving a good deal of attention from the public—and is moreover one of special interest to the majority of our readers—we offer no apology for its republication.—ED. U. S. MAIL.]

Believing that a few remarks on a subject to which I have lately devoted considerable thought, and in regard to which I have spent some time in personal investigation, will be welcome to you and your readers, I venture to ask for them room in the columns of your paper, as being the most appropriate channel—by reason of its special devotion to the interests and needs of the mail service—through which to express my humble opinions as to certain matters connected with that service. I make no apology for the fact that these opinions have not the merit of being those of a professional expert, and lack the weight and authority of official character. I am simply one whose experience of mail matters has been confined (with the exception of the recent and somewhat superficial inquiry into the interior working of postal machinery before alluded to) to availing myself, to a large extent, of its advantages, and suffering more or less, from its defects. In short, I am one of the public for whose benefit, I presume, the postal service was instituted, and whose interests are, or should be, the first to be consulted by those to whom is entrusted its management and control; and I propose to submit, as briefly as possible, and with all due deference, my ideas as to what I regard as the main cause which has led to a serious perversion from its legitimate purposes and aims.

This cause, I maintain, is not to be found in any inherent defect in the postal system itself. That there are such defects I am not prepared to deny—but I believe the system as originally devised, and with the improvements which have, from time to time been introduced therein, to be as nearly perfect as the vast field over which its operations extend will allow. The root of the evils of which I complain is to be found in a single word—POLITICS. And here, let me say, I speak ex cathedra, and not as one of the profane—for though I have never held office, I am, or have been, a politician, and can therefore "speak of that I do know, and testify of that I have seen;" and the result of my connection with politics is a profound conviction that in whatever other branch of the civil service of the Government it may be safe and proper to allow political opinions to be the test of fitness for, or political influence and party services to constitute a claim to office, it is neither safe nor proper to require such a test, nor allow such a claim, to the selection and appointment of the subordinates of the Post Office Department; and, moreover, that the principle of "rotation in office," however just and wise it may be when elsewhere applied, can work nothing but mischief—far-reaching, periodical mischief—when made to operate in the cases of postmasters and post-office clerks. Let me give some of the reasons for the faith that is in me with respect to this matter:

The duties of a postmaster and of his clerks—even in small offices—are made up of numberless little details, which render them of the nature of a trade, or profession. They are not to be learned in a day, a month, or a year, but require, for their satisfactory fulfillment, as much time, practice and study as are required for the attainment of proficiency in the average of other vocations. The nature of these duties is such that their faithful and proper performance is a matter in which all classes of the community are directly and personally interested—each to a greater or less extent, according to circumstances, but all to some extent. I believe there is not one man in a hundred, no matter to what degree intelligent or educated, who, entering without experience upon the task, would be capable of successfully and correctly administering the affairs of one of even the smaller class of post offices, and strictly following the numberless rules given for his guidance in the book of "Post Office Laws and Regulations"—even though assisted by the U. S. MAIL at his elbow. He must serve an apprenticeship to the business, in order to qualify him to carry it on with satisfaction to himself, or to the community whose convenience and interests he is appointed to serve. Now, is it not the fact, that the postmasters in the bulk of our cities, towns and villages, with their deputies and clerks, are removed at every change of administration—just as the experience they have laboriously acquired has fitted them for their positions—to give place to successors who, in their turn, begin by learning painfully the A B C of their duties, and end by relinquishing their places to others, who likewise

> "Strut and fret their hour upon the stage,
> And then are heard no more."

And so on, ad infinitum, and, I may add, ad nauseam.

Now, suppose this endless rotation were not confined to those who serve the public in official capacities, but were applied likewise to all who minister in any way to the physical, mental and spiritual wants of the people—so that, by the operation of such a quadrennial and universal "change hands all round," I were obliged to apply to my tailor for my boots, to my clergyman for my shirts, to "sit under" the preaching of the shoemaker, and send my daughters to acquire their education and accomplishments at the blacksmith's shop. There is scarcely need to describe the Babel-like confusion which would periodically follow such a social convulsion. And yet there is scarcely one of the above trades and professions whose field of operations extends so universally among all classes, and whose proper and intelligent exercise is more imperatively demanded by the public welfare and convenience, than the trade of postmaster. And the periodical removal, throughout the country, of the persons appointed to that office, and the substitution in their places of new and inexperienced officials prodnces, in its degree, just that bewildering chaos which would be, to a larger extent, the result of similar changes among those upon whom the people depend for the supply of their various needs in other directions.

This evil might, perhaps, be mitigated, though not removed, if, in making the new appointments, such care were exercised to secure both honesty and capability as a just regard for the popular rights demand. I assert that such is not the case—that it is physically impossible that it should be the case. [And in making this assertion, I wish it distinctly understood that it is not the object of this communication, nor of any of the incidental remarks therein, to disparage the present or any other particular administration, or to hold either or any of the present or past party organizations specially responsible for the evil of which I complain. It is the general principle of the association of party politics with the postal service which I am attempting to show to be vicious and mischief-making—not any special application of that principle by the party now in power, or by any of its predecessors.] It is a notorious fact, that on the incoming of a new administration thousands of postal appointments, eminently "not fit to be made," are distributed among the ravenous crowds of office-seekers, and that the wide-spread trouble, loss and inconvenience to which the people are subjected through the incompetency, dishonesty and carelessness of those to whom those appointments are given, is the direct and inevitable result of the rule which governs their distribution. It is no argument against this proposition to assert (as I am willing to admit) that the people of the smaller communities frequently interest themselves in securing the appointment, or preventing the removal, of a postmaster known to be thoroughly upright, intelligent and capable, without regard to his political preferences or services. So far as it goes, this is well. But, unfortunately, from the peculiar and exceptional nature of his duties, the evil which a unprincipled or even honestly stupid postmaster or clerk may cause, is not confined to the particular locality in which he may be stationed, but extends to every section of the country, and perhaps even to every quarter of the globe. A blunder or a theft in an office on our north-eastern frontier may work incalculable wrong and trouble in a city on our Pacific coast; and it is therefore but a partial and incomplete protection to any local community, to insure that the duties of its particular post office are conscientiously and efficiently performed.

Of course, the amount of loss and vexation which the wrong-doing or ignorance of post-office officials may cause, is proportionate to the magnitude of their duties, and the local importance of the offices which they control, or in which they serve as subordinates: and consequently the post offices of our larger cities are those which it is most necessary should be placed, and kept, in charge of men of undoubted honesty and capacity; and who, in the selection of those to whom they must of necessity confide the execution of the details of their official functions, will be guided only by the same rules and apply the same tests which have influenced their own appointments. They should be entirely free to act in this matter as conscience and justice require, untrammeled by party obligations, and unawed by party demands. Does any one doubt that such should be the case? And does any one suppose that such is the case? Are the postmasters of our large cities, in the appointment and removal of subordinates, governed by a regard to the welfare of the service and of the people, or by a regard to the claims of party adherents, and the demands of party organizations? Do they act, in this matter, with as much care, and with as single a purpose, as they would in selecting those to whom they entrust the conduct of their own private business affairs—making the same diligent inquiry into the character and antecedents of those who present themselves as candidates for appointment, which any prudent merchant would make as to the characters of those who apply for responsible situations in his counting-house or store? There is but one answer to these questions. But I do not think it just that the blame of this state of things should rest entirely upon the postmasters. I know what "outside pressure" is, and how difficult, almost impossible, it is to resist. I know the storm of indignation which would arise from ward committees, and other influential politicians, if a newly-appointed postmaster were to reject the candidates for clerkships who come with their credentials indorsed with the names of the big guns of "the party," simply for the reason that their fitness for the desired positions was a matter of doubt. Such a paltry excuse for refusing to recognize and reward the faithful servitors of "the party," by making them the probable unfaithful servitors of the mere people, would be scoffed at as puerile and absurd, and he should offer them stigmatized as a "viper, who had stung the bosom that had warmed him." The new postmaster goes into office virtually pledged to distribute the offices in his gift, with a view to "provide for" his own immediate political associates, and their legion of friends; and a failure to redeem that pledge would be recorded against him as an act of the blackest ingratitude, and serve as an effectual bar to his future political advancement. The voice of duty and of conscience is smothered by the clamorous shriek of party, crying, like the horse-leech and her daughters, "Give! give!"—and so the axe falls, the brief but significant notices concerning "services no longer required," are distributed among the unlucky clerks appointed by the outgoing postmaster, and their vacant places are filled by the eager crowd who have been awaiting, with watering mouths, the wages of their indefatigable and disinterested labors for the good of "the party," who proceed to fulfill their various duties, perhaps honestly and—in time—efficiently, until "the whirligig of time brings round its revenges," and they, in their turn, go the way of all post-office clerks of the wrong shade of politics.

What results can be expected from such a system? Careful, prompt and intelligent performance of official duty by men totally without experience or knowledge of that duty? Strict integrity on the part of men exposed to constant temptation, holding their positions by the uncertain tenure of party success, and whose characters, it is to be feared, would too often be unable to stand the test of the rigid investigation, which should have been a preliminary to their appointment? Clearly not. The age of miracles is past. I do not charge that there is more incompetency among post-office clerks than is a necessary consequence of the frequent substitution of inexperience for experience, nor a greater degree of dishonesty than it is natural to expect would be found among an equal number of men, selected without due inquiry, for other positions of trust, and surrounded by the same inducements to wrong-doing. But the loss and inconvenience to which I have been myself subjected from these causes, would be sufficient to convince me of their existence, even were the corroborating testimony lacking which I find, from time to time, in the columns of your paper, in the shape of complaints of official blundering, and accounts of the detection, arrest and trial of dishonest post-office clerks.

But I have, perhaps, occupied too much time in complaint, and will proceed to modestly suggest a remedy, and a very simple one. It is:

First, to abolish at once the system which makes the appointment of postmasters, clerks and all others connected with the mail service, dependent upon party preferences, or a reward for party services, and to substitute therefor a system which will secure, as far as possible, the appointment of those, and those only, who are thoroughly qualified for the duties they are expected to perform, and the fact of whose integrity shall be established as firmly as it can be done by the test of thorough investigation—leaving the question of politics entirely out of the case as "extraneous matter," from which the Post Office Department should be as sacredly guarded as the national army or the national judiciary.

Secondly, to do away entirely with rotation in office, as applied to the postal service. The appointments once made, let no removals take place, unless for proved incompetence or misbehavior—when these exist, let removal be prompt, and, in the latter case, punishment severe and certain.

I have noticed your occasional remarks in regard to erroneous ideas which prevail as to the superiority of the English postal system over our own—a superiority which exists mostly in imagination—but I think we must admit that the fact that in that country the Post Office Department is jealously guarded from all connection with politics, constitutes an allowable claim to our admiration, and an example we might advantageously follow. I understand that in Great Britain those connected with the mail service lose, by that connection, the right to vote.* I would be sorry to see the same rule applied here—though I may have serious doubts as to whether, in our own country, the same class have a practical right to vote—as they please.

The theory of the reform I have suggested, I have no doubt, will be approved by many who will discover formidable obstacles to its practical operation. The most obvious of these is the question—which party shall inaugurate the new policy? I have thought of a plan to meet this difficulty. Let the postal appointments to be made by the present and the next national administration be given, to as great an extent as possible, to those whose claims are based upon faithful services in the army and navy—especially to those whose wounds may have rendered them incapable of following their former vocations, yet do not disqualify them for the duties required of the generality of postmasters and clerks—due regard being also had to moral character and mental ability. Let all vacancies, as they occur, be thus filled from the ranks of those who have sacrificed so much in defense of our country, and who have established so strong a claim upon our gratitude. Then let there be no removals of those so appointed, except for good and sufficient causes—among which let political opinions be not included. In all reforms, the first step is the hardest; would not this be one in the right direction? That step once taken, I believe it would be the means of relieving the Post Office Department of a clog which has too long hampered its healthy operations, and prove the antidote to the base which has poisoned its usefulness.

I could say much more upon this subject, but fear I have already trespassed upon your patience.

In conclusion, sir, and upon the grounds I have stated, I respectfully move for a DIVORCE BETWEEN POLITICS AND THE POST OFFICE. Who opposes the motion?

Yours, G. L. K.

Mons. Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO.

I enjoined upon you, in my last communication, to receive no letters addressed to me, in your care, postmarked "Marbledust, Vt.," and never for a moment doubted but that you would act in accordance with my wishes on the subject; imagine, therefore, my consternation on finding among a batch of letters, forwarded the day before Christmas, to me at "Mammoth Wallow," New Jersey—my present residence—one of the dreaded missives. I opened it, and read as follows:

MARULEDUST, Dec. 19, 1868.

MY EVER KIND FRIEND—I know you pardoned my abrupt departure on Thanksgiving Day. You knew why, and I had your sympathy: I saw it in your eyes. Thank heaven it was not so bad as represented. I was saved the mortal blow. My precious cat still lives, and so does the flame you awoke in my long dormant heart. We must live for each other now. You will never regret having bestowed your love upon one who believed herself forever dead to its now realized delicious influences. In the course of conversation at our last meeting, you asked me to visit you at the "Wallow;" little did I then think how soon I would accept your kind invitation. Everything is gloomy here now; for my heart is away. Dear Tonson, I know you will be overjoyed with rapture when I tell you I intend leaving for New York with a lady friend, on Wednesday, and will leave on Thursday morning by the Amden and Camboy Railway for "Mammoth Wallow" station, where I expect you to meet me with a Merry Christmas.

TABBY.

The receipt of this letter was frightfully inopportune, and the arrival of its writer would be emphatically more so. That day had been set apart for the meeting of a committee of scientific gentlemen, for the purpose of organizing the Cosmopolitan Fire-Alarm Lightning Rod Co., of which I was expected to act as Secretary, pro tem; and, of course, in such company I desired clearness of mind, coolness of temperament, and freedom from annoyance of any kind unnecessary to such a degree on almost any other occasion. The introduction of the F. A. L. Rod would be an epoch in the history of modern surprises. All inventions for similar purposes sunk into insignificance before this wonderful property preserver, and anxiety and excitement were on tiptoe waiting the perfecting of the incorporation, and the trial of an experiment on the barn of an incredulous farmer near the village, who always had been, and always would be, so he said, opposed to lightning rods. He said they were nothing but haulers and defiances to come on and get licked; that all the lightnin' rods on earth would not pervent the lightnin' a striken', and if it did strike and things catched fire, there was no use in trying to put 'em out, all you had to do was to stand clear and let her rip. The F. A. L. R. is cast hollow, and when put in position for service, is filled with nitro-glycerine. The lower end is about twelve inches in diameter, and is buried in the earth; it tapers gradually to the top, which is not a part of the rod, but screws on and acts as a stopper on the charge it has to keep within.

The great advantage claimed for this modern improvement over all others, is that, if the building to which it is attached is struck and takes fire (which buildings always do, no matter how many iron-fingers point skyward, each seeming to beckon the capricious fluid to come down that way), no damage need be apprehended from spreading flames, for the heat soon reaches the tube filled with the subtle stuff, and an explosion instantly ensues, the detonation of which is heard miles away, and the structure is so completely demolished that scarcely a nail is left to mark the spot whereon it stood. It was his entire disbelief in this theory that prompted our agricultural friend to put his barn at the service of the committee for experimental purposes; he fully believing that it was another new humbug, and he did not desire to see his neighbors duped: but I shall never forget the dismay and mortification depicted on his countenance when the heat, imparted to the rod from a little fire built at its base, produced the expected effect, and his barn was sent flying through the air in fragments, scarcely larger than pea-nut shells. So sanguine was he of seeing a failure, that he thought it unnecessary to release a venerable goat that was tied up inside; and his amazement reached a climax when he shortly after found one horn of the poor animal with a piece of rope attached to it lying around loose, which was all that was left to indicate where the rest of the animal had gone to. This experiment decided the success of the company's enterprise, and orders for rods at once began to pour in. I felt elated somewhat myself, and if it had not been for that confounded letter I could have enjoyed myself much at the entertainment which closed the satisfactory inaugural proceedings of the Company; but it hung like an incubus upon me, and the rumbling of every approaching wheel made me so nervous that I was obliged to fortify myself with some of the (to me) unknown contents of the various bottles that stood all over the table, like dwarf sentinels on duty. Whether it was the excitement of the day, the expected visitor, the confined air of the dingy hall, or the familiarity I took with strange stimulants on a short acquaintance, I know not; but of a sudden the tables began to move round in a circle; the lights multiplied fourfold; old acquaintances put on new faces; queer countenances, with winking eyes and twisted mouths, seemed to be mixed up with the apples and oranges on the fruit-dishes; finger-glasses grew into great globes, and the parti-colored napkins swelled to the dimensions of buffalo robes, and seemed to partake of their nature; the confusion of tongues sounded like the combined vocal effort of a camp-meeting on the eve of breaking up, and everything generally seemed to be coming loose at both ends, when a hand was laid upon my shoulder, and some one announced in my ear that a lady was waiting for me in the parlor. I rose instantly, and using the backs of the chairs along the tables as supporters, I followed the messenger with measured tread and stately, until I reached the vacant space between the end of the table and the door, when an apparently insurmountable obstruction met me full in the face. This was caused by the slamming of a door, or the sudden elevation of the floor, and but for the timely assistence of the aforesaid messenger, I would have had reason for quarreling—although foreign to my nature—with the proprietor of the establishment, for not keeping his doors and floors in their proper places. As it was, no damage was done—except the displacement of my spectacles, which I found after a long search at the back of my neck. I had entirely forgotten where I was going and who I was going to see; although I had a vague idea of going somewhere for some purpose; and when the parlor-door was opened, and I stood (or tried to stand) face to face with the writer of the (at that moment vividly remembered) letter, all my faculties returned to their proper duties, and came to my aid to help me put an end to the foolish whims of an antiquated spinster, who had mistaken some commonplace pleasantries of an elderly gentleman for covert love-making, and had misinterpreted attentions which it is delightful pastime to pay any lady—to be forgotten with the occasion; and thus she spoke: "Oh, dear, Mr. Tonson, why did you not come to the depot to meet me? I was frightened—" With a gesture I stopped her just there, and in my most amiable manner, said: "Miss Greengrain (her patronymic), you are laboring under a ridiculous delusion in regard to my feelings toward you. What I have said or done to make you suppose I entertain any warmer friendship for you than for your niece or your grandmother, or any other member of your family, is beyond my comprehension; and I deem it a duty I owe to you and your friends to say to you, that your coming here is highly indiscreet, and it is my wish that you return at once to New York, for which purpose I will send you to the depot, where you can take the train in half an hour." I thought perhaps she would faint, or feign it, but she didn't; I thought she would scream or cry, but she didn't: she merely clenched her hands, and held her arms rigidly stiffened down in front of her, as if holding the ribbons behind a fast horse—raised her eyes to the ceiling, muttered something about a tree, and a flower, and a dear gazelle, and walked slowly out of the house. A few moments afterward I learned she had left, bandbox and all, in the same vehicle which had brought her from the station, and I felt relieved. I returned to the festive gathering again, and remained until it dissolved, but peremptorily declined any further intimacy with the hottled mysteries of the board.

After the feast a little business session was called, at which it was decided that a large number of circulars which had been printed in anticipation of the successful issue of the enterprise, should be mailed at "Mammoth Wallow," and after they were duly enveloped and legibly superscribed, and properly stamped, they were carried to the Post Office to be mailed, but the Postmaster refused to have anything to do with them. He said the Lightning Rod business came under the head of gift enterprises, and the new law prohibited him from mailing these circulars. I gently suggested that he was probably mistaken in his decision; but he said he had been Postmaster for over a year, and knew his business. I subsided; but the President of the Company, the Hon. Boylston Mixer, was not disposed to yield so easily, and drew from his pocket an envelope containing a circular, or list of temptations, issued by Westall & Keuman, a number of which had been sent to his ignorant servants—the class of people preferred by this firm to do business with—which sets forth the fact that an initiation fee of ten cents entitles the happy investor to a dollar's worth of luck, in the shape of a diaper, a pack of cards or a coffee-pot, provided the dollar is remitted beforehand. This, Mr. Mixer thought, came under the head of a gift enterprise; but the "Mammoth Wallow" functionary differed entirely with him; "for this firm did business in a very large city, and if their circulars were included in the prohibition they would not be mailed by the thousands, as they now are, by the postal authorities there." There was no use in trying to convince this rural official that he was in error; he had given his decision and stayed with it, and the circulars were taken to another office, where an intelligent and discriminating officer properly mailed and dispatched them to their several destinations.

A pleasant hour spent with this efficient and affable Postmaster, in his private office, materially enlightened us in regard to postal matters generally. He told us that the "Mammoth Wallowite" was not the only Postmaster who was unable to discriminate between mailable and unmailable matter under the late law or under any other law, if the quantity of insufficiently and improperly paid matter received at his office was any criterion, and insinuated that this ignorance was not confined to small offices by any means. He said his office was inundated with letters, bearing the postmark of large offices, addressed to people within his delivery, whose names had been procured in some surreptitious manner, and many of which were returned to him by the disgusted recipients, and the contents were found to be circulars from Snap & Badall, Mogle & Moyle, Sadbury, Mossbunker & Co., Clappy, Bupper & Co., and other well-known dollar dodgers, offering such dazzling inducements to clubs and individuals to invest, that many credulous people would pilfer money for the purpose, if they could not procure it otherwise. He regarded these schemers as infinitely worse than bogus lottery operators, for while the latter generally tapped the pockets of those able to pay for their folly—the former, first fascinating their victims, stooped to take from them the few pennies that they, by hard toil, had earned, and laid away to buy food and medicine for the really sick and needy, leaving them destitute indeed. Shame, shame, that such individuals can find respectable indorsers; but there always has been and always will be "Purchase is money."

But I am admonished to stop and leave a good deal unsaid, but it will do for another occasion. It will hardly do to call this letter a Christmas carol, although it is probably long enough for one, if it has no other merit. I am not particular, however—call it what you please. Barkis is willing, and accept, if you please for your readers and yourself, the compliments of the season.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8, 1868.

SIR—Referring to my letter of the 19th ult., inclosing instructions concerning "return receipts" for registered letters dispatched to or from North Germany, I have to inform you that it has been deemed necessary to amend the instructions in question in so far as to hereafter require, in all cases where registered letters from North Germany having "return receipts" attached, cannot from any cause be delivered, that the receipts accompanying the same shall also be forwarded direct to the United States exchange offices from whence they were received, with the cause of the non-delivery of such registered letters, and dispositions made of same indorsed thereon.

In the next issue of the "UNITED STATES MAIL" you will therefore please substitute the following in lieu of the last paragraph of the instructions on this subject:

"In cases where registered letters from North Germany having 'return receipts' attached, cannot from any cause be delivered, such receipts shall be indorsed with the cause of non-delivery, and disposition made of the registered letters to which they respectively refer, and then be forwarded direct to the United States exchange office from whence they were received, as provided in the preceding paragraph. But the registered letters accompanying the same should, in the usual manner, be sent to the Dead Letter Office at Washington."

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Supt. Foreign Mails.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 11, 1868.

SIR—According to a communication just received from the General Post Office at Berlin this Department is advised that the Austrian Postal Administration has established a Post Office at Widdin, in Bulgaria, Turkey, in consequence of which the correspondence from this country for Widdin will no longer be subjected to compulsory prepayment.

The postage chargeable upon such correspondence remains the same as heretofore, the only change being from compulsory to optional prepayment.

You will please accordingly amend the table of postages in the next issue of the U. S. MAIL.

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Supt. Foreign Mails.

Abuse of the Franking Privilege.

In his last annual report, Postmaster-General Randall, for the third time, calls the attention of Congress to the gross abuses of the franking privilege—especially those which have been practiced by members of Congress in permitting the use of their fac simile franks. Soon after the publication of the report, the attention of the press and public was called to a case in which a publishing firm had sent through the mails thousands of their business circulars, all franked by a fac simile signature of a member of Congress, who pronounced the signatures forgeries. The publishers, however, defended themselves from this charge in a newspaper communication, in which they stated that the franked envelopes used by them had been furnished to a political organization by the member of Congress whose name they bore for the inclosure of campaign documents, but having been "left over" were used by them for their business purposes. They calmly asserted (apparently in sober earnest) that they did not consider that in this they were defrauding the Government, inasmuch as the circulars they thus sent were of a nature to induce paid correspondence through the mails! This ingenious argument certainly does not go very far toward proving the truth of the adage that "a poor excuse is better than none." If one of their clerks had robbed their till, we fear they would hardly have been willing to accept as a justification the plea that he had invested his stealings in stocks which would be sure to yield a handsome dividend, of which he intended to give them the benefit, and that he really had no dishonest intentions in temporarily abstracting their money.

We have mentioned this case, not on account of its peculiar atrocity—for doubtless hundreds of similar instances have occurred which were never brought to light—but to show what is at any time likely to happen under the present defective franking system. The Postmaster General's estimate that "the loss to the Department by this species of abuse has amounted to from one million to one million and a half of dollars during the past year" is probably not in the least exaggerated.

In the face of a law which imposes a fine of $10 on any person who "shall frank any letter or letters other than those written by himself, or by his order, on the business of his office," many Congressmen have virtually prostituted their privilege in favor of any one who had the face to ask it of them. Such persistent and open law-breaking by law-makers should be stopped at once, either by passing an act allowing M. C.'s to frank everything for everybody, or by abolishing the franking privilege altogether. We should like to see the last plan tried first.

Reduction of the Registration Fee.

On and after the 1st inst., the registration fee on domestic letters will be FIFTEEN CENTS instead of twenty cents, as formerly. Postmasters should take pains to have the public made aware of this fact, and by every other means in their power induce those who desire to make money remittances by mail to have their letters registered (in cases where Money Orders cannot be procured). We have reason to fear that there has been a too general apathy on this subject among postmasters; and in not a few instances we have heard officially, of those among them who seem, for some reason, to wish to prevent the registration of letters at their offices. If such postmasters could read some of the dark hints and innuendoes on this subject contained in complaints from persons who have lost money letters, and who "asked the P. M. about registering, but were told the letter would go just as safely without it," they would, ont of regard for their own reputations, never allow another valuable letter to be deposited in their offices unregistered, if in their power to persuade the sender to secure its safety by registration.

Many postmasters, we learn, on the other hand, have prepared conspicuous notices, advising the registration of all valuable letters and packages, which are posted just over the boxes for reception of letters. It is a good example and secures them from unjust suspicion and blame if the pockets of those who do not heed the advice suffer in consequence.

☞ Postmasters will be careful to note the change in the rate of postage on "book packets, and patterns and samples of merchandise" to Great Britain and Ireland, which goes into effect on the 1st inst.

J. M. M'Greew, the efficient Chief Clerk in the Office of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department, has prepared a blank for the "General Account," the use of which renders this generally puzzling and intricate account, one of the simplest postmasters are required to keep. The blank is furnished on application to the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department.

THE carriers connected with New York Post Office now wear the uniform prescribed by the Post Master General. It is neat and substantial, and while it adds to their appearance will, we do not doubt, add to the efficiency of the carrier system.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Collecting Post-office Drafts.—T. E. M., W——, N. Y.—The postmaster on whom a draft is drawn must pay the money to the holder of the usual place of business of the latter.

Unclaimed Exchanges.—J. J. G., C——, Miss.—Unclaimed exchanges should be sold, and the proceeds credited to the Department, according to Sec. 391, Reg. 1866.

Writing on the Wrapper of a Book.—D. P. McK., D——, Iowa.—If a book is mailed in the United States, the name of the sender on the wrapper of it subjects it to letter-postage; in the case you mention, such should have been paid on mailing the book at your office; as it was not done, it was proper to collect the deficient postage at the office of delivery. Sec. 216, Reg. 1866.

Franking.—J. R., S——, Iowa.—Letters addressed to a chief mustering officer are not entitled to pass free through the mails under the franking privilege, unless sent by some one possessing that privilege.....J. H. H., C——, Tenn.—The limit of weight of an official package on revenue business is four pounds.

Use of Postage Funds.—J. B., K——, O.—By Section 281, Regulations of 1866, postmasters are prohibited from using, loaning, etc, money received for postages. By this it would seem that postmasters are not at liberty to use any part of such money for their daily subsistence, but that they must wait till the end of the quarter, when their accounts are made up.

Notice to Publisher.—P. Y., ——, ——.—The Regulations, Section 392, do not specify how a notice shall be given, but as the Department supplies blanks for the purpose, it is better to procure them, and give written notice.....P. E. L., ——, ——.—Notice to publishers should be sent to the postmaster at the publisher's place of business.

Clerk in Post Office.—W. H. D., R—— C——, Wis.—It is contrary to the Regulations to employ in a post office any one under sixteen years, but there is no restriction in respect to sex. Sec. 8, Reg. 1866.

Loss of Stamps by Theft.—E. T. G., T——, Conn.—Credit is not allowed where offices have been robbed of stamps. In other words, postmasters are responsible for the safe keeping of stamps against loss by theft. Sec. 182, Reg. 1866.

Forwarding Unpaid Foreign Letters.—A. B. M., C—— C——, Wis.—On forwarding a foreign letter on which there are charges, you should enter the amount due on your account of overcharges; by this means you obtain credit for the charge against you. Sec. 310, Reg. 1866, art. 10.

Letter Addressed to a Post Office.—M. D. H., O—— G——, Ill.—A letter addressed simply to a post office should be considered for the postmaster at that office; it should be duly forwarded, and should be opened at the office of delivery.

Delivery of Letters Addressed to Initials.—G. W. W., D——, O.—Letters to fictitious addressee are not to be delivered, but should be sent to the Dead Letter Office, marked "Fictitious." Sec. 60, Reg. 1866. There are, however, many cases where a well-known person, for some good reason, desires letters addressed to initials selected by himself, and such letters should undoubtedly be delivered, but postmasters should exercise the necessary caution in the delivery of such letters.

Returning Printed Matter.—B. W., St. V——, Pa.—Transient printed matter, though fully prepaid, cannot be returned to the mailer, unless the postage for such return is prepaid.

Money-order Business, etc.—H. H. T., W——, O.—1. If you mean to inquire whether a postmaster can issue a money-order, payable at his own office, we would reply, that though, as you say, there is nothing to the contrary in the instructions, yet it is certainly against the spirit of the money-order business, and we do not see under what circumstances such an order could be desired. 2. The age of an advice is to be calculated from the date of its receipt. See "Form of Summary on Weekly Statement," page 38 of Money-order Instructions where the receipt of an advice from San Francisco is noted. 3 If the person mailing a letter is informed that the postage is not sufficiently prepaid, the letter should not be mailed, but be returned to the person mailing. How can a letter be forced on a postmaster? If you mean that the letter is left on his counter, after he has refused to receive it, we judge it is done so at the risk of the party leaving it, and it is to be treated as any other property of the party left on the counter.

Redeeming Envelopes.—D. C. C., L—— R——, N. Y.—Whether an envelope correctly addressed, but which the party does not desire to send, should be redeemed, is a very nice point in law, as it does not fulfill the contingency of being spoiled in directing; but, practically, if you are sure the envelope has never been used for postal purposes, and in other respects complies with Section 189, Regulations 1866, we see no objection to redeeming it.

Post-office Hours.—C. W. G., K——, Ill.—The regulations do not establish any hours as post-office hours, except that a post office is to be kept open the usual business hours of the place (Sec. 27, Reg. 1866). These hours vary in different places, and we cannot of course decide on them for any particular place.

Mail Carrier delivering Mail.—C. J. P., S—— G——, Pa.—Provided a mail carrier delivers the mail at the contract time, he may drive past a post office a dozen times before doing so.

Subscriber to Newspaper.—T. E. H., O——, Minn.—"Bona fide subscribers" are the only persons (except news dealers or agents) who are entitled to receive publications through the mails at quarterly rates; but if the subscription is paid for, a paper should be delivered, though the person addressed may not himself have paid for it. The practice of sending commercial and advertising papers unpaid to those who have never subscribed for them, and probably never heard of them, is really a fraud on the Department: one, however, which it is very difficult to prevent. See Sec. 206, Reg. 1866.

Registration.—J. McQ., O——, Ill.—Section 12 of the new Regulations for Registration is very clear in directing that registered package envelopes are to be kept on file six months, and then returned to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, and this whether one or more he received daily.....H. S., R——, Ill.—1. The red envelopes are furnished free by the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. 2. Five three-cent stamps will pay the registry fee as well as one fifteen cent stamp, and probably in small offices where very few letters are registered, it would not be worth while to procure fifteen cent stamps.

Postage.—A. E. P., C——, N. Y.—1. The Plymouth Pulpit is a periodical, and subject to the regular quarterly rates. 2. A package of seventy or eighty printed circulars, in one package to one address, and intended for a general distribution, is chargeable at the rate of two cents for four ounces.....R. W. S., J——, Mo.—Transient papers to Canada are chargeable with two cents on delivery, as well as two cents prepayment.....H. C. S., R——, Oregon.—Reports of telegraph operators to a General Agent should not be sent by express, unless in Government stamped envelopes.

[For the U. S. Mail.]

Relief to the Dead-Letter Office.—Request for Return of Letters.

The new Postal Law, published in the August number, contains this valuable provision, viz., that letters in envelopes, bearing simply the address of the writer, without a formal "request" for return, are henceforth to be returned to the writer, the same as if they bore a formal request.

This is a step in the right direction, but does not go far enough. It will fail to relieve the Dead Letter Department fully, because it still leaves too great a burden on the writer, still requiring of him, in order to secure the return of a letter, precisely as much writing (and, of course, time and labor) as it takes to address the letter. He will continue, therefore, as a general rule, to omit the "request," abbreviated though it is.

Now, my scheme is to abbreviate the "request" still more, and then to affix a penalty for the omission of the "request," whenever such omission shall put the Post Office Department to additional labor or expense.

Inasmuch as the Post Office mailing stamp indicates at what office the letter is mailed, there is no necessity for requiring of the writer to add to his "request" the name of the post office, whenever the return is to be to the same office. It is sufficient that he write across the left end of his letter his name and number of the street of his residence, if there is delivery by carriers at the place of his residence (and not the name of the post office). If there is no delivery by carriers, then simply his name—nothing more. But whether he resides in a city where there is delivery by carriers, or not, if he has a box in the post office, then all the "request" required should be simply the writing of the number of that box across the left end of the envelope. That is the whole of it.

A letter bearing a "request" in either of these forms, if not delivered at the office of destination, would be returned to the mailing office, where there would be no difficulty in returning it to the writer.

If a writer were to mail a letter at another office than that of his residence—say a St. Louis man at New York to some one in Philadelphia—then, of course, he would have to "request" that the letter, in case of non-delivery, should be sent to his address, or post-office box, at St. Louis.

The proper penalty for omission of "request," when such omission puts the Department to trouble and expense, would seem to be something like this: Let the letter be returned to the writer from the Dead Letter Office, not free, as is now done, but with a fine of twenty-five cents or more—large enough to be felt—and its payment compulsory, by distraint, if need be.

The Postmaster General has, I presume, power under the laws as they now stand to carry out all the above suggestions, except as regards the fine, which would require additional legislation.

I may add, that my scheme is not an altogether untried one. For some years, having an understanding with our postmasters and their clerks, I have been in the practice of putting the number of my post-office box on my drop-letters, which have thus, in case of non-delivery, been returned to me regularly and promptly, and very satisfactorily to all parties. OUTSIDER.

Our correspondent's suggestions are very good, with one if—if postmasters would properly postmark one letter say in five hundred or a thousand.

THE FIRST RECORDED RIDING POST.—The first recorded riding post was established in Persia, by Cyrus, 599 B C. Cyrus was the son of Cambyses, King of Persia, and Mandarei, daughter of Astyages, King of the Medes. The history of Cyrus is a lesson worthy to be read by all who can appreciate in one man all the elements which combine to make a great one. He was educated according to the Persian institutions, of which Xenophon gives such glowing accounts. Among the numerous inventions he made and carried into operation, that of posts and couriers, to facilitate the transportation of letters, was probably the most important. He caused post-houses to be built and messengers to be appointed in every province. There were one hundred and twenty provinces. Having calculated how far a good horse with a brisk rider could go in a day, without being spoiled, he had stables built in proportion, at equal distances from each other, and had them furnished with horses, and grooms to take care of them. He likewise appointed a "postmaster," to receive the packets from the couriers as they arrived, and give them to others, and to take the horses and furnish fresh ones. Thus the post went continually, night and day, with extraordinary speed.—Footprints of a Letter Carrier.

"ALL work and no play makes Jack a dull boy;" and there is plenty of routine work and but little of play in the life of a post-office clerk, yet occasionally, owing to excess of official care, or carelessness, something will happen to relieve the mind of the monotony of proper names, and wreath the mouth with a smile. An instance of this kind is afforded by a postmaster of the West, who incloses to us an envelope which has enjoyed the hospitalities of the Dead-Letter Office at Washington, through the care or carelessness mentioned above. The envelope originally inclosed a return registered letter receipt, and was duly addressed to the postmaster at the office where the letter was mailed, but was held for postage and sent to the Dead-Letter Office. Was it one of Dickens's characters who exclaims, "Here's richness!"

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

Mode of Indicating the Prepayment of Postage upon Letters Received from Foreign Countries.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

Registering Foreign Letters.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latskia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Canadian Correspondence. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

Collections in Coin.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. To or from Great Britain.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographic, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces. If four ounces or over in weight, for rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. To or from France, Algeria, &c., in French Mail or via England.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerasound, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria) and to or from Belgium and the Netherlands, by Closed Mail via England.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. To or from Italy and Switzerland, by Closed Mail, via England, Belgium and Germany.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 2.)

5. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria), by Direct Mail via Bremen or Hamburg—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from France and Algeria must, in all cases, be collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. Newspapers and other Printed Matter.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulations of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. Book-Packets.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded to the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. Patterns on Samples of Merchandise.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana (or by American packet, leaving New York 22d each month), the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Prepayment compulsory.

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss Belgian and Netherlands Mails,

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Philadelphia and Baltimore are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Chicago, Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

San Francisco is an office of Exchange for British Mails only.

Post Office Blanks.

The agency for supplying postmasters with blanks is located at Washington, D. C.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, (prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United States is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half ounce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abolished.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

On Miscellaneous Mailable Matter (embracing all pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, handbills and posters, book manuscripts and proof-sheets, whether corrected or not, maps, prints, engravings, sheet music, blanks, flexible patterns, samples and sample cards, phonographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes or wrappers, cards, paper, plain or ornamental, photographic representations of different types, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions) the postage to be prepaid by stamps, is, on one package to one address, not over four oz. in weight, 2 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 4 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 6 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 8 cts.

By a recent order of the Postmaster General, the fifth subdivision of the 42d Instruction of the Post Office Law, approved March 3, 1863, has been amended by striking out the word twelve and inserting thirty-two before the word ounces, so that it shall read as follows: "The weight of packages of seeds, cuttings, roots and scions, to be franked, is limited to thirty-two ounces."

All mail matter not sent at letter rates of postage, embracing books, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, and other printed matter, and all other mail matter, except seeds, must be so wrapped or enveloped with open sides or ends as to enable the postmaster to examine the package without destroying the wrapper, otherwise such packages must be rated with letter postage. No communication, whether in writing or in print, can be sent with any seeds, roots, cuttings or scions, maps, engravings, or other matter not printed, except upon the separate payment of postage upon each separate matter at the established rates.

Weekly newspapers and all other printed matter to the British North American Provinces, although sent from countries bordering on the line, are chargeable with the same rates as when sent to any point in the United States.

☞ All transient matter must be prepaid by stamps. But if it comes to the office of delivery without prepayment, or short-paid, the unpaid postage must be collected on delivery at the prepaid rate. Great neglect exists in the strict quarterly prepayment of postage on printed matter sent to regular subscribers. No such paper should be delivered, unless it is either prepaid at the mailing office, or at the delivery office for at least a quarter. If not so prepaid, postmasters must collect postage on each copy as on transient matter. If they fail, they will be charged with the full postage due, and in clear cases removed from office for neglect.

PROSPECTUS OF

Frank Leslie's Publications.

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper,

The aim of this paper is to furnish a pictorial history of current events. Between thirty and forty illustrations appear in every weekly number, including eight engravings of the pictorial spirit of the foreign press, events of national or local interest, railroad or steamboat accidents, amusing and thrilling incidents, comics, etc. The literary matter comprises, besides well-written editorials on the leading questions of the day, and descriptions of the engravings, a serial story of thrilling interest, entertaining narratives and tales, humorous anecdotes, choice poems, etc.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Chimney Corner,

A purely literary pictorial. Excluding events of the day, its aim, as its title indicates, is to furnish amusement for the leisure hour. Its contents consist principally of original stories by able writers—including a serial, accounts of remarkable adventure, biographical sketches of self-made men—with portraits, descriptions of manners and customs in remote countries, short poems, fairy stories, enigmas, conundrums, charades, etc. Illustrated with large and spirited engravings, of which there are from fifteen to twenty to each weekly number.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustrirte Zeitung.

A pictorial newspaper in the German language, containing a large number of engravings illustrating events of the day, exciting and amusing incidents, adventures and manners and customs in all parts of the world, with a large amount of literary matter, including numerous interesting tales. This paper combines for the German reader the attractions presented in the illustrated Newspaper and the Chimney Corner.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustracion Americana.

An illustrated paper in the Spanish language, with all the attractive features, pictorial and literary, that have made Frank Leslie's other publications so popular.

Subscription price to the United States, $12 currency.

Frank Leslie's Boys and Girls' Weekly.

One of the cheapest pictorial papers ever published. Intended for the amusement of youth of both sexes. The illustrations and literary matter are such as especially recommend themselves to the young. It contains, besides a continued story and well-written tales, accounts of wonderful adventure, descriptions and illustrations of foreign manners and customs, anecdotes and pictures of animals, familiar and funny fables, parlor magic, etc. From twenty to twenty-five engravings appear in each weekly issue.

Subscription price, $2 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine,

The leading fashion periodical in America. Each monthly number contains a large colored plate of the latest fashions, from designs sent from Paris as soon as invented, which are thus published simultaneously to New York and Paris; also a four-page uncolored fashion plate, embracing the various leading styles. These are accompanied with full descriptions and explanations, with numerous other illustrations. Every number contains an original letter from Paris, describing the very latest modes, by a lady whose position gives her access to fashionable society. The literary portion of this magazine comprises a continued story, numerous interesting tales, poetry, anecdotes, etc. The whole profusely illustrated with fine engravings.

Subscription price, $3 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Budget of Fun,

This is a comic pictorial newspaper, published on the first of every month. Its remarkable success, and the steady increase in its circulation, attest its adaptation to the popular taste. It looks at things of the day from a comic point of view, and its illustrations—of which there are from forty to fifty in every issue—are directed, without respect to station or person—against the follies and vices of the times. It constitutes an almost inexhaustible source of amusement and fun.

Subscription price, $1 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Pleasant Hours.

The cheapest periodical in the United States, containing eighty large octavo pages of letter-press, with from twenty to twenty-five illustrations, besides two full-page engravings, on tinted paper, in each number. A continued story, and well-written tales and stories of adventure, with humorous anecdotes, descriptions of manners and customs, amusements for young people, etc., constitute the reading matter.

Terms of subscription, $1 50 per year.

TO POSTMASTERS.

COLLECT POSTAGE IN ADVANCE.

Tryon's System for Newspaper and Box Accounts enables you to do this in accordance with Postal Law and Regulations with ease, certainty and little cost of time and labor.

The blank forms are on folio sheets of the usual size of post office blanks, and are arranged to embrace a period of four years.

Fifteen sheets for offices of the 4th class and ten for the 5th class are ordinarily sufficient to last that period, and will be sent, together with a copy of the explanations, directions and examples, by mail, postpaid, as follows:

For ten sheets $1.50
For fifteen sheets 2.00

The blank form for Postage Receipts, $4 per 1,000 Receipts. Address

WILLIAM TRYON, Box 110,
Vineland, N. J.

VOL. IX., NO. 5. NEW YORK, FEBRUARY, 1869. WHOLE NO. 101.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH.

LETTER FROM THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL,

Transmitting a report of G. G. Hubbard, Esq., of Boston, relative to the establishment of a cheap system of postal telegraph.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, Jan. 2, 1869.

SIR: The attention of Congress and of the public has, within two or three years, been repeatedly directed to the consideration of the union of the telegraph with the postal service.

There is a growing conviction in the public mind that a method of transmitting intelligence now so little used is capable of a greater extension; that an instrumentality which affects the interests of the whole community in so many ways should not be controlled by private individuals as private property, nor be used for private profit and made subservient to private interests.

The cheapness of the mails is compared with the high rates of the telegraph; the simplicity and uniformity of the one with the frequent changes and complex charges of the other. The public instinctively feel that it would be desirable to have the same simplicity and uniformity in the rates for the transmission of messages by telegraph as by mail, with the lowest rates which the nature of the service admits.

It also feels that private companies necessarily conduct their business with a view primarily to private profit, and consider the interest and convenience of the public only so far as the securing of dividends may be promoted thereby. The interest with which this subject has been discussed of late shows that the time has arrived when it should be fully considered by the Department and Congress, to see if any change can be made for the public good. Such an inquiry leads to an examination of other systems and their results and to a comparison of them with our own.

The subject of the telegraph was first brought before the public in 1837. In February of that year the House of Representatives passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be requested to report to the House of Representatives, at its next session, upon the propriety of establishing a system of telegraphs for the United States.

In March, the Secretary issued a circular requesting information upon the subject. His report contained Professor Morse's plan for an electric telegraph, and it concluded with the statement that he was satisfied "that the establishment of a system of telegraph for the United States would be useful to commerce as well as to the the Government. It might most properly be made appurtenant to the Post Office Department." Subsequently Professor Morse petitioned Congress for aid in bringing out his invention. In 1843 a bill was passed appropriating $30,000 for the construction of a line between Washington and Baltimore, and the appropriation bill for the same session contained an item of $12,000 to defray the expenses of operating the line during the first year. In 1844 the first electric telegraph in the world was constructed under the supervision of Professor Morse with the Government appropriation.

A bill was introduced at the next session of Congress for the extension of the line to New York, but it did not pass. The success of the first enterprise induced the construction of many other lines by private corporations, and at the time the telegraph was introduced upon the continent of Europe, Portland was connected by the telegraph with New Orleans, Boston and New York with Chicago and St. Louis.

The ruling principle held by the Continental Governments has been that telegraphic correspondence is analogous to other correspondence.

The importance of possessing permanent and reliable means of telegraphic communication is considered to be even greater in degree than the necessity of an efficient postal service. Throughout the whole of continental Europe the telegraph is under the exclusive control and management of the respective Governments.

The postal telegraph system has been carried to its greatest perfection in Belgium and Switzerland. In those countries the rates have been lowest, the facilities for the reception and delivery of messages greatest, and the enterprise most profitable, both to the State and the people.

The investigations into the operations of this system show:

1st. That in Belgium and Switzerland, where the rates are low and uniform, the telegraph is most freely used, and that the receipts in those two countries have exceeded the cost of construction, maintenance and operation, twenty words being allowed to each message, including date and signature. The annual number of messages in Switzerland averages nearly one to every two persons; in Belgium one to every three persons; in the United States, estimating the number of messages annually transmitted at 6,000,000, one to every six.

2d. That the rates for inland messages in Belgium and Switzerland, where the greatest distance of transmission is 200 miles, is 1-2 a franc (the rates for transit and international messages are higher, varying with the distance), that the average cost of each message is 3-4 of a franc, the average receipt 4-5 of a franc. In France, the rates in the same department are 1-2 a franc; between different departments, greatest distance 600 miles, 1 franc, or 12 6-10 cents and 25 6-10 cents currency.

3d. That the rates have been reduced from time to time as the business increased; that every great reduction of rates has been followed by a large and immediate increase of the old business and the creation of new kinds of business, reducing the proportionate expense of each message.

4th. That the facilities afforded for the reception and delivery of messages are very great, and equally distributed over the country; so great are these facilities that in Switzerland one-half of the stations do not average more than two messages a day.

5th. That the telegraph is but little used by the press, an organization like the "Associated Press" being unknown.

6th. That by the union of the telegraph with the post a great saving is made in the expense of the telegraph, without any corresponding increase of expense to the post office.

If the system has succeeded with low rates, where distances are short and the population small, and in countries where the habits of the people and political conditions are such that the press makes but little use of its lines, and where the chief advantages of the telegraph cannot therefore be realized; it must be more successful in our country with its vast extent—with its favorable climate and its increasing millions—where the telegraph anticipates by days the letters sent by mail.

The telegraph in England has been controlled by private companies, and in that respect resembles our system. Companies were organized and lines constructed as soon as the result of Mr. Morse's experiment was known. There has been little competition as compared with that which has existed in the United States, and rates originally high have always been uniform for like distances, and have been reduced from time to time as the business has increased. The profits have been large, increasing with each reduction of rates. The intimate relations between Great Britain and the continent made British merchants familiar with the working of both systems; and the superiority of the continental over the English has long caused a dissatisfaction among them. Their reiterated complaints finally induced the Postmaster-General to examine into the merits of the postal system; and in 1866 a report upon the subject was made by him to Parliament. This report stated, as the opinion of persons well qualified to judge:

1st. That the charges for the transmission of messages are too high, and tend to check the growth of telegraphic correspondence.

2d. That there is very often great delay in transmission and inaccuracy in rendering the message.

3d. That many important towns are unprovided with facilities for telegraph communication.

4th. That in the great majority of places the office is inconveniently situated, and open for too short a time.

5th. That little or no improvement can be expected while its working is conducted by companies striving chiefly to earn a dividend, and engaged in a wasteful competition with each other.

6th. That under the existing system the development of telegraphic correspondence has been retarded.

7th. That the growth of such correspondence has been greatly stimulated in Belgium and Switzerland.

8th. That in England like results would follow, and from the annexation of the telegraph to the post office would accrue great advantage to the public, and ultimately a large revenue to the State.

A supplementary report was made in February, 1868, in which the arguments in opposition to the union of the two systems were considered. These arguments were intended to prove that the cost of inland messages in Belgium resulted in a dead loss of 34 per cent.; "that any considerable extension of the system in England would involve an annual loss to the State; that village postmasters and mistresses were totally unfit to work the telegraph; that the delays in sending out the messages by the letter-carriers would be very great; and that the consolidation and amalgamation of the different companies could be better effected by the companies themselves."

To this the Postmaster-General replied, that although there had been a loss on the inland messages transmitted in Belgium, that was occasioned, in part, by the fact that the telegraphic service for the State and railroads was performed without charge; that the number of these messages was 284,000 against 693,536 inland messages, the charges for which would have exceeded the actual loss; that although the reduction in rates of one-half had not sufficed to reduce by one-half the average cost of each inland message, yet, but for the extraordinary increase in the number of inland messages, the cost of the other messages would have remained the same instead of being largely reduced; there would have been less loss on the inland service, but a smaller profit on the other; that it was proposed to extend the lines gradually, and only to such places as would pay; that postmasters and their children have worked, and are working telegraph instruments in some places; that boys work them in many public offices; and in private establishments they are intrusted to warehousemen, porters and cellar men; that instead of there being greater delays in delivery, they would be more free and rapid; that an extension of the duties and compensation of the postmasters would give increased efficiency to both services; that the substitution of a consolidated management, with one set of offices and officers, must effect a large saving in expense over a divided management and triple establishment at present employed in the conduct of a business with which one management and one establishment could easily cope. The report further states that the limited development of the service in comparison with the Belgian service is shown by the fact that if there had been the same proportion of telegrams to letters in Great Britain as in Belgium, there would have been 19,700,000 telegrams transmitted instead of 6,000,000. These reports were referred to a committee of the House of Commons, who heard evidence upon the various points raised, and reported "the telegraph act, 1868." The preamble contained the reasons for the passage of the act: "Whereas, the means of communication by electric telegraph within the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland are insufficient, and many important districts are without any such means of communication; and whereas, it would be attended with great advantage to the State as well as to merchants and traders, and to the public generally, if a cheaper, more widely extended and more expeditious system of telegraphy were established in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and to that end it is expedient that her Majesty's Postmaster-General be empowered to work telegraphs in connection with the administration of the post office."

The act enables the Postmaster General to purchase the existing lines of telegraph, maintain and work them; it fixes the rate at one shilling, without regard to distance, for the first twenty words of each message; provides for free special delivery, and the reception of messages at every street letter-box and post office in the kingdom. The act does not take effect until another act shall have been passed by Parliament putting at the disposal of the Postmaster-General the moneys requisite for carrying into effect the objects of the act.

The first action taken by Congress in reference to the union of the post office and telegraph was a resolution reported by the honorable Mr. Dixon, in March, 1866, from the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, calling upon the Postmaster-General to lay before the Senate all the information in his possession in regard to the feasibility and usefulness of establishing telegraphic lines in connection with the mail routes for the transmission of Government and private messages. This was supported by the Honorable B. Gratz Brown, and adopted. In order that he might obtain the necessary information, my predecessor, Hon. William Dennison, addressed interrogatories to Henry J. Rogers, telegraphic engineer; George B. Prescott, author of a work on the telegraph; and to the executive officers of the "American," "Western Union" and "United States" telegraph companies. From them he obtained information in regard to the cost of construction and maintenance of lines of telegraph, the effect of a reduction of rates and competition with Government, and other facts in regard to the operation of the system. Their answers were appended to his letter in reply to the resolution of the Senate. This letter stated that the Senate resolution contemplated the establishment of the telegraph along the principal mail routes only; that this would require 23,741 miles of telegraph; that the cost of construction of a six-wire line on these routes would be $13,189,789; that, as the result of his investigation, he was of the opinion that it would not be wise for the Government to inaugurate the proposed system of telegraphy as a part of the postal service; not only because of its doubtful financial success, but also its questionable feasibility under our political system. The gentlemen interrogated, with the possible exception of Mr. Rogers, were then and are still connected with the telegraph companies.

In December, 1866, bills were introduced in the House by Mr. Kasson and by Mr. E. B. Washburne, for the construction of telegraph lines by the Postmaster-General. These bills did not pass. In March, 1868, Mr. E. B. Washburne again introduced a bill for the same purpose; it provides for the construction of a telegraph line with four wires, by the Postmaster-General, between New York and Washington, with offices at any post office on the line. The rates to be uniform, and at one cent for each word, exclusive of address and signature, provided that no message shall be sent for a less sum than ten cents, with three cents for postage and two cents for delivery, with the right of reducing rates in order to compete with private companies, if necessary. Whenever the union of the telegraph with the Post Office Department has been heretofore considered it has been proposed that the department should either construct or purchase lines of telegraph extending over the whole country at a great expense, or construct an experimental line between Washington and New York, which would have to compete with lines extending over the entire country. These lines would charge a less price than the Government between those two places, and the experiment would probably prove a failure. This would throw discredit upon the postal system. Neither of these plans has met with the approval of the Department, and both are to many objections. If these objections could be obviated, the advantages which will arise from the introduction of a postal telegraph are apparent upon a slight examination of the subject. In their operation the telegraph and the post have many things in common; both are for the transmission of correspondence. The same offices, general management, clerks and books would answer equally well for the reception, stamping, forwarding, distributing and delivery of messages or letters; nearly all of these expenses now incurred by telegraph companies would be saved, and great reductions in rates be made. Great additional facilities for the reception and delivery of messages would be afforded; greater confidence and security would be reposed in the system. The country would be freed from a monopoly oppressive to the public—a monopoly which now endeavors to control the daily press by compelling newspaper proprietors to agree to employ one company "exclusively to transmit to and from all places reached by its lines all telegraphic messages relating to the news or newspaper business, and that they will not in any way encourage or support any opposition or competing companies."

The transmission of the mail has always been performed by contract, and there is no reason why the same plan should not be adopted by the Post Office Department for the transmission of correspondence by telegraph. Such a method will obviate the objections heretofore entertained by Congress and the Department. A thorough examination of the subject has satisfied me that the Department can arrange for the reception and delivery of messages, the furnishing of stamps, and keeping the accounts, without any great increase in the number of clerks; that the business may be made a source of revenue to the Government; and that the efficiency of the country postmasters may be increased by employing them in connection with the telegraph. In June last Mr. William L. Burt, the Postmaster of Boston, informed me that gentlemen of means and high standing in that city had consulted with him as to the expediency of organizing a company, under a charter from Congress, for the transmission of messages by telegraph in connection with the Post Office Department, by contract, substantially in the same manner as the mails are now transmitted by contract. As the plan seemed feasible, and the rates proposed were, in the opinion of the Department, reasonable, a bill was submitted, in July last, to incorporate the United States Postal Telegraph Company, and to establish a postal telegraph system. In August last I requested one of those gentlemen, Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard, to prepare a statement of the operations of the telegraph system in Europe and this country. This has been made as full as was practicable in the limited time allowed.

In regard to the operations of the telegraph in this country the investigation shows—

1. That the telegraph is relatively less used here than in Belgium or Switzerland—and tha use confined to a few kinds of business, the high rates prohibiting its general use for most kinds of business and classes of people, with the exception of press-messages—for these the rates are low, and its use by the press is very extensive and probably exceeds a similar use abroad by ten to one.

2. That the rates are arbitrary and exorbitant, varying in amounts for the same distance on different lines—often higher to a nearer than to a remote station on the same line. A table was prepared by Mr. Hubbard with the rates to a large number of stations at different distances from Boston, Chicago and New Orleans. According to this table—

The average rates to offices within 500 miles of Boston, 41 cents; Chicago, 93 cents; New Orleans, $1 61.

The average rates to offices between 500 and 1,000 miles of Boston, $1 43; Chicago, $2 06; New Orleans, $2 34.

The average rates to offices between 1,000 and 1,500 miles of Boston, $2 46; Chicago, $3 91; New Orleans, $3 11.

The average rates to offices between 1,500 and 2,000 miles of Boston, $3 36; New Orleans, $4 21.

These rates are to stations supposed to present a fair average. A large majority of messages are transmitted less than 500 miles. The rates vary greatly in different sections of the country. In the South they are nearly twice as high as they are in the West. In the West more than twice as high as in the East, while the eastern or lowest rates are more that twice as high as the rates of Belgium, Switzerland, or France.

3. That the lines are poorly constructed, of poor material, and are kept in operation only because our climate is dry and there is less escape of electric fluid than in England, where such lines would be useless for the earnings of dividends.

4. That while a large proportion of the expenses are the same, whether the wires are in use or not, commercial messages are practically transmitted but six twenty-fourths of the time, thus burdening a limited number of messages, with expense that would be distributed among four times the number if the wires were kept constantly employed.

5. That by the union of the telegraph with the post office, a great saving will be made in the expenses of the telegraph without a corresponding increase of expenses to the department; the cost of receiving and delivering each message being a little more than for each letter. The expense of the post office is, therefore, only increased in the proportion that the number of messages bears to the number of letters. In this country the ratio is as seven messages to 720 letters.

6. That by a reduction of rates and uniformity of charges new kinds of business will be created, and many people will freely use the telegraph who are now prevented by the expense. There is no country in the world so favorable for the development of the telegraph as the United States; and when messages shall be transmitted from the West to the East at the same rate as was formerly paid as postage on letters few merchants will use the slower mails. There is no doubt that railroad and telegraph lines for the transmission of the mails and telegraphic messages can be constructed and maintained at cheaper rates by private parties than by the Government; nor can there be any doubt that the transmission of correspondence, whether by mail or telegraph, is too important an interest to be intrusted entirely to private enterprise. Under the postal telegraph system now proposed the advantages of private enterprise and governmental control are combined, while the principal defects of each are avoided. The entire system will be in harmony with the present postal service; letters and messages will be received and delivered by the department and transmitted under contract with private parties. The peculiar features of the proposed plan are—

1. The incorporation of a company with authority to construct lines of telegraph on the post roads and routes of the country; its capital fixed at $200 for each mile of wire. This sum is large enough for the construction of good lines, with a fair margin of profit, and will prevent any undue inflation of capital.

2. The establishment of a postal telegraph system which shall include—

First. The establishment of postal telegraph offices in connection with the post offices in every city and village of 5,000 inhabitants and over, at railroad stations and at such other places on the lines of the wires as the telegraph business of the country may from time to time demand.

Second. The prepayment of all telegraph messages by stamps, and their reception at every postal telegraph office, post office, sub-office and street letter-box.

Third. The transmission of messages by telegraph between postal telegraph offices by contract with a telegraph company, provided that no bid shall be received in which the rate for messages of twenty words or figures, or less, exceeds twenty cents for each message, and five cents for each additional five words or figures, or less, for each and every 500 miles, or fractional part thereof, to which is to be added five cents for postage and delivery.

Fourth. The special immediate free delivery of every message by carriers within the limits of free delivery of letters from any post office, or within one mile of every postal telegraph office and the delivery, at special rates beyond such limits, provided, however, that messages directed to be transmitted by night shall not be delivered until the next morning.

Fifth. The transmission of mail, without extra charge, to or from the nearest postal telegraph office when received at or directed to any place not having such an office.

Sixth. The transmission by telegraph of postal money orders; the transmission of the original message, in special cases, by mail, previous or subsequent to its delivery or forwarding by telegraph.

Seventh. The forwarding the originals of all messages not transmitted by mail to the dead-letter office, and the delivery of all messages received through a recording instrument, with a copy thereof, if any is made.

Eighth. Such other provisions as from time to time are required to carry out the objects of the act and to perfect the system.

3. That the lines shall be extended and new wires added as the wants of the community may require. If the contracting party fail to erect such lines and wires, the Postmaster-General may do it and charge cost thereof to the company and deduct such amount from the payments due to it.

4. That the Postmaster-General may, from time to time, reduce the rates, provided the profits of the contracting party are not thereby reduced below ten per cent. per annum.

5. That the company chartered by the bill shall make a contract, if required by the Postmaster-General on the terms above named, provided, no other company will do it for a less sum. It grants no exclusive privileges in telegraphing, either to the department, or to the company that may be employed to transmit messages. Other companies, if they transmit messages more promptly or correctly, at cheaper rates, or more faithfully, will perform the business. It involves no expenditure of money on the part of the Government in constructing and operating, or in purchasing lines, while the rates proposed as the highest are as low in proportion to the distance of transmission as those proposed by the advocates of a line to be built and operated by the Government.

It is fair to existing companies, since all of them may bid for the contract.

I have the honor to submit herewith an amended draft of the act to incorporate the United States Postal Telegraph Company, and establish a telegraph system, and also, a copy of a letter received by me from Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard, of Boston, on the European and American systems of telegraph.

I cannot close this communication without acknowledging the obligations I am under to Mr. Hubbard for his valuable aid in collecting information, and his assistance in preparing this special report.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

A. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster-General.

Hon. SCHUYLER COLFAX,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Scheme for Dispensing with the Dead-Letter Office.

1. Let it be required under a sufficient penalty that all letters deposited in the post office for local delivery or transmission, shall bear a request for return to the writer in case of non-delivery.

In order to render this indorsement of "request" as little burdensome as possible, let it be held to be a sufficient "request" if the writer indorses across the left end of his envelope, simply the number of his post office box. If he has no post office box, then he must write his name; or, if a resident of a place where there is delivery by carriers, his full address, that is, his name, street and number. But in no case need he be at the trouble of writing the name of the post office, since that will always be indicated by the mailing stamp. Indorsement of "request" thus abbreviated cannot be considered very onerous.

Let the penalty for non-indorsement of "request" be non-forwarding of the letter—that is, let it be held for non-indorsement, precisely as now for non-prepayment of postage.

2. Let all transmitted letters which fail to be delivered at the office of destination, be sent back to the mailing offices, there to be returned free of charge and unopened to the writers. But if the postmaster cannot thus return them within a reasonable fixed period—any thirty days—let him, instead of sending them, as now, to a dead-letter office, at Washington, open them himself and destroy such as do not contain articles of money value. Such as do contain articles of money value, should be carefully registered and properly advertised, and then, failing of delivery, be forwarded to a general "Depository for Dead-Letter Valuables," at Washington, there to be cared for and held subject to the order of the owner.

Let letters held for non-indorsement of "request" and for non-prepayment of postage, be opened immediately by the postmaster and returned when practicable to the writer, who will thus have the earliest opportunity of correcting his inadvertence and preventing those injurious consequences which sometimes result from a short delay. Letters thus held which fail to be returned to the writer, will be treated as above directed—those not containing valuables, destroyed, those containing valuables, forwarded to the Washington Depository.

According to this scheme, all that will remain of the present enormous and expensive Dead-Letter Office at Washington, will be the Depository for Dead-Letter Valuables—an establishment of very moderate proportions.

Such is the scheme. On what grounds will it be objected to? Will it be on the ground that the penalty of non-delivering and non-forwarding of letters for omission of "request" is unreasonable? Let it be considered that the Government receives my letter and for one cent undertakes to deliver it to the party addressed at the post office in which deposited; or for two cents, to deliver it at domicile wherever there is delivery by carriers; or for three cents, to transmit it perhaps thousands of miles and there deliver it to the party addressed, and only asks me to indorse upon the envelope the number of my post office box, or my address, in order that if the letter cannot be delivered to the person addressed it may be returned, free of charge, into my own hands, and the Government be thereby relieved from further trouble and responsibility in the premises. To me this does not seem to be exacting too much. The Government now refuses to deliver or to transmit a letter on which the postage [illegible] to deliver or forward a letter without indorsement of "request," when it is considered how much trouble and expense the Government is liable to be put to in consequence of the omission?

Will it be objected to on the ground that the opening of the dead letters—including those held for non-prepayment of postage and for non-indorsement of "request"—is not safe in the hands of the local postmasters? In my judgment, these postmasters being, as a general rule, men of fair standing and of some consideration in the community where they reside, having a reputation to maintain among their immediate neighbors, and feeling, too, that they will be closely observed by the writers of undelivered letters, can be more safely intrusted with the delicate and responsible duty of opening dead letters, especially such as contain valuables, than any dead-letter office clerk distant perhaps thousands of miles.

Will it be objected to on the ground of the additional burden imposed on the local postmasters? If the scheme is carried out as proposed—that is, no letter forwarded without indorsement of "request"—there will be no appreciable burden anywhere except possibly at a few of the larger offices, and there not great. But whatever burden the adoption of the scheme may occasion, let it be adequately remunerated, and let additional clerical force be furnished wherever necessary.

While I would strongly urge the adoption of the penalty of non-forwarding of letters for non-indorsement of "request," as being just in itself, simple, easy of enforcement, and perfectly effectual, yet, if this is judged to be for the present too severe, or otherwise inexpedient, let a pecuniary penalty sufficiently heavy, not less than twenty-five or fifty cents be substituted for it, to be collected whenever omission of "request" necessitates the opening of the letter by the postmaster in order to its return to the writer. To facilitate the collection of this fine, the postmaster might be authorized to refuse further delivery of mail matter to the delinquent until the penalty should be satisfied. Another very effectual expedient to insure the indorsement of "request" would be a charge of, say, five cents, to be collected of the receiver of the letter on which "request" is omitted—just as deficient postage is now collected of the receiver. Many a man would not hesitate to omit "request" and run his chance of a fine of fifty cents for the omission, who would shrink from subjecting his correspondent to the charge of five cents. For a time our post office, when there was deficient postage, collected double the deficiency of the receiver of the letter. This at first looked to me, as well as to many others, harsh and unjust; but I soon became satisfied that it was perfectly justifiable and best, because it made writers very careful to prepay their postage in full, so that it soon became a rare thing for me to receive a letter which was not fully prepaid. It is for the same reason, doubtless, that at present the receiver of a letter from England, if there is deficient prepayment of postage, must not only make up the deficiency, but also pay a fine of five cents. This I look upon as a wise provision to insure full prepayment, and it is at the same time only a reasonable compensation for the extra trouble to which the post office is subjected by neglect to pay in full.

Though every year witnesses great improvements in our Post Office Department, it is not to be presumed that perfection has yet been reached. Let the above proposed scheme be carefully and candidly examined and disanssed with a view to the speedy adoption of whatever there may be of good in its suggestions. OUTSIDER.

We see two objections to the above plan: 1. The opening of letters by postmasters, under any circumstances, would be opposed by a great majority of the public, and on good grounds. We believe the postmasters themselves would be unwilling to assume such a delicate duty—they being already supplied with abundant means for "getting into hot water," if so disposed. 2. There are a large number of letters daily passing through the mails, which the writers would not desire, for perfectly legitimate reasons, to be endorsed with their names; and the above plan would virtually exclude such letters from the mails.

UNITED STATES POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY, 1869.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 101, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster-General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster-General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service, subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the City of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, etc., etc.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" (see Sec. 239 P. O. Regulations of 1866), and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters should provide themselves with that paper, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster-General.

[OFFICIAL.]
POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
FINANCE OFFICE,
Jan. 16, 1869.

The attention of the department has been called to an error not unfrequent with many postmasters, in the manner of preparing registered letters for mailing when there are more to go by same mail to the same office than can be inclosed in one "registered package envelope," viz.: that they make one bundle or package of the letters, wrapping them with paper and pasting a registered package envelope thereon.

The mode in question is not in accordance with the new regulations respecting the registration of letters. The note at foot of page 5, does not apply to such cases. It is to be followed only when a single letter or package, too large to be inclosed in a registered package envelope, is presented for registration.

When there are more letters to go to the same office than can be enclosed in one "registered package envelope," another, or any number of such envelopes required, should be used for inclosing the letters, sending with each package its proper "bill," and by same mail the corresponding "return bill."

A. N. ZEVELY,
Third Assist. P. M. General.

☞ Important changes will be noticed in our Table of Foreign Postages for this month.

"SPECIMEN COPIES."—It will be no news to Postmasters that a large number of copies of newspapers and periodicals are sent through the mails by publishers, unpaid, although addressed to persons who are not (and perhaps would not for any consideration become) subscribers. These are "specimen copies" sent out with the object of inducing subscriptions—a perfectly legitimate transaction, if the proper postage were prepaid by stamps. But many publishers prefer to attempt to defraud the Department by sending specimen copies to the Post Office, unpaid, along with their regular subscribers' copies. If, when postmasters receive the first unpaid copy of a newspaper or periodical, they will question the person addressed, before delivery, as to whether or not he is a subscriber to the publication, and then collect the postage (transient, if the answer be a negative, and quarterly, if in the affirmative), these petty attempts at fraud will soon be discontinued as unprofitable. If the person addressed is not a subscriber, and refuses the payment of transient postage, deposit the publication in the waste-paper bag.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

We take up first, a long, agreeable letter from Kentucky, containing several suggestions, one for the payment of all postage, whether at the mailing or delivery office, or whether in whole or in part, by postage stamps, the same as the registry fee is now paid; that such a plan would save, as suggested, a multiplicity of three cent entries in accounts, and thus simplify the latter, all will admit. Another suggestion relates to letters deposited unpaid. Our correspondent proposes holding them for a week to endeavor to discover the writer, and if unsuccessful at the expiration of that time, to forward them to the addressees and collect postage on delivery. He argues that it costs him in stationery over two cents to send such a letter to the Dead-Letter Office, and hence that he prefers paying the postage himself. As applied to small offices where an unpaid letter is not usual, the plan would doubtless be satisfactory, but not to large offices where there are every day from a dozen to two or three hundred unpaid letters. A third suggestion relates to the mooted question of postage on regular newspapers to subscribers, but as it is similar to others we have published we must pass it by to take up a letter from Minnesota, the writer of which says he is "an unfortunate P. M. always getting scolded for trying to keep my word," etc. The etcetera referring to his official oath. The scold that called forth his letter to us consists of a letter from the editor of a paper, complaining of and to the unfortunate P. M., for his strict adherence to his duty. The editor's letter is very far from commendable, and when he uses such language as this, "You are the first postmaster that has Chapter 20, Section 210, of Standing Regulations on the brain," we cannot but think he has made a mistake in sneering at an official for doing his duty, and in drawing a contemptuous contrast between him and those who by their carelessness regarding newspapers cannot escape the charge of violating their official oaths. By way of consolation to our friend, we say go on and do your duty, if you find post office clerks derelict in theirs, see that they are made to reform. It [illegible] any one violating the postal laws, report them and have the violation stopped. You and every other postmaster are put in office to conduct your offices according to rules and laws, and not to connive at their violation. And now a letter from White & Bauer, General News Agents, San Francisco, who are heavy losers by the "muddle" in the conveyance of the Overland mail last fall. But what can we say—commensurate with our time and space, nothing suggests itself but the familiar "Wait a little longer, there's a good time coming," when the locomotive will be the only team on the great highway between New York and San Francisco, and the stage coach, like high rates of postage, will be among the things of the past.

We close our article with extracts from two letters handed us by a publisher, on which, however, we make no comment. Subscriber S., of Ohio, writes, "I do not want THE MAIL for another year, * * * my salary is only $6.66 per month, (about $80 per annum) so I must do without THE MAIL." While Subscriber B., of the same State, writes, "My office is under a salary of $30 per annum, yet I cannot afford to do without THE MAIL."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Delivery of Letters.—R. C. K., G——, O.—An answer to your question may be found in THE MAIL for September last: "The right to receive letters is in the officer rather than the individual"—that is, a letter addressed to A. B., Cashier, etc., when C. D. is Cashier, etc., should be delivered to C. D.

Postage Stamps as a Legal Tender.—J. H. B., P——, Idaho.—Postage stamps are not a legal tender for any amount. In the words of the law they are to facilitate the prepayment of postages, and to be evidence of such prepayment. Secs. 207 and 208, Law 1866.

Delivery of Mails on the Train.—C. W. M., N——, O.—Where a post office is within eighty rods of a station, the mails must be delivered into the office by the railroad company; where it is not within that distance, a mail messenger is appointed for the service. Authority, however, to employ one, must be obtained from the Contract office. See. 471, Reg. 1866.

Withdrawing a Letter after Posting.—J. P. H., L——, Va.—It is not necessary to deface the postage stamp on a letter withdrawn from a post office, under sec. 64, Reg. 1866.

Retaining Post Office Accounts.—D. M., D—— P——, Mass.—The original post-office accounts should be kept about two years and may then be sold and the proceeds credited to the Department.

Duty of Railway Postal Clerks.—J. C. C., B——, Tenn.—1. Railway-postal clerks should always examine the Libels of the pouches and sacks they receive, to see if they should go in their charge. 2. If a car, or part of a car, is set apart for the postal service, the conductor of the train has no right to interfere in any way with the disposal of the mails. 3. A postal clerk or route agent is certainly justifiable in using force to prevent improper interference with the mails.

Franking.—A. O. M., C——, O.—Chapter XV., of Regulations of 1866, contains all the information we can give on the subject of franking. That the privilege is very much abused is a well-known fact.

Distributing Post Offices.—A. G., P—— P——, Texas...Galveston is not properly a distributing office, but is a separating office for a large part of Texas.

Exchanges.—J. 1. D., F——, Ky.—The privilege of exchanging, free of postage, includes "periodicals, magazines and newspapers which shall not exceed sixteen ounces in weight." Sec. 288, Law 1866.

Quarterly Postage.—S. G., M—— S——, Pa.—A postmaster has no right to demand more than one quarter's postage in advance. Sec. 154, Reg. 1866....A. G. P., R ——ll——, Conn.—Papers on which the quarterly postage has been paid can not be forwarded from one office to another without additional postage, the proper way to avoid this additional postage is to have the post office address of the papers changed, and to get from the postmaster of the former office a receipt for the postage, which receipt will be sufficient authority to the postmaster at the second office to deliver the papers without charge. See "Answers" in MAIL for September last.

County Papers.—A. S., L—— S——, N. Y.—Bona fide subscribers to weekly newspapers can receive the same free of postage, if they reside in the county of publication even if the office to which they are sent is without that county, provided it is the office at which they usually receive their mail matter. Sec. 228, Reg. 1866. .....C. A. K., G——, Md.—Section 3, Act of July 27, 1868, provides that weekly newspapers, properly folded and addressed, when sent to regular subscribers in the county where printed and published shall be delivered free of postage, when deposited at the office nearest to the office of publication: this applies only to office delivery and not to delivery by carriers.

Disposition of Dead Newspapers.—H. E. B., L——, N. C.—Domestic Newspapers that cannot be delivered must be sold at the end of the quarter, and the proceeds credited to the Department. Sec. 391, Reg. 1866.

Newsdealers Packages.—A. L., F——, O.—Newsdealers may send packages of papers to each other, without the prepayment at the mailing office, whether the packages are original or contain refused papers....A. R. P., C——, N.Y.—Section 225, not sections 201 and 202, Regulations 1866, authorizes agents to send newspapers and periodicals to bona fide subscribers in the same manner and with the same privileges as publishers; that is, without prepayment of postage, the payment to be made at quarterly rates at the office of delivery, according to sections 201 and 202.

Box Rents.—S. R., P—— C——, Ill.—Postmasters are required to report the number of boxes and drawers rented. The report is to be made on a blank, called the Emolument Account. It is furnished by the Blank Agent at Washington....A. G., M—— C——, Iowa.—1. The Department does not contemplate the use of free boxes in post offices. Though boxes are the private property of the postmaster, rent should be charged for them and returns thereof made to the Department. Chap. XIII. Reg., 1866. 2. By section 6 Act of July 27, 1868, postmasters are required to deliver, free of postage, weekly papers, properly folded and addressed to subscribers, when deposited at the office nearest to the office of publication. (See above.)....C. W., M——, Wis.—The Department has not fixed any specified sum as the rent for post office boxes, except in free delivery offices, where by the instructions of November 23, 1864, it was ordered that "the rent be double that heretofore charged, except at such offices as have already increased the price."

Registration.—D. A. W., P——, N. J.—The usual fee is required on packages of mutilated currency registered to the Treasurer of the United States....R. W. B., W——, O.—A postmaster is not required to know the contents of a registered letter. In your letter you state that a postmaster opened a letter left with him for registration, to see if it contained money as alleged. We can scarcely credit that any postmaster can be so ignorant as to suppose that he has a right to open a letter not addressed to himself. If there be any such we would call his attention to sections 71, Regulations 1866, and 239, Laws....S. O. P., S—— S——, Cal.—There is no contradiction between sections 7 and 18 of the New Regulations. Section 7 refers to a report to be made to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General; section 18 to the Quarterly Returns sent to the Auditor....S. McC., T——, Pa.—A registered Package Envelope, sent to a D. P. O. should be addressed simply to the postmaster at that office, without the initials D.P. O.... I. P., S——, N. Y.—Receipts for Registered Package Envelopes are to be used on all routes and between all postmasters.... A. McG., B——, Ill.—Receipts must be sent and returned for Registered Package Envelopes conveyed in the wooden mail boxes as well as in leather pouches.

Postage.—H. A. F., J——, Mo.—Insufficiently prepaid letters addressed to foreign countries, where the prepayment is not compulsory, should be forwarded to the proper distributing post office, without, however, any charge marked on them, the proper charge will be marked at the office of exchange. That is, a letter for Germany, or other foreign country, bearing a three cent stamp, or any stamp of insufficient amount, should be postmarked and have the stamp cancelled; but there should be no charge or "due" marked on the letter; this will be done at the office where it is made up for the foreign country. .....T. S., O——, N. Y.—A pamphlet or newspaper, and one, two or three circulars, and a subscription list or an order sheet, inclosed in one wrapper would be subject to letter postage. Sections 41 and 226 Reg. 1866....D. J., W——, O.—A package of dry goods, though open at both ends, must be charged at letter rates....W. A., M——, Mich.—A transient paper, without postmark or stamp, received at an office for delivery should be charged a miscellanous rate, and the postage collected before delivery. Section 150 Reg. 1866. If such papers are refused, they should be sold at the end of the quarter, and the proceeds credited to the Department. Section 391, Reg. 1866....H. F. M., M——, Pa.—Postmasters are not entitled to receive papers through the mails free of postage....W. M., D——, Ill., and W. F. D., N—— M——, Ind.—One cent for each half ounce, or fraction thereof, is the proper charge on drop letters at offices where there is not a free delivery; where there is a free delivery the charge is two cents. Sections 213 and 261 Laws, 1866.

The "$1 Sale" Swindles.

As quite a number of our subscribers have sent us inquiries concerning the probable results of patronizing the extensively advertised "One Dollar Sales," the following account of the experience of a Boston friend will be found interesting and instructive to such inquirers, if not to others:

BOSTON, January, 1869.

Editor U. S. Mail: There is a "$1 Sale" concern in this city, under the name of A—— H—— & Co., who advertise and circularize to a fearful extent that they will do a big thing for $1. As I had heard considerable complaints among the victims of this huge swindle, I took it into my head to get my fingers burned a little pro bono publico—and succeeded in doing so. (Inclosed please find the circular of the firm).

I assumed the name of Mrs. Jane Harris, of Nashua, N. H., addressed a letter to said firm, inclosing three dollars for slips or tickets. In due time an answer to my letter was received and found to contain thirty slips. Each slip representing on its face what I could have by returning one or all. Each slip so returned must have $1 with it, and so on; and in addition the firm presented "Mrs. Jane Harris" with a "premium slip" for getting up the club of thirty. From these thirty slips I picked out four, which with the premium made five slips, and inclosed four dollars and said slips in a letter to A—— H—— & Co. These slips respectively called for the following: No 1, premium slip—Hair chain, "Gold" Trimmings; No. 2—Lady's "GOLD" Pencil; No. 3—A Five-Bottle Castor; No. 4—Six yards of Cotton Flannel; No. 5—Cotton Bed Quilt. The box containing this stuff, was duly received at Nashua, and forwarded from that place to me. Upon opening the box, I found instead of a "Hair chain, gold mounted;" a hair chain, gold "WASHED," worth $3 per dozen. Instead of "Gold" Pencil, there was a washed, spurious article, such as can be bought for forty-two cents retail. The quilt was "tough," being a square piece of figured cotton cloth! The cotton flannel (ye gods!) six yards, worth ten cents per yard! I immediately sent for the "firm" to call on me at my office, and they made their appearance forthwith. I informed them of the facts in the case, and pointed them to their circular, wherein they promise to send a hair chain, "gold" mountings, gold pencil, etc., and asked them if said articles (leaving out the dry goods), were gold. They informed me they were; whereupon I informed them that they were swindlers; and, matters getting "pretty hot," they finally concluded that the aforesaid articles were "just as good as gold." To the question, "Why do you advertise in your circular to send a gold article, and in its stead send a washed article?" One of the firm replied that he did not know that the circular so stated—was entirely ignorant of the fact. The other said it was "a mistake made by the printer—the proof-sheet was wrong"' I informed them that some six months previous to this they were informed by the State constable that they did not do as they agreed in said circular, and asked them why they continued to send out said circular, knowing that they offered in it false inducements? To this they replied that they had some 50,000 printed, and thought they would use them up. I now considered it an appropriate occasion for the use of some very plain English, and if they are not aware of my opinion of them and their rascally operations, I assure you it is no fault of mine. They shortly afterward departed, and I took my gold and cotton goods and all papers appertaining to the case before Judge Chamberlain, of the Police Court, thoroughly explained the case, and most fervently prayed that the swindlers should be punished. The case came before a full bench of Police Judges, being three in all, and after ten days delay I was informed that I had no case, there being no law to reach them, but that I could commence a civil suit, they thought, and might be successful. Here the matter rests. I have given you my experience, in order that your readers may have the benefit of it.

Here is my account of "receipts and expenditures" in the operation:

EXPENDITURES.		RECEIPTS.
Paid for slips....$3 00		H. chain, worth	$0 45
Sent for goods.... 4 00		Pencil, "	0 25
Postage stamps.. 0 12		Quilt, "	0 75
Express charges. 0 42		Castor, "	0 62
		C'n flannel,"	0 60
	$7 54		$2 67

Net result—$4 83 out of pocket. J.

Should any of our readers desire to "make his fortune" by a similar speculation, he has only to remit his spare greenbacks to any of the Boston "One Dollar Sales" firms, and they will "put him through" as above.

Several instances have come to our knowledge of postmasters filing away registered package envelopes without first taking out their contents, thus leading to reports of losses of registered letters, and complaints detrimental to the registry system. Special care should be taken to guard against this fault.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labnan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be prepaid on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasure.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices (viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibrailn, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mityiene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultchn, Varna and, Volo), can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 3.)

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word of communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following Islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana, or by American packet, leaving New York 23d each month), the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Prepayment compulsory.

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Philadelphia and Baltimore are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Chicago, Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

San Francisco is an office of Exchange for British Mails only.

Post Office Blanks.

The agency for supplying postmasters with blanks is located at Washington, D. C.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

All drop letters must be prepaid. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent.

Local transit postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

UNITED STATES POSTAL AGENCY, WASHINGTON CITY.

THE UNDERSIGNED offers his services to Postmasters, Mail Contractors and others, as a Correspondent at the City of Washington, especially on matters of business with the Post Office Department.

The ordinary round of duty in the Department is performed with regularity and dispatch, but there are inquiries on minor points which in the press of business are not always noticed in a regular official way. The object of the undersigned is to answer such inquiries, after due examination in the proper office.

He also proposes, without special inquiry being made of him, to notify mail contractors, who engage his services, whether there is any impediment in the way of settling their accounts, and how to remove it.

This service will be performed at the following rates:

One Dollar a quarter when routes are all in the same State, and do not exceed four in number.

One Dollar a quarter additional for each additional State to which the routes belong.

For information given concerning more than four routes in the same State, Two Dollars.

Postmasters and others may have special inquiries answered by remitting One Dollar, for Post Office business, or Five Dollars for business generally.

The services of the undersigned may be commanded for one year as correspondent on ordinary business matters of the Post Office Department, such as adjustment of accounts, payment of quarterly dues, awards of mail contracts, or establishment of Post Offices, by the payment of Five Dollars in advance.

No Information will be given except such as is obtained by personal inquiry of the proper officers of the Department.

In all cases Remittances must be in advance, and stamps must be sent to prepay return of postage. Remittances should, when practicable, be made by means of money orders.

E. S. ZEVELY,
Lock Box No. 79, Washington, D. C.

This Corresponding Agency is approved by the Postmaster-General, and other principal officers of the Post Office Department, as shown by the annexed statement:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, November, 1868.

We approve of the Corresponding Agency proposed by E. S. ZEVELY, and believe it will be mutually beneficial to the Department and the public.

A. W. RANDALL, Postmaster-General.

PROSPECTUS OF

Frank Leslie's Publications.

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

The aim of this paper is to furnish a pictorial history of current events. Between thirty and forty illustrations appear in every weekly number, including eight engravings of the pictorial spirit of the foreign press, events of national or local interest, railroad or steamboat accidents, amusing and thrilling incidents, comics, etc. The literary matter comprises, besides well-written editorials on the leading questions of the day, and descriptions of the engravings, a serial story of thrilling interest, entertaining narratives and tales, humorous anecdotes, choice poems, etc.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Chimney Corner.

A purely literary pictorial. Excluding events of the day, its aim, as its title indicates, is to furnish amusement for the leisure hour. Its contents consist principally of original stories by able writers—including a serial, accounts of remarkable adventures, biographical sketches of self-made men—with portraits, descriptions of manners and customs in remote countries, short poems, fairy stories, enigmas, conundrums, charades, etc. Illustrated with large and spirited engravings, of which there are from fifteen to twenty in each weekly number.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

The New World.

This handsome, large eight-paged weekly is addressed to all classes—to the young and the old, the lettered and the comparatively unlearned, the rich and the poor. Its columns are filled with serial and other literary matter, prepared by writers whose names are familiar to readers of romance, travel and discovery; students of science and admirers of poesy; and its pages are liberally enriched by the pencils of leading artists, to whom is intrusted the task of illustrating its stories, and papers upon topics of graver moment. THE NEW WORLD is particularly favored in the list of its contributors, five hundred of whom have engaged to write for it. Among these may be mentioned, Hon. E. George Squier, ex-Minister to Peru, whose researches in the wilds of Central and South America have greatly added to our knowledge of the ethnology and past civilization of the Western Hemisphere; Prof. A. C. Joy, lecturer on applied chemistry at Columbia College, New York; A. K. Gardner, M. D., Professor of Diseases of Women, an author whose work on Pathology have become text-books with the faculty; Professors Emery and Allen; William Ross Wallace, Edward Fawcett, Barry Gray, Mary J. Austin, Virginia F. Townsend, Captain Mayne Reid, Della Maitland, M. A. Denison, and Nellie Ames.

Subscription price, $3 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustrirte Zeitung.

A pictorial newspaper in the German language, containing a large number of engravings illustrating events of the day, exciting and amusing incidents, adventures and manners and customs in all parts of the world, with a large amount of literary matter, including numerous interesting tales. This paper combines, for the German reader the attractions presented in the illustrated Newspaper and the Chimney Corner.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustracion Americana.

An illustrated paper in the Spanish language, with all the attractive features, pictorial and literary, that have made Frank Leslie's other publications so popular.

Subscription price in the United States, $12 currency.

Frank Leslie's Boys and Girls' Weekly.

One of the cheapest pictorial papers ever published. Intended for the amusement of youth of both sexes. The illustrations and literary matter are such as especially recommend themselves to the young. It contains, besides a continued story and well-written tales, accounts of wonderful adventure, descriptions and illustrations of foreign manners and customs, anecdotes and pictures of animals, familiar and funny fables, parlor magic, etc. From twenty to twenty-five engravings appear in each weekly issue.

Subscription price, $2 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine.

The leading fashion periodical in America. Each monthly number contains a large colored plate of the latest fashions, from designs sent from Paris as soon as invented, which are thus published simultaneously in New York and Paris; also a four-page uncolored fashion plate, embracing the various leading styles. These are accompanied with full descriptions and explanations, with numerous other illustrations. Every number contains an original letter from Paris, describing the very latest modes, by a lady whose position gives her access to fashionable society. The literary portion of this magazine comprises a continued story, numerous interesting tales, poetry, anecdotes, etc. The whole profusely illustrated with fine engravings.

Subscription price, $3 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Budget of Fun.

This is a comic pictorial newspaper, published on the first of every month. Its remarkable success, and the steady increase in its circulation, attest its adaptation to the popular taste. It looks at things of the day from a comic point of view, and its illustrations—of which there are from forty to fifty in every issue—are directed, without respect to station or person—against the follies and vices of the times. It constitutes an almost inexhaustible source of amusement and fun.

Subscription price, $1 50 per year.

The Young Lady's Budget.

Fashion, Fiction and Entertaining Knowledge. A monthly publication, of which the features are such as especially commend it to the favor of young ladies. A large proportion of its pages are devoted to Fashions, in which the newest styles are presented, fully illustrated with engravings and a beautiful colored Fashion Plate. A great variety of engraved patterns for netting, crochet-work, needle-work, embroidery, etc., are also given. In each number appears a page or more of new and popular music, selected especially with a view to the tastes of young ladies.

Subscription price, $2 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Pleasant Hours.

The cheapest periodical in the United States, containing eighty large octave pages of letter-press, with from twenty to twenty-five illustrations, besides two full-page engravings, on tinted paper, in each number. A continued story, and well-written tales and stories of adventure, with numerous anecdotes, descriptions of manners and customs, amusements for young people, etc., constitute the reading matter.

Terms of subscription, $1 50 per year.

Specimen copies and special terms to Postmasters forwarded on application.

VOL. IX., NO. 6. NEW YORK, MARCH, 1869. WHOLE NO. 102.

Important Legal Decision.

On the 11th of November last, E. G. Randall, postmaster at Portland, Oregon, was arrested by Special Agent Quincy A. Brooks, on a charge of opening a registered letter and stealing therefrom twelve ounces of gold-dust. On November 23, he was brought to trial; but the jury, being unable to agree, were discharged, and a second trial began on January 6, was continued for several days, and resulted in the conviction of the defendant. His counsel at once filed a motion for a new trial, on account of certain alleged errors in the ruling of the Court as to the admission of evidence, etc., and also a motion in arrest of judgment, "because the facts stated in the indictment do not constitute a crime, in this —that gold-dust is not mailable matter."

These motions were argued before Hon. Matthew P. Deady, Judge of the U. S. District Court for the District of Oregon, who, on January 23, delivered his opinion in the case, overruling the motion for a new trial, and also the motion in arrest of judgment. We quote his remarks on the latter point:

As to the motion in arrest of judgment, a statement of the statutes in regard to the matter and a few comments will dispose of it. Section 12 of Act of July 1, 1864 (13 Stat. 337), re-enacting section 21 of Act of March 3, 1825, provides:

"If any person employed in any department of the post office establishment, etc., shall secrete, embezzle or destroy any letter, packet, etc., with which he or she shall be intrusted, or which shall have come to his or her possession and intended to be conveyed by post, etc., such letter, packet, etc., containing any note, bond, draft, check * * * or other article of value, etc.; or if any such person, etc., shall steal or take any of the same out of any letter or packet, etc., such person shall, on conviction for any such offence, be imprisoned not less than ten years nor exceeding twenty-one years, etc."

Tried by this definition, the act committed by the defendant was a crime. The defendant was a person employed in the post office. Envelope 28 came into his possession, and was intended to be conveyed by post. It contained an article of value—[illegible] ounces of gold dust—and the defendant, by the verdict of the jury, is found to have taken the same out of such envelope or letter therein. Even if the statutes defining mailable matter do not include gold dust in that category, still the taking or stealing it from a letter in the mail by a person employed in the post office, would be a flat violation of the section just read, and a crime. It does not follow that because an article is not enumerated as mailable matter, that therefore it can be stolen from the mails by those intrusted with their conduct and transportation, with impunity. As argued by counsel for defendant, a postmaster might object to being responsible for articles not permitted to be carried in the mails, but no one should object that he is prohibited from stealing from the mails, whether the article be rightfully there or not.

Section 16 of the act of March 3, 1863 (12 Stat. 704) provides:

"No postmaster shall receive, to be conveyed by the mail, any packet or package which shall weigh more than four pounds, except books published and circulated by order of Congress."

The reasonable inference from this section is, that the mailability of matter depends upon its weight and not its kind or quality. To the same effect is section 25 of the same act, which reads:

"On all matter not enumerated as mailable matter and to which no specific rates of postage are assigned, and which shall nevertheless be mailed, the rate, if the same shall be forwarded, is established at the rate of letter postages."

Section 456 of the post office regulations prescribes:

"Money and other valuables, sent by mail are at the risk of the owner, but in case of loss the Department will endeavor to discover the cause and where there has been a theft to punish the offender."

These instructions being promulgated by the Postmaster-General, under authority of an act of Congress, have the force of law. Section 32 of act of March 3, 1863, authorized the Postmaster-General to establish a uniform plan for the registration of valuable letters. Under this system, envelope 28 was being carried through the mails when broken open.

In the United States vs. Marcellis (2 Blatchford C. C. R. 109) on a special verdict, judgment of conviction was given against the defendant for taking two letters containing each a 25 cent piece in silver. The case was argued before Justices Nelson and Betts, and no question seemed to be made that it was not a crime to steal coin from the mails, because it was not mailable matter. This judgment was given in 1849, while the post office act of 1825, which the defendant relies on, was in force. There is no statute of the United States which provides specifically that coin is mailable matter, any more than gold dust. Yet I apprehend that a packet of either of them, not weighing over four pounds and prepaid at letter postage rates, is mailable matter; and whether this be so or not, there can be no doubt but that it is a crime against the United States to take or steal either of them from the mails.

To conclude: after a long and careful examination of the case, I can find no sure ground upon which to question the legality or rightfulness of this verdict, or to arrest or delay the judgment of conviction which the law declares shall be given against the defendant in consequence of it.

The defendant was sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for the term of twelve years.

The decision of Judge Deady in the above case is similar to that of Judge Smalley, in the case of the United States vs. Curry, tried in the U. S. Circuit Court at New York in 1867, in which the defendant was indicted for the embezzlement from the mail of a packet containing articles of jewelry, and is moreover plainly in accordance with justice and common sense.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, February, 1869.

The extraordinary mildness of the past mid-winter month tempted me from home a good deal further than usual during this season of the year, and my provincial friends were no more surprised than was I at finding myself, a short time since, at the frontier town of Maggywasco, in the State of—but that's immaterial. To reach this point I had to pass on the Rockybottom, Handsome Valley and Tamarac, Falling-water and Cana-Canack railways, neither of which had suffered the slightest delay from snow obstructions, although the latter route has not seen a winter since its construction, except the present one, during which it has not been so blockaded for days together as to entirely and absolutely stop travel. The annual recurrence of these snow embargoes is looked for and provided for with as much certainty and care as are the necessary supplies for the road, and the failure to put in an appearance this winter—although it saves money for the Company—disappoints a large amount of outside help, which is always well paid for removing these barriers, and puts into a passion many of the employés, who can shirk work during these celestial blockades, and complacently look at the army of spaders from comfortable quarters, and feel indifferent as to "whether school keeps or not." It is to be supposed, however, that those connected with the mail service along those iron highways rejoice with exceeding great joy at the uninterrupted regularity of supplies of mail matter, among which they do so love to labor, and which, with a few exceptions, they receive and dispatch with such correctness and celerity as to elicit encomiums from every one interested. To be sure, if one has a mind to listen to grumblers (which you know I do not), he may hear of frequent shortcomings and negligence on the part of the stationary and moveable postal employés; but probably it is all exaggeration or misrepresentation—and if not, what's the difference? How are they (the grumblers) to remedy it? If a Route Agent (I believe that is what you call it) feels disposed to transfer his responsibility, his work-shop and his labors every other trip to some one that he selects, it is a matter of explanation between him and his superior. What has the unofficial world to do with it? Is not the oath he takes to obey the instructions and regulations of the Department elastic enough to stretch over the shoulders of the kindly nature who temporarily but frequently relieves him from his exhausting duties, and probably saves him from being charged with incompetency or carelessness, or something else, by dividing the discharge of duties with him? Of course this is based upon the hypothesis that such things do or might occur. So far as I have noticed, these charges hold good in very few instances, and in these cases there is probable cause for complaint. But I was speaking of the fine weather and my trip when I was unintentionally led into other matters. I reached Muggywasco in the afternoon of a splendid day; the air was mild as May time and the sky as clear as French plate glass; but I was scarcely domiciliated with my brother-in-law's wife's cousin's husband's family, when a most extraordinary change took place in the atmosphere, and an ancient barometer indicated stormy weather—and it told the truth for once, for in the night it commenced snowing and continued incessantly for two days, and from the general aspect of things I was reduced to the necessity of believing that we would be permanently snowed under. It would have been fearfully dreary to have been pent up in that out-of-the way place; but, thanks to the discriminating literary taste of my distant relative and host, I had free access to his store of books—limited somewhat, but choice—and was able to pass the time away with "Hervey's Meditations Among the Tombs," "Fox's Book of Martyrs," "Patent Office Reports for 1840," "Akenhead's Elementary Geography," illustrated in colors, and other cheerful works.

But everything has an ending of some kind, so had the tempestuous visitation, and very soon the neighborhood was wild with delight and excitement, and every conceivable kind of vehicle on runners was put in requisition and before the day was over the roads in every direction were in magnificent condition for sleighing purposes. When I arrived the village seemed to be asleep, but now all was animation and hilarity, and a general upheaval of popular good nature, and business activity followed the subsided snow-storm. Everybody was happy and everybody but me was sleigh riding—and I was happy to see others happy; but I preferred having my knees and nose close to a stove, and looking at the sport through the window, with Hervey or Fox in my hand. The local "weekly" had come in, but as it made a specialty of advertisements in rhyme, and agricultural selections, it afforded no gratification—it made me feel dull and gloomy.

When my friends returned—for they had joined the grand turn-out—they brought with them the Rev. Alcibiades Tenderman, to whom I was introduced, with whom I was most favorably impressed, by whom I was delightfully entertained for an hour or two, and from whom I received an invitation to attend a lecture on "Modern Female Curvatures," at his church on the following evening, which I accepted with alacrity and made my preparations accordingly; but upon the principle that it never rains but it pours, he had scarcely left me, when Messrs. Braddle & Podd were announced — or at least entered without knocking—and introduced themselves jointly and then each other to me, by the above euphonious surnames, and went on forthwith to announce that they were a committee from the "Dodo Club," and had called to tender me the civilities of their society, and an invitation to visit their rooms that evening. Of course I accepted, and when the hour arrived I was formally received and politely introduced to the entire club. One of the committee took occasion to inform me quietly that the club was formed only a short time ago, that it is limited to thirty members, and is now full. They meet monthly, and after the regular business is through, the balance of the evening is devoted to the past and present experiences of the members, reaching as far back as they please to go. But I will not go into the details of the organization. I will merely state that immediately its design is to promote the happiness of its members, by mutual consolation and gratification, by unreserved confessions of pleasant and unpleasant reminiscences and in indulging in not too frequent interludes in stimulants and substantials; and remotely for the destruction of any surplusage of any kind for charitable purposes. I was both pleased and surprised when I entered their club-room. It was replete with every desirable appointment for the comfort of the members and their guests. And I have seen a great deal worse, where more display is affected. I was shown to a capacious armchair supplied with a leaf upon which were placed a pipe, cigars and a glass goblet. An old-fashioned wood-fire diffused a delightful warmth through the hall, and an air of entire and unqualified contentment pervaded my whole system. The reading of the minutes of the last meeting being dispensed with and some brief routine matters finished up, it was announced that Brother Durdledot was this evening to edify the club, and the members were directed to moisten their lips, light their pipes and preserve silence. I acted just as if I were a member and did as they did. Sotto voce the gentleman who sat next me informed me that Durdledot was the village postmaster, and was "one of the boys." I did not understand what he meant by the latter remark, but I cocked my ears in expectation of hearing some official revelations, and waited. I was not at all gratified, his remarks were commonplace and entirely devoid of interest, and I came pretty near falling asleep, when he struck a vein that roused me up a little. Some people, said he, have an idea that keeping a post office is not only very pleasant but very lucrative: that it is so nicely constructed that it will go by itself if you don't stop it; that it requires no skill, no intelligence, no watchfulness and no labor to run one, and the only two imperatives are to swear you will perform the duties and take the pay for doing them, everything else requiring no attention. Some people are mistaken and some people are hard to please, and I don't propose to please 'em. If I were to open my office at daybreak and not close it until midnight, which I did when I was first appointed, fault would be found because I did not open earlier and shut later, and therefore I determined to run the office to suit myself. I open and close it when I please, shut it up to go to my meals, to visit a neighbor or to go sleigh-riding, and if some have to wait, let 'em; I have to wait for them and they don't come. If I have some friends in my office, and a lady or little boy become unnecessarily impatient after rapping a few times, it does not hurry me a bit, but I take occasion to administer a rebuke that will either keep such parties entirely from the office or make them more respectful in future. If newspapers come to my office I claim the right to have the first reading of them for the handling of them, for it is not expected that a postmaster should pay for his reading matter. If annoying inquiries are made in regard to the payment of postage on various things I do not trouble myself by hunting up and laying down the law and imparting the desired information; I take the most liberal view of the matter, and pass it along for somebody else to classify and collect additional postage on it if I have not charged enough, and refund if I have charged too much. In fact, there is an abundance of hard work to do if one is disposed to do it; but my theory is to go across lots or get round it the easiest way I can, and let post offices which get more pay, and railway postal officials who have more time correct my mistakes if I make any. If people come to me and complain of delayed or lost letters I have no time to bother with them: it is trouble enough to send away and receive those I handle, without going out doors to help hunt up lost ones. Some postmasters think it their duty to help in such cases—they don't know any better—and are afraid of being turned out of office. My idea is this, that all a postmaster wants to do to retain his position is to put himself on his good behavior a few months before the time when a change of rulers might bring a change of subordinates; do all that is required of him and a little more—contribute to charitable objects; deliver newspapers, magazines, etc., in their clean crisp coverings just as they come; listen patiently to complaints of all kinds—and spare a tear or two when told of the grief and disappointment caused by the loss of an anxiously expected letter; keep his office floors, walls and windows clean; stick up a sign "open at all hours" whether it is meant or not—and in this way any reasonable amount of wool may be pulled over the eyes of the community, and the coming man be made to feel that there is no use knocking at that door. Railway postal officials can be conciliated by small contributions of choice fruit quietly dropped in the mail pouches, and their good nature can be kept alive by returning promptly the bags and sacks in which the matter is received, instead of retaining them for floor-mats, door-mats, chair cushions and lounges for men and dogs, which not only inflicts inconvenience and injury, but when they are returned they are so offensively odorous as to prevent their being used unless fumigated or unfit to be used at all as will sometimes happen. This and a good deal more he said, but it will take too much room to follow him. How his remarks happened to fall into this channel I cannot tell, for I was drowsing when he touched the subject; but the drift was to show his fellow-members that he was as independent as they make 'em; that he would keep his office open or shut, dirty or clean, to suit himself; that if people did not like his way of doing business they could do the other thing; that his Insurance business (he was agent for the Coney Island Life Insurance Company) could not, would not and should not be neglected for a few letters and papers which paid but a small per centage for the trouble of receiving and delivering them; and if postmasters generally would act as he did the people would not be so troublesome, and the numerous new arrangements emanating from headquarters to increase the dispatch and safety of valuable letters—the utility and importance of which he would not deny—would not be put in operation.

He wound up by saying that "it might be unpopular and probably injurious to him to speak these sentiments outside of the club-room; but as the members were not allowed to reveal the confidences of the club, he felt no restraint in speaking his mind." Not being a member I am guilty of no breach of hospitality or secrecy, I presume, in giving you this sketch of his desultory lecture or whatever he might desire to see it christened. I took occasion to visit his office next day and was not surprised to find it just as I expected, and like many others no doubt; by comparison the most untidy, unclean and uninviting place in the village of Muggywasco, but au revoir for the present.

MONS. TONSON.

COMMUNICATIONS.

P. O. INNUBBUS, Feb. 1869.

ED. U. S. MAIL:—It is a long time that I have not ventured, through the MAIL, to express myself on post office matters, and especially on the management of post offices by my fellow-postmasters. Whether my former expression of views or my later silence has been the more prudnotive of good, I cannot decide, nor has this question been a cause of the latter; but somehow I began to feel it rather an ungracious task to be continually plucking at the motes in my brother's eyes,—albeit, I could not but acknowledge that those motes which I did pluck at, had very beam-like proportions, and that a regard for the Department and the public required that some one should pluck them out—and so without reason, or fore-thought, I fell into this silence which has enveloped me. But I have been roused by sundry beams, so unmistakably beams, that to no one can they possibly have the appearance of motes. And being roused I have once again seated myself at my tables to write to you, that I may suggest to my brother postmasters, or some of them, greater care in observing the rules of the Department.

It requires but little attention to postal affairs for one to see that in the last few years these affairs have been gradually progressing from the crude system organized by Postmaster-General Franklin to a science. The peculiar features which at present I have in mind, are the envelopes furnished by the Department for postal business, which envelopes, either by indorsement or color, are designed to inform a postmaster at a glance and before opening them the nature of the business to which the letters they contain refer. Thus there is the envelope, indorsed M. O. B., for money-order business, the red envelope for registry business and the green for publishers' business—the money-order postmark differs also from the usual one. Now all these are, or should be, of great practical utility; the design is good, and if carried out must do much to systematize and perfect the postal service so that it will better meet the wants of our rapidly increasing population than it now does. Why is this design a failure? Simply on account of criminally careless postmasters, who defeat the design of the Department by an indiscriminate use of envelopes that should be used specifically according to the business in hand.

Probably I should not have written this letter to you had I not been a sufferer by the carelessness above named, but having been, I am tempted to follow the path trod by all sufferers from official carelessness or wickedness of whatever kind—rush into the newspapers. In my well-appointed office, the money-order business is under the care of my "first assistant," while my "second" has charge of the registration business, and it is so arranged that should either, at any time, perform the duties of the other, it can be known by reference to the books. By this means their individual responsibility is secured, and they made to feel a sense of it; but unfortunately, this well-appointed, smoothly-working machine is sometimes thrown out of gear by the dereliction of some brother-postmaster, and delays and annoyances, if not accidents, are the results. One or two incidents that have happened lately will fully explain my position. A few days ago, I received one of the green envelopes indorsed, as you know, "Publisher's notice." Supposing that it contained, as it purported to, a publisher's notice, it was put unopened in the box of the only publisher in our village. Some three or four days after he returned it with the advice of a money order which it had contained. In the meantime, several applications had been made for the payment of the order which, of course, could not be done, as no advice had been received: the case was the worse because the payee of the order was a poor woman who really needed the money. In another instance, much annoyance was caused by a return registered-letter receipt being inclosed in a money-order envelope, the sender of the letter being one of these extra-pertinacious, suspicious and rather thick-sculled, law-threatening individuals with whom we postmasters are more or less afflicted. You will naturally suggest that the immediate opening of the envelopes, and examination of their contents, would have obviated all trouble. I grant it, and such is now the course pursued by me—my order is never to take for granted the contents of an envelope. But what a commentary on the character of our postmasters this is—how utterly useless becomes the system of indorsed envelopes, or those of a peculiar color! Before I close, I must also protest against the abuse of the money-order postmark. Designed for a special purpose, its indiscriminate use has rendered it of no certainty for that purpose. I know the MAIL is not given to politics, nor am I; but in virtue of the promises of reform and retrenchment put forth by the incoming administration, and without detracting in the least from the high encomiums merited by our present efficient and active Postmaster-General, I do sincerely hope that among the reforms that will be made, will be that of holding postmasters to a strict conformity to the instructions and regulations of the Department for the efficiency of the postal service, and that there will be soon and forever a divorce of "Politics and the Post Office," a vinculo matrimonii.

Nuf ced—excuse the vulgarism.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, MARCH, 1869.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when due, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 102, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

Official Recommendation.

The Postmaster-General has signified his approval of the UNITED STATES MAIL, and his desire that it should be in the hands of all connected with the postal service, in the following official recommendation:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 7th, 1867.

The Postmaster-General recommends that all Postmasters and others connected with the Postal service subscribe for the "UNITED STATES MAIL AND POST OFFICE ASSISTANT," a monthly journal, published in the City of New York by a Special Agent of the Department, and devoted to the diffusion of information in regard to Post Office matters, the publication of the Postal Laws, Official Regulations and Orders of the Department, Lists of newly established and discontinued Post Offices, Rates of Foreign and Domestic Postage, etc., etc.

The Rates of Postage to Foreign Countries are liable to constant changes, which, as they occur, are published in the Table of Foreign Postages in the "UNITED STATES MAIL" [see Sec. 259 P. O. Regulations of 1866], and it is therefore desirable that all Postmasters, in order that they may at all times be prepared to charge the proper rates on mail matter to and from Foreign Countries, as well as to keep themselves informed of all current changes in Postal Laws and Regulations.

ALEX. W. RANDALL,
Postmaster-General.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
Washington, March 1, 1869.

SIR—I have to request that you will please cause the following notice to be inserted in the next issue of the U. S. MAIL. Very respectfully, etc.,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent.

J. GAYLER, ESQ., Editor U. S. Mail.

DISCONTINUANCE OF MAILS FOR THE AUSTRALIAN COLONIES AND NEW ZEALAND, VIA PANAMA.

Notice having been given by the British Post Department, of the withdrawal of the steamers of the Panama, New Zealand and Australian Royal Mail Company, from the mail service between Panama and New Zealand, no mails will in future be made up and forwarded from the United States to New Zealand or Australian Colonies, via Panama.

The New Postmaster-General.

On the 5th inst. President GRANT sent to the Senate the name of Hon. JOHN A. J. CRESWELL, of Maryland, nominating him for the office of Postmaster-General. The nomination was immediately confirmed.

Mr. Creswell was born at Port Deposit, Maryland, in 1828, graduated at Dickinson College, Pa., in 1843, and was admitted to the Maryland bar in 1850. In 1861 and '62 he was a member of the House of Delegates, and during a part of the time Adjutant-General, of that State, and since that time has been prominent in public affairs. Being elected to Congress in 1862, he was soon known as a talented and eloquent representative. In 1865 he was elected to the Senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. T. H. Hicks, serving during the unexpired term. He was during the war a firm and consistent Unionist, and has been conspicuously identified with the Republican party. He is an able lawyer, a gentleman of fine personal presence, and of high culture and literary tastes; and from his past successful career it is safe to predict that he will make a most acceptable Postmaster-General.

The Retiring Postmaster-General.

On the 4th inst., Hon. ALEXANDER W. RANDALL, who had, since August, 1866, filled the office of Postmaster-General, resigned that position. We cannot allow the occasion to pass without bearing our testimony—which we sincerely believe would be corroborated by that of all who have been brought into official relations with him—to the efficient and energetic manner in which he has performed the duties of the office he has resigned. The advantage given by his experience as First Assistant Postmaster-General was amply improved by him when called to the head of the Department, and the eminently practical turn of his mind, his power of quick perception and business-like readiness at comprehension of details, were soon made manifest in his official acts. He entered upon his duties at a period of great political excitement, and when those duties were rendered exceptionally onerous through the necessity for the entire reconstruction of the postal service throughout a large portion of the country—a task involving unusual tact and energy, and which was performed with a promptitude and energy altogether creditable. During his administration of postal affairs, the service has been steadily progressing in efficiency. The present improved system of registration was put in operation by his direction; the conventions which he concluded with the post departments of Great Britain, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland have been most advantageous; and various other reforms have been inaugurated. The recommendations to Congress, embodied in his annual reports, have been practical, sensible, and indicative of a thorough comprehension of the wants of the service.

All who know Gov. Randall, personally, know him as a genial, upright and courteous gentleman, and as one who could not be bribed or forced into the commission of an unjust or dishonorable act. We most cordially join in the good wishes which, we feel sure, are entertained toward him by all with whom he has been associated.

Interesting to Route Agents.

One day in the early part of last month, a workman employed in a mill at Brattleboro', Vermont, found on the ice beneath the railroad bridge at that place sixteen letters, all of which bore the Bellows Falls' postmark and date of that day, and all of which had been opened—each of them as had contained money being rifled. They were addressed to New York and various other places south of Springfield, Mass. The mail of which they should have formed a part had passed over the bridge a few hours before in a mail car in charge of a route agent. The finder of the letters took them to S. M. Waite, Esq., Cashier of the First National Bank of Brattleboro', and asked advice. Mr. Waite counselled silence, and, instead of calling a town meeting to consider the matter, quietly telegraphed to the Post Office Department a suggestion that a special agent should be despatched to Brattleboro' to investigate the case. In accordance with this suggestion Special Agent A. M. Hobbs, of Washington, arrived there the next day, and soon succeeded in ascertaining that there was no probability that the route agent who was in charge of the mail at which the letters had been abstracted was directly responsible for the theft. Pursuing his inquiries, he before long obtained sufficient presumptive evidence of the guilt of another person, and laid a plan for his detection, which proved so far successful that within three days one Jared M. Davis, a book peddler on the cars, was arrested almost in the act—twenty-one letters being found on his person—and confessed at once to having been for over two years in the habit of visiting mail cars on the trains on which he traveled, and purloining letters while unobserved by the obliging route agents who had allowed him the privilege of entrance. He was given into the custody of the United States Marshal at Concord, N. H., where he is now imprisoned, awaiting trial.

"It sometimes seemed to me," said the culprit in the course of his confession, "that temptation was purposely thrust upon me." And such a supposition was perhaps not unnatural, knowing, as he did, that each time he was allowed an opportunity for theft the route agent wilfully violated the plain and repeated orders of the Department in permitting his entrance to the mail room. This was of course no excuse for his crimes, for which he will probably pay the heavy penalty; but as his weary hours of imprisonment go by—endured as best they may be by him and his innocent wife—we think it not unlikely that some exceedingly uncomfortable reflections may arise in the minds of those through whose culpable disregard of duty his evil propensities were given an opportunity for exercise.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Our correspondence for this month has been large. Some of the questions propounded to us have involved quite nice points of law; others, of interpretation of some of the regulations; and others again, have involved points about which there should be no question, and could be none if postmasters would but study the regulations thoroughly and understandingly, and read the MAIL regularly. We never demur to making a reply to a query if it comes within the former two classes, but sometimes, when, as at present, our correspondence is so large, we do wince a little when we receive an inquiry to which an answer may be found in some late issue of the MAIL. Under these circumstances, we will be excused for a little plain talk, to wit: Postmasters,—make it a practice to read the MAIL thoroughly on its receipt—each number contains more or less valuable information; after it has been read, place it on file, and keep your file up to a standard of six months papers, if not more. Then, when you are in doubt about a question, consult this file in all its various sources of information, and if you find no solution for your doubts, write to the Editor. Thus much: and now we take up a letter from Wisconsin, wherein inquiry is made if postmasters can compel publishers to attach printed labels to the outside wrappers of packages of papers. We reply, there is no compulsion in regard to addressing packages. But publishers should not expect packages not properly addressed to be delivered to the parties having a right to them, and the fault of their non-delivery is not chargeable to the post office. One of the very best securities for proper delivery, is a full and proper address. Many papers are lost to subscribers through the little printed labels, used by some publishers, dropping off, sometimes before the papers reach the mailing office.....A letter from Montana is next presented, wherein is a somewhat usual inquiry respecting letter balances, and we are asked to explain why our correspondent has been refused one, when, as he alleges, his salary is sixty-seven dollars a year. We have before stated that we have no means of judging of questions where the amount of salary of any one office is involved; for while salaries are adjusted according to a law of general application, the adjustment of each is according to the business done at the office to which it is assigned. Our correspondent hopes we "will keep stirring the matter up, regarding the franking privilege, until it is abolished altogether," and that we "will not cease to urge the matter of propayment of newspaper postage, as it would save more than half the trouble a P. M. has." We give these matters no additional stir by these extracts from his letter.....Our next letter is on the importance of inserting the name of the State on all post office bills, especially registered letter bills and receipts. Our correspondent, by way of illustration, cites the case of a return registered-letter receipt, open to the above objection, being sent from New York City to a town in New York State, thence to Pa., thence to N. J., thence to Ky., thence to Ill., thence to the office—being of a similar name—of our correspondent in the same State, who sent it to Ind., and presumes it will go thence to N. C., and thence—whither? and all this travel and trouble simply because some postmaster or clerk was too lazy or careless to write two or three letters of the alphabet.

Our publisher has handed us some letters bearing such high testimony to the MAIL, that we are tempted to publish them. One correspondent writes, "Inclosed please find $1.00 for the MAIL. I get but three dollars a quarter, but must have your paper." Another—"My salary is only $76.00 per year. The information I obtain from your paper is worth more than that sum." Another—"Hoping that Grant will remove all postmasters who do not take the U S. MAIL, I remain, etc."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Advertising Letters.—J. R. B., O——, Kan.—Since the 1st of October, 1866, no allowance has been made to other than first-class matter which the letters had been abstracted. Regarding [illegible] papers. At all other offices advertising must be by a manuscript list posted in a conspicuous place. This, however, does not preclude advertising in the papers, if it can be done without expense to the department.

Express Companies Carrying Letters.—J. D., T——, Col.—Express companies are allowed to carry letters, if inclosed in Government stamped envelopes, but whether they must deliver such letters into the hands of the parties addressed, or notify them to call for such letters, is not a question of postal law, and therefore does not come within our province to decide. A postmaster may receive such letters for delivery as drop letters, charging the mailing party drop-letter postage.

Delivery of Letters to Minors.—S. W. N., B——, Conn.—"When minor children are dependent upon their parents for support and maintenance, the parents should control their correspondence, but postmasters should exercise discretion in such cases, and be fully satisfied that such children are dependent upon the parents." See MAIL for July, 1867.

Delivery of Mails.—W. R., L——, O.—If your office is more than a quarter of a mile from the depot, apply to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General for permission to employ a mail messenger. See 471, Reg. 1866.

Clerks in Offices of the Fifth Class.—C. L. S., W—— C——, N. Y.—If the clerks you already have cannot attend, you should have others sworn in; procure the blank oaths, fill them up with the clerks' names, have them duly attested, and send them to the Appointment Office, Washington, D. C. Though the regulations do not limit the number of clerks, we cannot advise you to allow more than two in your office.

Mailable Matter.—T. H., W——, Va.—Section 222, laws of 1866, defines mailable matter; while section 245 provides for the forwarding at letter rates of all matter not enumerated as mailable matter, and to which no specific rates of postage are assigned, and which, nevertheless, shall be mailed, subject however to the restrictions under section 38 of regulations. Under this provision, gold-dust may very properly be mailed. Elsewhere you will find a decision on the subject of gold-dust conveyed by mail.

Increase of Salary.—J. N. G., T——, Pa.—To obtain an increase of salary, you must make to the First Assistant Postmaster-General, under oath, a special exhibit of the whole amount of stamps cancelled—that is the amount of postage prepaid by stamps originally mailed at your office during a period of not less than two quarters—also a statement of other items of postage on which commissions were estimated under the former system of commissions. Act of June 12, 1866, and Instructions.

Franking.—G. A. F., C——, Ky.—A storekeeper in a still-house has not the right to frank letters.....B. C. V—— C——, Mont.—Deputy Collectors may frank to Collectors, and Assistant Assessors to Assessors, but the privilege is confined to official business.

Invitations to Balls.—H. S., H——, N. Y.—Printed invitations to balls or parties, if deposited in a post office, should be treated as any other mail matter.

Private Communications to a Box-holder.—H. P., O—— P—— C——, Va.—As postmasters have not the franking privilege, except on official business to each other, it follows that their communications on private affairs must be charged with postage, whether the party addressed be a box-holder or not.

Box Rents.—C. L. S., W—— C——, N. J.—As an office of the fifth class, a postmaster would be allowed to fix the rent of boxes at a reasonable sum.....W. D., S—— V——, Pa.—1. Boxes are the private property of the postmaster, and on ceasing to be postmaster he may either remove or sell them. 2. The Auditor of the Treasury for the Post-Office Department furnishes postmasters with statements of their accounts.

Posting Letters.—H. W. B., V—— F——, N. Y.—There is no restriction in mailing letters at any particular post office; provided there is no evasion or infraction of the law respecting the carrying letters out of the mail, they may be posted at any office the party pleases, except when claimed by mail contractors or carriers.....W. A., M——, Mich.—A mail contractor, or mail carrier, should not carry letters past a post office to mail at another post office, but they should be deposited at the first office at which he arrives. Sec. 197 laws, and 469 reg., 1866.....C. B. R., D——, O.—Where a letter-box is provided, a postmaster is not obliged to receive letters at the delivery window.

Newsdealers' Packages.—J. Q. K., B——, Ind.—The postage on a newsdealer's package depends on the contents, whether transient papers, regular papers, periodicals, or books; we cannot therefore reply definitely to your question, but must leave you to judge for yourself, aided by chapter XX. of regulations of 1866.....B. S. C., P——, Ky.—The amount received during a quarter for newsdealers' packages, may be added, as an item, to the account of newspapers received.

Notice to Publishers.—G. G., F——, Pa., and J. A. W., B——, ——.—When a paper or magazine regularly sent through the mails has been refused, or not called for in one month, it is the duty of the postmaster to inform the publisher; if you inclose the notice for the publisher to the postmaster at the office where the publisher receives his mail matter, it may be mailed free. Sec. 392, reg. 1866.

Letters to a Distributing Post Office.—M. C. H., P——, S. C—Letters on which there is postage due, when sent to a D. P. O. for distribution, should not be prepaid, but if sent for delivery they should be. Sec. 92, reg. 1866.

Post Office Blanks.—B. J. F., T——, Conn.—1. If there is a space in Blank No. 8 for request envelopes, you should fill it up when ordering such envelopes. 2. There is no blank for registered package envelopes returned to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.....J. S. T., B——, Pa.—Blanks, according to their kind, are furnished by different Departments. The First Assistant Postmaster-General furnishes some forty-four kinds, including a list of them, send to him for this list, designating it by its number 39. Besides these he furnishes the blanks for Registration. The Superintendent of the Blank Agency, Washington, D. C., furnishes the blanks for the quarterly returns. The Contract Office, Inspection Divison, furnishes blank registers for the arrival and departure of the mails.

Registration.—C. H. H., O—— M——, Kan.—1. The section plainly directs that registered package envelopes are to be pinned on file for six months, at the expiration of which [time] they are to be returned to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. When, however, not more than two or three registered letters a week are received it is within not be necessary on returning such envelopes as had been on file the required time to be exact to a day. You might retain some a few days over the time so as to send a package, say once a week, without violating the spirit of the regulations. 2. A list of the accounts constituting the quarterly return may be found in Chapter XXVIII. of the Regulations, except certain changes noted in "Answers" in the MAIL for September last.....A. McC., A—— P——, Ill.—1. The Third Assistant Postmaster-General will furnish you with envelopes for registry business. 2. We have no means of knowing to what advance in your salary you are entitled.....D. P. R., M——, Tenn.—Postmasters cannot send registered letters to the Treasury Department free of registry fee.....J. D., I——, Wis.—Return registered letter receipts should be delivered to the persons who send the letters. Sec. 13, New Reg'a Reg.....G. A. D., Q——, N. Y.—1. Packages of letters for foreign countries should be addressed to the proper D. P. O., that is to the first distributing office through which they would pass. Sec. 22, Reg. 1866. See MAIL for last month respecting sections 7 and 18 of new regulations for registration.....J. B. W., A——, New York.—When you send a registered letter through a distributing office, direct both your registered package envelope, and the envelope containing the return bill to the postmaster of that office. Sec. 10.....J. T. F., F—— M——, Pa.—1. Section 2 of new regulations for registration directs that postmasters shall give receipts for registered packages, and section 3 that they shall keep a record of all such packages passing through their hands.....A. C., U—— M——, Pa.—In section 2 of new regulations for registration you will find a form for a receipt for registered package envelopes (not registered letters), and by section 6 you will find that such blank receipts can be procured of the First Assistant Postmaster-General. We are of the opinion that you, and many others of our correspondents, have not studied these regulations as faithfully and carefully as you should.

Postage.—B. A. B., B——, Pa.—1. The MAIL is subject to postage, the same as any other paper. 2. Regular newspapers cannot be forwarded from one office to another without additional postage. The way to avoid this additional postage is to take from the postmaster a receipt for the original postage, and have the address of the paper changed. The receipt will be evidence to the second postmaster that the postage has been paid.....A. C. H., W——, O.—The postage on small religious, temperance, etc., papers, is to be charged on each package. See section 202 of Regulations of 1866.....J. R., S——, Iowa.—Postmasters have no discretion in giving credit for postage. Credit is not allowed by the Department. If any of your friends wish for credit, and you desire to oblige them, make them debtors to you personally, either by advancing the money or charging yourself with the amount and reporting it as paid, according to section 154, Reg. 1866.....The term book-manuscripts in the law means manuscripts for books, and not letters or short stories for newspapers. Tatten and lace are chargable at letter postage.....S. P., W——, Conn.—1. Postage on the back numbers of a periodical may be collected at the regular rates for periodicals. 2. Blank notices to publishers are furnished by the First Assistant Postmaster-General.....L. S., O——, Wis.—Small religious papers directed individually to the subscribers should be charged with the regular quarterly postage on each.....B. S. S., P——, Ky.—It is packages of circulars to one person, who receives them to distribute, which we stated may be rated at two cents for four ounces. For instance, a merchant or dealer engages a printer in a neighboring city to print him several thousand circulars, and directs them to be sent to him by mail; they may be charged at two cents for four ounces; but when the merchant distributes these circulars to call attention to his business, they should be rated as circulars, viz., three for two cents.....R. W. S., M'C——, Pa.—Having collected postage for a full quarter and part of a quarter on a paper to be sent for a year, you should have collected at the beginning of the third quarter, the postage for that quarter and the part of the next quarter the paper would be received. If the subscriber should refuse to pay for more than the quarter, he would then have to pay at transient rates for the fractional part. As you have not done so, if the subscriber refuses to pay for the full quarter, you must either pay it yourself, or collect at transient rates.

Letter Addresses.

"As from the ark the dove first went
In search of something green,
So from the 'Hub' with like intent,
This letter may be seen,
Over hill and dale, through wood and vale,
To Manhattan Isle so fair,
Where in due time and without fail,
It will be delivered by carrier Blair,
To H. C. B. of the Seventh Ward,
Well known as a dead beat,
For his New York City's fashion's lord,
Boarding at — Pike street."

"P—— J——, No 733 24 Avenue, betwen 39270 St 3 New York." Diligence and genius discovered the letter belonged at 733 Second avenue, between 39th and 40th streets, New York.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no donbt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received frors Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austris and its States), the Netherlands, Belginm, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeshle with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either hy North Gerrsan Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arving in the United Statcs, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolntion of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages dne on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the rsails dispatched to this country frors Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamhurg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premiurs on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to bo accepted in lien of coin. The amount to he collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the formor regulatious remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only sre to be collected.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to he made on the delivery of newspapers, hook packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, hy the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, he collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circniars, pamphlets, periodicals, hooks or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or envcloped in covere open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures heing removed for examination.

No newspsper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of nowspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to he enforced with respect to hooks, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No hook-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there he any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication he printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whem the packet is sent shall not he regarded as a letter.

No hook-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any hook-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nsture of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot he received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine hook-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not he of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly he considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in hreadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot he sent hy mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not hear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numhers, and the prices of the articles.

There must he no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to he furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases he given, not on loose pieces of paper, hut on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the hags containing them.

Patterns or samples must he sent in covers open at the ends, so as to he of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot he sent in open covers, may he enclosed in hags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may he readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets contalning liquids, poisons, explosive chomicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

PROSPECTUS OF Frank Leslie's Publications.

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

The aim of this paper is to furnish a pictorial history of current events. Between thirty and forty illustrations appear in every weekly number, including eight engravings of the pictorial spirit of the foreign press, events of national or local interest, railroad or steamhost accidents, amusing and thrilling incidents, comics, etc. The literary matter comprises, heading well-written editorials on the leading questions of the day, and descriptions of the engravings, a serial story of thrilling interest, entertaining narratives and tales, humorous anecdotes, choice poems, etc.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Chimney Corner.

A purely literary pictorial. Excluding events of the day, its aim, as its title indicates, is to furnish amusement for the leisure hour. Its contents consist principally of original stories by able writers—including a serial, accounts of remarkable adventures, biographical sketches of self made men—with portraits, descriptions of manners and onstoms in remote countries, short poems, fairy stories, enigmas, conundrums, charades, etc. Illustrated with large and spirited engravings, of which there are from fifteen in twenty in each weekly number.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

The New World.

This handsome, large eight-paged weekly is addressed to all classes—to the young and the old, the lettered and the comparatively unlearned, the rich and the poor. Its columns are filled with serial and other literary matter, prepared by writers whose names are familiar to readers of romance, travel and discovery; students of science and admirers of poesy; and its pages are liherally enriched by the pencils of leading artists, to whom is intrusted the task of illustrating its stories; and papers upon topics of graver moment. THE NEW WORLD is particularly favored in the list of its contributors, two hundred of whom have engaged to write for it. Among these may be mentioned, Hon. E. George Squier, ex-Minister to Peru, whose researches in the wilds of Central and South America have greatly added to our knowledge of the ethnology and p.st civilization of the Western Hemisphere; Prof. A. C. Joy, lecturer on applied chemisty at Columbia College, New York; A. K. Gardner, M. D., Professor of Diseases of Women, an author whose work on Pathology have become text-books with the faculty; Professors Emery and Allen; William Ross Wallace, Edward Fawcett, Barry Gray, Mary J. Austin, Virginia F. Townsend, Captain Mayne Reid, Delta Maitland, M. A. Denison, and Nellie Ames.

Subscription price, $3 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustrirte Zeitung.

A pictorial newspaper in the German language, containing a large number of engravings illustrating events of the day, exciting and amusing incidents, adventures and manners and customs in all parts of the world, with a large amount of literary matter, including numerous interesting tales. This paper combines for the German reader the attractions presented in the Illustrated Newspaper and the Chimney Corner.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustracion Americana.

An illustrated paper in the Spanish language, with all the attractive features, pictorial and literary, that have made Frank Leslie's other publications so popular.

Subscription price in the United States, $12 ourreney.

Frank Leslie's Boys and Girls' Weekly.

One of the cheapest pictorial papers ever published. Intended for the amusement of youth of both sexes. The illustrations and literary matter are such as especially recommend themselves to the young. It contains, besides a continued story and well-written tales, accounts of wonderful adventure, descriptions and illustrations of foreign manners and customs, anecdotes and pictures of animals, familiar and funny fables, parlor magic, etc. From twenty to twenty-five engravings appear in each weekly issue.

Subscription price, $2 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine.

The leading fashion periodical in America. Each monthly number contains a large colored plate of the latest fashions, from designs sent from Paris as soon as invented, which are thus published simultaneously in New York and Paris; also a four-page uncolored fashion plate, embracing the various leading styles. These are accompanied with full descriptions and explanations, with numerous other illustrations. Every number contains an original letter from Paris, describing the very latest modes, by a lady whose position gives her access to fashionable society. The literary portion of this magazine comprises a continued story, numerous interesting tales, poetry, anecdotes, etc. The whole profusely illustrated with fine engravings.

Subscription price, $3 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Budget of Fun.

This is a comic pictorial newspaper, published on the first of every month. Its remarkable success, and the steady increase in its circulation, attest its adaptation to the popular taste. It looks at things of the day from a comic point of view, and its illustrations—of which there are from forty to fifty in every issue—are directed, without respect to station or person—against the follies and vices of the times. It constitutes an almost inexhaustible source of amusement and fun.

Subscription price, $1 50 per year.

The Young Lady's Budget.

Fashion, Fiction and Entertaining Knowledge. A monthly publication, of which the features are such as especially commend it to the favor of young ladies. A large proportion of its pages are devoted to Fashions, in which the newest styles are presented, fully illustrated with engravings and a beautiful colored Fashion Plate. A great variety of engraved patterns for netting, crochet-work, needle-work, embroidery, etc., are also given. In each number appears a page or more of new and popular music, selected especially with a view to the tastes of young ladies.

Subscription price $2 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Pleasant Hours.

The cheapest periodical in the United States, containing eighty large octavo pages of letter-press, with from twenty to twenty-five illustrations, besides two full-page engravings, on tinted paper, in each number. A continued story, and well-written tales and stories of adventure, with humorous anecdotes, descriptions of manners and customs, amusements for young people, etc., constitute the reading matter.

Terms of subscription, $1 50 per year.

Specimen copies and special terms to Postmasters forwarded on application.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. IX., NO. 7. NEW YORK, APRIL, 1869. WHOLE NO. 103.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, March, 1869.

In my last letter I told yon I had received and accepted an invitation from Dominie Tenderwun, at Mnggywasoo, to attend a lecture on "Modern Curvatures." And "early candle-light" of the appointed evening saw me walking np the middle aisle of the Primitive Church, where the Rev. Alcihisides was to officiate—closely followed hy one of my distant female relatives, and a yoang lady friend of hers who had accepted my protection for this special occasioo—her name was Thwoop—Barhara Thwoop—and a very likely, nice and intolligent young lady she was too, only she wore her hair cnt short. On our way churchward she modestly apprised me of the fact that she was struggling for fame in the literary world—that she wrote for several of the leading weeklies of the Atlantic cities, unio-vited and unpaid—hnt from some cause or other hut two of her pieces had been pnblished—and these, in her opinion, were far from being her best efforts; that she was a regular contributor to their village paper, the "Mugg ywasco Microscope," and that she had oow on hand, just finished and ready to he sent off, two poems, which she hoped I would look at and criticise for her. One was called "Blasted Hopes; or, The Stone Quarrier's Revenge." And the other, "Donble Sight, from a Fusil-Oil Standpoint." I acknowledged the compliment she paid me in snbmitting to my judgmeot her no donht sensational compositions and promised to give them a patient and careful reading. She was ahont to give me some elegant extracts from "Blasted Hopes," hnt the church door opened a little too soon, and I had to forego for the time being, the intellectual treat, and entering the sanctum, we marched single file np to the front pew, into which we were politely bowed hy the old sexton, Uncle Silvermill—as everyhody familiarly called him. The room was dim and gloomy and rather cold, and conghing and sncozing and blowing of noses were indulged in very freely by the aodience until the arrival of the revereud lecturer—who at ooce stepped into the pulpit—then one grand fire of nose-blowing went along the entire line, and all was quiet. The speaker soon reso, and announcing his lecture to he npon "Modern Curvatures," went on in a most amusing and original way to discnss the subject. Before commoncing, however, he desired to say, that the lecture was intended for pnblication for his own henefit, and he hoped no one present wonld abuse his confidence by giving to the pnblic press an abstract, or even an idea of his remarks on this occasion. I feel, therefore, in honor bound to silence—much as I would like to give yon a tonch of his quality. He is a deadly foe to the "Grecian Bend," and did not use honey-tongued words in ridiculing and condemning it; and if all the members of his church do not walk upright hereafter, it will not be on account of mechanical appliances for shortening the distance between knees and noses.

This entertainment pleased me much better than the Durdledot demonstration of the night before, and materially changed my opinion of Muggywasoo intelligence. It was still early when we left the church, and at Miss Thwoop's invitation we accompanied her home, and spent a pleasant hour there. I had the honor of an introdnction to her father, an elderly gentleman of gigantic proportions and wonderful volubility. He regards himself as one of the greatest philanthropists of the age—and probably is—and his whole heart and mind are in constant action in endeavoring to perfect some plan for the protection of the human family from disease and early death,' superinduced hy the nse of adulterated food and beverages. Careful observation and accurate calculation have familiarized him with the hanefnl and beneficial ingredients of everything nsed in the way of prepared nourishment, and he was equipping himself to go forth and give the world the honefit of his extraordinary researches. I incidentally mentinned the pnblication of a series of articles on this subject, pnblished in a New York paper, and he determined to defer the commencement of his labor of love for mankind until I was able to procure and forward him copies of the paper containing these expressions. The old gentleman assured me "that he ate nothing when absent from home hnt eggs and potatoes in the shell," and advised me if I desired to avoid suffering and live long to adopt bis hill of fare, with the addition of oysters in the shell if I opened them myself. He so entirely engrossed my time that I was nnable to look over Miss Barhara's manuscripts; but before I left I gave her the assurance that I would do so on the morrow; and according to promise devoted three hours of the oext day to her service, and gave her frankly the benefit of whatever critical skill I was possessed of, and for which she was nnqnalifiedly grateful. If speoo permitted I wonld like to give you some specimens of her style and power, but it will not. I will give yon only the closing stanza of "Blasted Hopes" to show you what hecomes of the ruffian character of the piece, who boasted a lnxnrant orimson crop which had given him throughont the country-side the sohriqnet of "Redtow the Ruffian." He had run through a career of crime unparalleled almost in the history of villiany, and was about descending into the quarry to steal a ham which the hero of the piece had purchased that afternooo with his hottom dollar, when he was discovered and dispersed, and virtne was triumphsot.

"Down o'er the shelving ledge he slid,
And as he reached the solid rock
'Neath which a murderous charge was hid,
The train was touch'd—ensued a shock
Which trembled the earth and shook the sky
And Redtow was sped to his destiny."

Having exhausted the first half of the day thus pleasantly, and hidding Barbara adieu, and enjoyed a good domestic dinner, I lighted my meerschanm and leisurely sauntered down toward the post office, at the door of which I was met hy Majordomo Durdledot, who politely invited me inside, and, offering me the only chair in the place, seated himself on an inverted wooden water-pail, and at once commenced to expatiate on the pnblio affairs of the nation in general, and the private affairs of Mnggywasco in particular. He appeared to forget entirely that I was a stranger, and seemed to he anxious to impart to me the private history of every inhahitant of the village. While he was talking, I took a careful survey of his premises, and it struck me very forcibly that the work of reconstruction was very much needed. His office is kept in the rear end of a largo room, which at some time or other was nsed as a store, and occupies about one-fourth the space—the boxes of all sorts, in detached sections of all sizes, lookod as if they had heen contributed piecemeal, without regard to size or similarity, by scores of small offices throughoot the country as charity offerings. Apparently hnt few of the boxss wero nsed for post office business—the most of them being stuffed with old papers, rags, broken glass, and other unsightly matters, which even a junk shopmao would have thrown into the street. The floor, inside and ontside the office, was strewn with dirty paper, pioces of strings, old shoes, matilated india-rnbhors, portions of old garments, old quarterly returns and old post-bills, clots of mud, and tnfts of hair from the hack of a hideous-looking mangy dog, which sat, with yawning month in one corner, vigoronsly sawing the air in the attempt to reach an itchy spot hetween his shoulders, while his blear and bloodshot eyes seemed about to fly from their sockets with the strain upon them. The windows were so hlack and hegrimed with dirt and dust and cohwobs, that it required the light of two lamps at four o'clock, P. M., to enable the postmaster, or any one olse, to read the superscriptions on letters; and the walls and ceiling looked worse than the windows. Mail-hags were carelessly lying ahont oo the dirty floor, and foot-marks and hig smears showed plainly that they were used instead of hrushes and scrapers in cleaning his boots and shoes—an array of filthy empty ink-botiles, and mucilage pots adorned the top of his desk, while a bottomless coal-scnttle, a broken spittoon filled with quids and cigar stumps, ornamented the floor beneath it. In one corner stood a washstand, hespattered all over with stains, on top of which was what was once a pitcher, hut which had heen hroken off in the middle, and probably now served the donble purpose of ewer and hasin, and hanging from a rusty nail over it was a towel that looked as if it might have heen used for a gun-swah at the hattle of New Orleans, and had never heen washed since. The lamp-chimneys were smoked black, and the smell from the flames was almost suffocating. In another corner were his boxes for distribution matter—they were five in number, and had they not heen quite so deep one would have heen justified in supposing they had heen transformed from some neighboring pig-pen where they had seeo service in the slops and swill way. A rickety table stood in the middle of the office, and was the business centre of the establishment; and an old clock, with a sadly damaged dial and no hands, and dumb as a stone, a pair of antiqnated skates, a white and hlne hasehall cap, three or four woolen comforters in the last stages of decay, a set of dilapidated harness, two or three cheap whips and a wolf-skin overcoat, with the "nap" almost entirely worn off, made up a gallery of wall pictnres entirely in keeping with the other goods and chattels. All this I saw while he was gossiping away in the sickly twilight of his office, hut I paid little attontion to what he was talking ahont. In the course of his remarks he said something ahont the confinement incident to his position; and I said to him, "I should think yon would olean np your place a little, and make it look hrighter and smell sweeter if yon have to stay here mnch." "O, as to that, what's the odds? It does well enongh, and if I go to any expense to make things look tidy it will come ont of my own pocket, and I don't see it; this is good enongh, and I get it cheap, and that dog (pointing to the canine sore-hack) sleeps here, and is good on the watch, so that there is no danger of night attacks." Of course, I did not dispute the strong points he made, hnt kept on looking roand and said nothing. Fangh! what an nnsightly, foul and uninviting place it was. I have seen other post offices that ought to have shamed their occupants, hnt this one was past praying for. While I was there the Eastern mail arrived, and I had an opportunity of seeing the practical working of the Durdledot institution. The mail carrier was followed into the office hy a half dozen roughly-garbed men, one of whom unlocked the bag and emptied the contents on the table, and then the rest of them commenced to paw over the matter, while the presiding genius of the place was engaged in conversatioo with some outside party. I rose to go ont when the mail came in, but he restraioed me. I asked if it was not illegal to allow people not connected with the office to remain there while opening the mails; he said he didn't know, and if it was it made no difference. I asked him if the men working at the table belonged to the establishment; he said they did not, "hnt they always helped him when he was home, and when he was away they ran the machine just as well as if he was on hand." While I was sitting there, several persons made complaints to the postmaster of the loss or long delay of letters, and from what I saw I should think that the safe delivery of letters would he the exception and the opposite the rule. O, how I did long for authority to speak my mind to this Mnggywasco postal official, and when this epistle meets his eye, as I know it will, I hope he will remember the elderly gentleman who wore a hroad-brimmed hat, tortoise-shell spectacles and wide garments, who visited his club with so much pleasure, heard his address with so much curiosity, listened to his gossip with such attentive ears, and left his office and his presence with ineffahle disgust for both. As I said before, I have seen other offices nearly as had as this one, and there may he some quite as had, and if a reform cannot he brought about with old officials, I think the sooner new ones take their places the better it will be for the service.

MONS. TONSON.

COMMUNICATIONS.

G——, PA., Feb. 1869.

Editor U. S. Mail—The official organ of the North German Post Department, in a recent issue, says: "Nowhere in the whole civilized world is post-office business transacted in a more fickle and regardless manner than in the United States. Letters and other mail matter which, with a little sagacity on the part of the American postmasters, could have been delivered to their addresses, are returned to Europe; while in Germany, France and England, almost every article that is received from America is forwarded safely to its address."

Those "epitheta ornantia" are, in a majority of cases, well deserved hy the postmasters concerned; and of this I could, from my own experiance, furnish a nnmber of proofs. To rescne the service for the future, at least to some extent, from such reproaches, I should advise the examination of every applicant previously to conferring to him a post office. At first sight, this might seem to increase the husiness of the Department to a great extent, hnt such need not be the case. Let the Department draw np a number of questions covering the principal duties of the service, and have them in print. Then require every candidate to answer these questions in his own handwriting, and to swear that he has done it with no other help than that of the Postal Laws and Regulations. I am not at all afraid of perjuries, because the perjured would have in the person helping him to answer those questions a particeps criminis, and. must he in continual fear of making a hlunder manifesting his ignorance of the Laws and Regulations, etc. At any rate, the service would improve hy such a fear. If there should be more thao one applicant, the office should, "without regard to race, color or politics," he conferred on him who is best qnalified.

By these few lines I don't consider the matter exhausted. My aim is to hring it to a fair discussion—at any rate, to hear the opinion of "Monsieur Tonson," if he thinks it worth while to express it.

Yours, etc., C. H——, P. M.

We think the organ of the North German Post Department is hardly qualified to speak as to the promptness of delivery of mail matter in England. But, admitting its entire statement to he true, it seems to us that a good deal can he said in explanation of the facts. In the first place, the correspondence (not strictly mercantile) between the United States and Germany and France is mainly between natives of the latter countries, who naturally superscribe their letters in their own language; and it is, therefore, no great wonder that American postmasters often fail to deliver a letter or packet addressed in a language of which they know nothing, or in such "English" as a German or Frenchman may attempt to write. Again, it would he hardly reasonable to expect the same promptitnde of delivery in a country like this, with its constantly increasing and changing popnlatioo, as in the conatries of the Old World, where families have inhahited the same town, and even the same house, for centuries, and where, moreover, the office of postmaster, in many cases, passes from father to son, almost as an inherited right.

POST OFFICE, N. H., CONN., March, 1869.

Editor U. S. Mail—Cannot something be done hy order from the Department, suggestion in the MAIL or otherwise, to pnt a stop to the prevalent careless way of making np D. P. O. packages? For example, a package of fifty letters comes to hand, the "header" on the one side being addressed to Boston, Mass. (?), on the other to Pensacola, Florida. Between these two "headers" are letters for all parts of the United States, and perhaps for other parts of the world. Assorted according to the address first seen, the package starts in a throngh pouch for Boston, there it is correctly reassorted, and its letters sent to their proper destination; or it may have the same experience in taking a southward start.

Our practice is either to wrap and address to D. O. P., or to tie np, facing both addresses, and to tie npon the ontside of the package a slip of paper addressed to D. P. O. The slip is 1-32 of a sheet of wrapping paper, and a supply is kept constantly on hand on the mailing-table, ready for use.

The practice which obtains npon the postal cars and in some offices of marking "—— D. O. P." on the back of letters used as headers, I regard as slovenly, nnjnst to the writers of letters and the public, who do not understand these marks and are often vexed hy them, and unjustifiable when so easy and harmless a place for marking as these slips furnish is so easily attainable.

If officially you can correct this malpractice at the Department, or editorially can do the same throngh the MAIL, I think that yon will have done good service toward preventing the missending and delaying of correspondence.

Yours, very truly, F. E. H.

PUTTING A POWDER-FLASK INTO A LETTER-BOX. — Some evilly-disposed person lately threw a flask of powder into the letter-box attached to the Trinity Chambers, in Dnblin, and thereby occasioned injuries to the porter of a serious nature. It appeared that when the porter opened the letter-box he found a small flask in it which he pnt in his pocket. Not having time to examine the contents of the flask, he placed it in his coat, and in about an hour afterward, proceeded to gratify his curiosity. When he drew the "stopper" from the flask, the powder exploded and seriously injured his face and throat. It is hoped that his injuries, though of a very painful nature, will he sufficiently healed to admit of his discharge from hospital in a few days. No trace can be found of the person who committed such a dastardly outrage, hut from the fact that the powder was placed in the flask in such a way as that it could not be opened without exploding, it is inferred that the flask was maliciously placed in the box.

Not long since a box of toy percussion caps was deposited in the post office at New York. When the pouch containing it was thrown into the mail car, the caps exploded and caused considerable damage to the other contents of the pouch. A heavy fine should be made the penalty of such violation of the law forhidding the deposit of explosive substances in the mails.

We enlarge npon the complaint of our correspondant in our last nnmber, respecting the promiscnous use of postal envelopes; a practice which cannot be too severely condemned. But while we condemn, we acknowledge a shadow of excuse for the Postmasters of smaller offices, for they evidently are not aware of the magnitude of the operations of the large offices, and cannot realize hy their own experince, the fact that the instantaneous knowledge of the character of the contents of an official envelope before opening, sometimes saves hours and even days in the practical nse of snch contents. Take the New York Office as an example, The Money Order Department is in the second story of the building, the entrance on Cedar street. The Newspaper Department is on the first story, the entrance on Liberty street. These streets are more than 250 feet from each other. The two departments are under the charge of respective superintendents, whose duties are as different as though in different huildings, and between whose departments it takes as much time and trouble to hold communication. If, therefore, for instance, a money order advice is enclosed in a green envelope endorsed "Notice to Pnblisher" it is sent to the Newspaper Department. This delay causes the delay of a day, at least, in the record of the advice, and if the corresponding ordor is presented on the same day, payment must he refused, because no advice has been received. As it is the wish of the Department to popularize the money order system, postmasters should he especially careful to use the money order envelopes, and if they have none, to use common envelopes and endorse them M. O. B. Never under any circumstances nse envelopes indiscriminately. "The right word in the right place" and the right envelope to the right use.

A gentleman sent a lad with a letter to the post office, and money to pay the postage. Having returned with the money, he said: "Guess I've done the thing slick. I seen a good many folks puttin' letters in the post-office through a hole, and so I watched my chance, and got mine in for nothing."

How true this is we will not take it upon ourselves to say, hnt we do know that it is not an uncommon occurrence for mail matter to he posted, as though the persons who do it think they are "doing the thing slick." A few days since we were called upon hy a young Frenchman, for information how he should obtain redress for an overcharge of thirty-six cents on a letter from France, bearing a postage stamp sufficient to prepay one rate. We told him there was no mistake, as the letter weighed over a quarter of an ounce. He insisted it did not. On trial, however, it was found to he slightly over that weight. Now, whether the writer thonght he was "doing the thing slick," and that the French Post Department would not discover the over-weight, or whether he was ignorant of the true weight, we cannot tell; hut most probahly it was the former. The letter reached New York, marked "insufficiently prepaid," and was charged with thirty-six cents postage. The receiver tore off the part of the envelope hearing the mark of insnfficient prepaymeot, and when we asked to be shown it, said he had thrown it away. He, too, evidently thought he was "doing the thing slick," hnt made a mistake, as we informed him that, under the circumstances, there was no redress, as the charge was proper. We give this instance as one of many. Writing on newspapers, or circulars, enclosing circnlars or hand-bills as supplements in regular newspapers, depositing letters on which there is any donht of snfficiency of postage, etc., are all examples of "doing the thing slick," which may not produce inconvenience and delay and disappointment, hut which, it is far more probable, will. Postal rates are fixed, postal laws are imperative, and postmasters have no discretion in obeying them.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

AND

Post Office Assistant.

Established 1860. . . By J. HOLBROOK.
J. GAYLER, ... Editor.

NEW YORK, APRIL, 1869.

TERMS—One Dollar per year, payable in advance. All communications to be addressed to the Publisher of the UNITED STATES MAIL, New York.

Subscriptions received at any Post office in the United States.

☞ Letters containing remittances for subscriptions or in reference to the business department of this paper should be addressed to "Publisher U. S. Mail," and not to the Editor.

Special Notice to Subscribers.

Each wrapper inclosing a copy of THE MAIL bears a number in addition to the address. This number signifies that the term for which the subscription is paid expires with the corresponding whole number of the paper. Subscribers will please take this as a notification to forward the subscription for another year, when one, if they intend to renew. Those whom this number reaches, marked 103, or any lower number, will please remit at once.

The New Franking Law.

AN ACT TO RESTRICT AND REGULATE THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it shall not be lawful for any officer of the Government, Member of Congress, or other person entitled by law to the franking privilege, to exercise said privilege otherwise than by his or her written autograph signature upon the matter franked; and all letters or other mail matter, not thus franked by the written signature of a person entitled by law to exercise said privilege, shall be charged with the rates of postage which are now, or may be hereafter, established by law.
Approved March 1, 1869.

Postmaster-General Cresswell has issued the following instructions to Postmasters in regard to their duties under the above law:

The attention of postmasters is specially called to the provisions of the foregoing act "to restrict and regulate the franking privilege."

All fac-simile franks, in future, must be disregarded. The written autograph signature of the person entitled to exercise the privilege is required, otherwise the mail matter thus offered must be prepaid by postage stamps as required by said act.

All letters and packages not franked by the written signature, or prepaid by postage stamps, must be held for postage.

Postmasters are required to preserve this notice for future reference.

JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D. C., March 13, 1869.

It will be observed that the above does not in any way curtail the franking privilege, but merely prohibits the use of fac-simile franks.

All mail matter addressed to Members of Congress, to the heads of the Executive Departments in Washington, and to the heads of Bureaus, etc., should be mailed free of postage, as heretofore required by sections 265a, 266 and 267 of the Postal Laws, edition of 1866.

The written frank of Postmasters, on letters (on official business) to other Postmasters, is to be still recognized. This of course applies to letters containing return receipts and notices to publishers.

Note from the Publisher.

Many of our subscribers, after remitting to us the money for renewal, receive their papers with the expiring numbers still on the wrappers, by which they are led to believe either that their remittance has failed to reach us, or we have failed to give them credit, and hence address us on the subject. This puts us to considerable and needless trouble, as searches have to be made in two books, and we very rarely find an error. The cause of the subscriber's number not being changed is this. The wrappers for the MAIL are written during a period covering from one to four weeks before they are used, therefore it often happens that a wrapper is written before a remittance is received. We would advise our subscribers to wait till the receipt of the second paper after remitting; and if, on the wrapper of that, the subscription number is not changed, then write to us. Others of our subscribers request us to sign their receipts and return them by first mail, as this would be quite a heavy tax on us in postage, and the law allows the inclosing of such receipts in the papers without additional postage; those who want their receipts returned immediately should accompany their requests postage stamps.

Registration Regulations.

Sections 7 and 18 of New Regulations for Registration seem to some of our correspondents to conflict. Such is not the case, however, as they refer to two different officers, viz, the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, and the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department. Perhaps our explanation will be the clearer, when we state that the latter officer is really not an officer of the Post Office Department, but of the Treasury Department, having charge of Postmasters' monetary accounts. To him are to be sent the quarterly returns in order that he may keep these accounts, hence the quarterly returns are comprised only of papers relating to money affairs and vouchers therefor; and by section 274, Regulations of 1866, it will be seen that "no moneys are paid directly into the Department, neither are any paid out directly by it." Transfers of money are made by drafts, orders and the like to postmasters, contractors and others. The Auditor keeps the account of these, debiting or crediting, as the case may be, the parties interested, so that each account shows the monetary relation of the party to the Department. This is the officer referred to by section 18. (See Sec. 308, Reg. 1866.) But besides the money accounts, various reports or accounts are to be made to different officers of the Department, showing the amount or nature of the various transactions of a post office; and section 7 refers to one of these, that is to a report of registry business, to be made to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. In studying the regulations postmasters should endeavor to be careful not to confound the various reports they are required to make, nor the officers to whom they are to be made.

Prepayment of Newspaper Postage.

We are this month (as usual) in receipt of a number of letters from postmasters—generally at the smaller offices—urging upon us the advocacy of a law compelling the prepayment at the mailing office of postage on newspapers, etc., addressed to subscribers. We have already published several similar letters, some suggesting plans whereby such a law could be carried out without inconvenience to the Department or to publishers. We have no doubt that one of the principal obstacles to the success of the Post Office Department as a self-sustaining institution, is the heavy loss which its revenues annually sustain through failure to collect the postage legally due on newspapers sent from the publishers to bona fide, or "so-called," subscribers. This failure is not necessarily, or even principally, due to any intentional dishonesty on the part of either publishers or postmasters, but results from an inherent defect in the system itself, by which newspapers, etc., sent by mail to subscribers are exempted from the rule of prepayment which applies to all other domestic matters. The collection of this postage is thus thrown upon the postmaster at the office of delivery, who in too many cases finds it a task too heavy for him. The postal laws require him to collect all postage before delivery, on all matter on which postage may be due; but a strict adherence to this rule is so apt to lead to what are considered personal affronts by his neighbors, that the temptation to avoid such "unpleasantnesses" by relaxing it in favor now of one and now of another, is too strong in most cases to be overcome. The barrier once down is difficult to replace. Confusion and dispute as to who has paid and who has not increase with every quarter, and frequently the final result is that the harassed official settles down into the easy custom of taking the postage from those who offer it and not bothering himself in regard to those who don't. The fact is, that although in theory the collection of subscribers' postage is a very simple matter, it is to postmasters and to the Department a "burden grievous to be borne," and the sooner a law is passed to require payment in advance at the office of mailing of the postage on all publications sent to subscribers, the sooner will the "Cr." side of our national postal balance-sheet begin to compare more favorably with the "Dr." side. We would not advocate an increase of the rate of quarterly postage—in fact, we believe that if the present rate were reduced thirty-three per cent, and faithfully collected, the actual receipts from that source would increase fifty per cent.; but it is time that the farce of loading the mails with newspapers and magazines on which there is hardly a pretence of collecting postage should be reformed out of existence. We know the "newspaper interest" will oppose such a proposition as heresy, but it is sound doctrine nevertheless.

Changes at the Post Office Department.

GEORGE EARLE, Esq., of Maryland, has been appointed and confirmed as First Assistant Postmaster-General, in place of General St. John B. L. Skinner; and General GILES A. SMITH, of Illinois, as Second Assistant Postmaster-General, in place of Hon. George Wm. McLellan.

GETTING CARELESS.—We are informed by a Special Agent of the Department, that in the course of an investigation of a reported loss of a registered letter, he found, on a route which included six post offices through which the letter passed, but one postmaster who had complied with the regulations by entering the fact upon his "Record of Registered Matter in Transit." No doubt the delinquent postmasters had been careful to perform their duty in this matter when the present requirements" which our publisher hands to us; but so many of our subscribers, in sending the money for renewal, say such kind words, that we are unable to resist "temptation," for we cannot but feel gratified when one writes—"It seems to me that every month there is something I want to know, and when the MAIL comes I am sure to get such knowledge as I want." Another, "I think it brings the best return of any like sum I expend." Another, "I value its arrival each month at ten times its cost." Another, "Although I am removed from the office I cannot think of giving up the MAIL." Another, "Cannot do without it, though my salary is but $12.00 a year." And so we might go on, but stop here, thanking heartily our many well-wishers.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Delivery of Mail Matter.—T. S. W., C——, Ill.—The section (63) of the Regulations prohibiting postmasters from delivering mail matter not addressed to their respective offices applies with greater force to route agents, who have no right at all to deliver mail matter to the parties for whom it is intended.

Eligibility for Mail Carrier Service.—G. A. R., D——, Tenn.—There is no restriction in regard to the color of persons engaged in carrying the mail.

Money Order Business, Etc.—H. G. P., B—— S——, Mich.—The practical direction of the money order business is under the charge of competent persons, who, by their experience, can judge what is best for the efficiency of the system. There is no necessity that the "disinterested person," required by the regulations as a witness, should have access to other mail matter. The disinterested witness may be an "outsider," or may be some one employed in the office, provided his position is such that he would be disinterested, that is, that no suspicion could attach to him in case of loss.

Carriage of Mails between a Station and a Post Office.—A. A. C., F—— C——, Mich.—Your office being but 60 rods from the station, it is the duty of the railroad company to deliver the mails to you. Sec. 471, Reg. 1866.

Withdrawing Letters after Posting.—J. J. C. C., B——, Vt.—A letter may be withdrawn from a post office, after posting, according to sections 64 and 65, reg. 1866; to section 64, the words "except to the writer thereof," must be added, as they were omitted through mistake. See MAIL of Aug., 1866.

Postmarking Drop Letters.—J. W., A——; O.—Section 90, reg. of 1866, requires that "letters received to be sent by mail should be carefully marked," etc. The expression "to be sent by mail," does not imply that drop letters are not required to be postmarked. And we cannot but think that the omission to do so would not be creditable to the industry of a postmaster or his clerks.

Franking Specimen Copies of Papers.—H. A. F., J——, Mo.—All matter legally franked must be delivered. What is a legal frank may be learned from chapter XV. of the regulations, and the law and instruction published in this number of the MAIL.

Salaries.—L. H., B——, Mass.—The number of stamps sold has no bearing on the salary of an office, though in very many cases an opinion to the contrary is held. Salaries are based upon the proceeds accruing to the Department. A stamp sold brings nothing to the Department, but when that stamp is cancelled, the Department may be said to have received just so much; hence salaries are based upon the value of stamps cancelled, and receipts of money for postage, etc.—as we have said, upon the proceeds of an office.

Inclosing Circulars in Newspapers and Periodicals.—L. D., C——, Me.—A circular inclosed in a newspaper or periodical subjects the whole package to letter postage. See 209, Reg. 1866. The specimen you send is clearly a circular, and a paper or periodical containing such, if coming to a regular subscriber, is subject to letter postage; if not to regular subscriber, transient postage should be prepaid at the mailing office.

Registration.—H. H. H., P——, N. Y.—1. A "return registered letter receipt" must accompany every domestic registered letter. We judge from your inquiry that you have confounded the return registered letter bill, with the return registered letter receipt, for it is very obvious that to send only one of the latter, with five or six, or even two, registered letters, would answer no purpose whatever for more than one of the letters; while it is as obvious that one of the former will answer for any number of letters. 2. We recommend you to study carefully Section 10, of Registration Regulations. If a postmaster is absent his assistant may frank as acting postmaster....S. O. P., S—— S——, Cal.—Only letters, that is, mail matter paying letter postage, can be registered to places in the United States. Sec. 8 Regs. Reg. ....R. L. B., D—— C——, Wis.—Return registered letter receipts may be affixed to the letters in any way that may be most convenient; the best way is by a little gum or paste along the upper edge of the receipts, or they may be tied to the letters with a small cord or a thread; some use small india-rubber bands.....A. R., G——, Tex.—It is not the duty of postmasters to see registered letters opened on their delivery to the parties addressed. But it would be proper to examine the condition of registered letters on their arrival, and if there are any fractures or any suspicious appearance about them to make a memorandum of it.

Postage.—J. B. B., W——, Ill.—"A mixture," as you term it, of newspapers and periodicals may be sent as transient matter at the rate of two cents for four ounces or fraction thereof.....L. S. F., N—— B——, O.—The postage on newspapers to England is two cents for four ounces. The table of foreign postage in the MAIL is correct; you should be aware that changes are made in the rates of postage, hence the table in the Regulations cannot be relied on for any length of time after their publication. The only way to keep posted on postage, and indeed on all postal matters, is to take the MAIL. See section 259, Reg. 1866.....A. G., R——, N. Y.—Paine teeth are not found in the list of mailable matter, hence they must be rated under section 245 of the laws of 1866, at letter postage. Although we are aware that postmasters are not selected on the strength of diplomas from colleges or law schools; and sometimes not even on proficiency in the three R's—"reading, 'rithmetic and 'riting"—which, with some, constitute a finished education, yet we are occasionally surprised at the classification which some of them make of articles presented for mailing. Dry goods, boots and shoes, medicines, perfumery, and we had almost said steam engines, if presented in wrappers with the ends open, are accepted and rated at miscellaneous rates, viz., two cents for four ounces, notwithstanding the plain provisions of the law.....C. R., T——, O.—See preceding. We will add to our list the lampwicks, bar of iron, etc., of which you speak. A postmaster who deducts $1.04 from the charges on a package of lampwicks, and delivers the bundle at miscellaneous rates causes just so much loss to the Department, and should be reported for incompetency, if nothing worse. Secs. 37 and 158, Reg. 1866.....C. U. D., W——, N. Y.—Publishers and news agents are the only ones authorized to send regular papers at quarterly rates. Secs. 201 and 225, Reg. 1866. .....W. E. T., H—— F——, Minn.—On taking charge of your office you should have demanded of your predecessor all postage paid on regular papers for any time beyond the quarter in which he left the office, for when a postmaster collects regular postage for more than a quarter in advance, he must account for the same quarterly. Sec. 311, Reg. 1866. If your predecessor has not acted according to instruction, but has accounted for yearly postage as he says, we would refer you to the Department for instruction.....S. O. P., A——, Minn.—Postage on drop letters, where there is a free delivery, is two cents; where there is not a free delivery, one cent.

☞ There are no changes to note in our Table of Foreign Postages for this month.

"POSTMISTRESSES."—We notice that the appointment of ladies as Postmasters is constantly referred to by the press as the appointment of "Postmistresses." There is no such title recognized by law or regulation.

☞ It is a common saying that "a special Providence watches over drunken men and children," preserving them from the consequences of heedless acts which would, perhaps, prove fatal to sober people and adults. We think some such Providence must attend letters with blundering superscriptions: otherwise we could not well account for the fact of a foreign letter, directed to "Mr. ——, Boston, New Jersey—by Paterson Post," finally reaching the person addressed at Jersey City.

☞ Postage stamps, of all denominations, of new designs, have been issued by the Department. As they will soon become familiar to our readers we need not describe them further than to say that they are a decided improvement on the old pattern.

Sundry P. O. Matters.

We have before us a few letters, as a basis for our usual article, and the first we take up is from a postmaster in this State, who writes that he "has held the office of postmaster or deputy thirty-two successive years, and is forty-seven years of age." We agree with him that this is a rare example of postal service, even though the New York office boasts of a veteran of forty years. Evidently in our correspondent's locality there has been no "wooing and winning" between "politics and the post office," and we doubt not but that both have earned the true interests of the people far better in their lives of "single blessedness." Thirty-two years carries us back almost to the Franklinic period of postal affairs, and as we look still further beyond these years to that period, we cannot but wish that certain of its features could be combined with the experience and the knowledge of the present day. What a proud example of our republican institutions would our post office department become! Experienced and intelligent postmasters, honest and efficient clerks and route agents, intelligence, private and public, flying securely with railroad speed over the country, far and near, at rates so nearly nominal, that the poorest could enjoy the luxury of a letter or a paper from the far-off relative, and but seldom that now too frequent sound, the shooting of the prison lock for years—unless a pardon intervenes—upon some post office employee, and the consequent shame and sadness. But we must pass on to our next letter, wherein we are told by a postmaster that "I will not discourage registering, but I cannot encourage it;" and why? Because some months since $50 was inclosed in a letter in his presence and the letter registered. The letter was received but the money had been taken out. We cannot judge, without investigation, of cases of mere assertion of loss, but our experience, and that of those with whom we talk, is that the present registry system is very effective in promoting the security in the mails of valuable letters, and our correspondent is much mistaken in thinking that the system encourages stealing; on the contrary, it renders stealing very dangerous, and even if it should not secure detection of the first theft renders a second almost impossible. Over long routes, in sparsely settled parts of the country, the transmission of mail matter, as well as travelling itself, must necessarily have features of insecurity against which it is impossible to guard; but as a general rule registered matter passes through the mails securely, and no postmaster need hesitate to recommend—to urge—the registration of valuable letters. Is our friend certain the $50 would not have disappeared had the letter not been registered? We pass on to a question of removals from office by the new administration, a question which is not within our range, and on which we can express no opinion; but when our correspondent asks about returning registered package envelopes that have been used, we can say "we are at home," and cheerfully add that such envelopes are to be returned to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General after being kept on hand six months. That is, they must be kept on hand at least six months. To keep them a few days or a week more, so as to send several together, would no doubt be in compliance with the spirit of the regulations. And now for an inquiry as to the rate of box rents, to which we reply that the Department, except for a few large offices, has fixed no rate for the rent of boxes, but leaves it to the judgment of postmasters. We had not intended this month to publish any of the "compli-

We again caution postmasters against negligence in thoroughly examining registered package envelopes before filing them away. The latest instance of neglect that has come to our knowledge, affords a lesson by which all may profit. At a certain office a letter was registered, and by the same mail by which it was sent, was returned to the stamp agent at New York, an empty stamp box also registered. The postmaster enclosed the letter in a registered package envelope, and tacked the latter on the box. The addresses of the two were entered in the registered letter bill. On the receipt of the box by the postmaster to whom it was directed, the envelope was taken off and filed away without examination, on the supposition that it referred only to the box. After some days, inquiry was made for the letter; on investigation, it was traced to the post office to which first sent, and after a considerable search found in the envelope where first placed, and which had been filed away. Open every envelope by cutting across one end, and examine it thoroughly, do not take it for granted that it does not contain anything. The above instance, while a lesson, is also a proof of the efficiency and utility of the present registration system.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Consinntinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labnan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of n registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must ho fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Tnrkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United Sintes Exchange Office. Letters cannot he sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

A postmaster may frank a letter to Canada the same as to any point in the United States; but it is optional for the Canadian Post Office Department to deliver such letter free, or charge full postage on it, at its pleasnre.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postagoe due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Orcat Britain and Ireland, Franco, Prussia, Hanburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postags, and of the premium on a corresponding amonnt of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to he accepted in lieu of coin. The amonnt to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the differenes should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United Sintes, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must he delivered free of charge to tho party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexaudretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mityiene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoan, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tuitcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by wny of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapors, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United Sintes, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destinntion, charged with the dcficiout postago, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 3.)

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 onnces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will he forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, ho collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United Sintes, are also to he enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictaree, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communnication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whoio of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely sinting from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their office.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or samplc is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent hy mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not hear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, bnt on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepaymont in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representintives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

The rate of postage on mail letters to nny part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rata of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery hy carrier is eainblished, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards; paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

The single rate of postage on all domestic mail letters throughout the United Sintes is three cents per half ounce, with an additional rate of three cents for each additional half onnce or fraction of a half ounce. The ten cent (Pacific) rate is abolished.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

[All printed matter (except single copies of newspapers, magazines and periodicals sent to regular snbscribers from publishers) intended to go by mail westward from the western boundary of Kansas, or eastward from the eastern boundary of California, must be prepaid by stamps at letter postage rates. Sec. 259, P. O. Laws, Edition of 1866.]

BOOKS, not over four onnces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

CIRCULARS, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Every postmaster will be careful never to send a registered-letter "direct," when there is a distributing post office between his office and the office to which the letter is directed. He must inclose it, with the registered letter bill, in a "Registered Package Envelope," directed to the postmaster at the first distributing post office on the route, and also send the Return Registered Letter Bill in a common envelope to the same postmaster by same mail—just the same as if the letter were for delivery at the distributing post office.

Post Office Blanks.

The agency for supplying postmasters with blanks is located at Washington, D. C.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per qnarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Mails are due at the New York Post Office.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

PROSPECTUS OF

Frank Leslie's Publications.

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

The aim of this paper is to furnish a pictorial history of current events. Between thirty and forty illustrations appear in every weekly number, including eight engravings of the pictorial spirit of the foreign press, events of national or local interest, railroad or steamboat accidents, amusing and thrilling incidents, comics, etc. The literary matter comprises, besides well-written editorials on the leading questions of the day, and descriptions of the engravings, a serial story of thrilling interest, entertaining narratives and tales, humorous anecdotes, choice poems, etc.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Chimney Corner.

A purely literary pictorial. Excluding events of the day, its aim, as its title indicates, is to furnish amusement for the leisure hour. Its contents consist principally of original stories by able writers—including a serial, scoonnts of remarkable adventures, biographical sketches of self-made men—with portraits, descriptions of manners and customs in remote countries, short poems, fairy stories, enigmas, conundrums, charades, etc. Illustrated with large and spirited engravings, of which there are from fifteen to twenty in each weekly number.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

The New World.

This handsome, large eight-paged weekly is addressed to all classes—to the young and the old, the lettered and the comparatively unlearned, the rich and the poor. Its columns are filled with serial and other literary matter, prepared by writers whose names are familiar to readers of romance, travel and discovery; students of science and admirers of poesy; and its pages are liharally enriched by the pencils of leading artists, to whom is intrusted the task of illnstrating its stories; and papers upon topics of graver moment. THE NEW WORLD is particularly favored in the list of its contributors, two hundred of whom have engaged to write for it. Among these may be mentioned, Hon. E. George Squier, ex-Minister to Peru, whose researches in the wilds of Central and South America have greatly added to our knowledge of the ethnology and p at civilization of the Western Hemisphere; Prof. A. C. Joy, lecturer on applied chemistry at Columbia College, New York; A. K. Gardner, M. D., Professor of Diseasce of Women, an author whose works on Pathology have become text-books with the faculty; Professore Emery and Allen; William Ross Wallace, Edward Fawcett, Barry Gray, Mary J. Austin, Virginia F. Townsend, Captain Mayne Reid, Delia Maitland, M. A. Denison, and Nellie Ames.

Subscription price, $3 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustrirte Zeitung.

A pictorial newspaper in the German language, containing a large number of engravings illnstrating events of the day, exciting and amneing incidents, adventnres and manners and customs in all parts of the world, with a large amount of literary matter, including numerous interesting tales. This paper combines for the German reader the attractions presented in the illustrated Newspaper and the Chimney Corner.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustracion Americana.

An illustrated paper in the Spanish language, with all the attractive features, pictorial and literary, that have made Frank Leslie's other publications so popular.

Subscription price in the United States, $12 currency.

Frank Leslie's Boys and Girls' Weekly.

One of the cheapest pictnrial papers ever published. Intended for the amusement of youth of both sexes. The illustrations and literary matter are such as especially recommend themselves to the young. It contains, besides a continued etory and well-written tales, accounts of wonderful adventure, descriptions and illustrations of foreign manners and customs, anecdotes and pictures of animals, familiar and funny fables, parlor magic, etc. From twenty to twenty-five engravings appear in each weekly issue.

Subscription price, $2 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine.

The leading fashion periodical in America. Each monthly number contains a large colored plate of the latest fashions, from designs sent from Paris as soon as invented, which are thus published simultaneously in New York and Paris; also a four-page uncolored fashion plate, embracing the various leading styles. These are accompanied with full descriptions and explanations, with numerous other illustrations. Every number contains an original letter from Paris, describing the very latest modes, by a lady whose position gives her access to fashionable society. The literary portion of this magazine comprises a continued story, numerous interesting tales, poetry, anecdotes, etc. The whole profusely illnstrated with fine engravings.

Subscription price, $3 50 per year.

The Young Lady's Budget.

Fashion, Fiction and Entertaining Knowledge. A monthly publication, of which the features are such as especially commend it to the favor of young ladies. A large proportion of its pages are devoted to Fashions, in which the newest styles are presented, fully illustrated with engravings and a beautiful colored Fashion Plate. A great variety of engraved patterns for netting, crotchet-work, needle-work, embroidery, etc., are also given. In each number appears a page or more of new and popular music, selected especially with a view to the tastes of young ladies.

Subscription price, $2 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Pleasant Hours.

The cheapest periodical in the United States, containing eighty large octavo pages of letter-press, with from twenty to twenty-five illnstrations, besides two full-page engravings, on tinted paper, in each number. A continued story, and well-written tales and stories of adventure, with humorous anecdotes, descriptions of manners and customs, amusements for young people, etc., constitute the reading matter.

Terms of subscription, $1 50 per year.

VOL. IX., NO. 8. NEW YORK, MAY, 1869. WHOLE NO. 104.

The Cunard Mail Contract.

The London correspondent of the New York Tribune gives a very full exposure of the manner in which the Cunard mail job has heretofore been managed in England, and how the interests of the people, both of Great Britain and of this country, have been sacrificed for the benefit of that powerful Company:

One man's hatred of jobbing has at last dragged into light in the House of Commons, the long scandal of the Cunard mail contracts. Mr. Seely, the member for Lincoln, is known for his occasional brilliant raids on Admiralty abuses. He never did better service than last night when he went outside of the naval administration to expose the last of many corrupt acts of the late Government. His motion brought on a debate which anywhere but in England would have put the seal of death on the Cunard contract, and which even in England will perhaps annul a bargain that was on the eve of being irrevocably closed. The mail arrangements between England and America are a matter of deep interest on both sides of the ocean, and the debate in the House last night was scarcely less important to America than to England. For the money which the Cunard Company takes in the first place out of the Treasury here, comes in the end out of the pockets of those who in both countries go on paying the high postages maintained solely to swell the enormous profits of this steamship monopoly. If the high postages and the great subsidies gave us swift service, the extortion might be borne by the commercial community, to whom speed and regularity are more than money. But we do not get what we pay for, as Mr. Seely proved last night, and if we did, we should have no right to continue a rate practically prohibitory upon letters that the great mass of the people write. I shall cite some evidence brought forward by Mr. Seely, and add some of my own. Mr. Seely made a very powerful statement; but he dwelt most, as an economist naturally would dwell, on the extravagance of the proposed compensation. I think the inefficiency of the Cunard service an even stronger point. It was so under the old contract. Under the new it is so strikingly that I don't know how to characterize the bargain without using a hard word—without saying that it is a fraud upon the public.

By the new contract the Tory Government agreed to pay the Cunard line £70,000 a year for two weekly mails, and the Inman line £35,000 a year for one weekly mail, the contract to be binding on the Government for eight years. The extravagance of the price needs but a single fact to prove it, viz.: that the North German Lloyds have been performing the same service as the Inman without any subsidy at all—receiving only the postages on the letters they carried, about $12,500 for the year. The enormous payment to the Cunard and Inman lines can be defended only on the ground that equally good service—that is, service equally swift and equally regular—cannot be procured otherwise. In a general way, avoiding statistics, the advocates of the subsidy system do make this claim on behalf of their clients. Let us see what the facts are.

First: It is only fair to separate the Inman and Cunard services. Until lately they were rivals, now they are allies so far as the postal business goes. The Inman line had formerly no subsidy, and was a great opponent of subsidies. A little more than a year ago the Messrs. Inman wrote to the Chancellor of the Exchequer that any advantage given to the Cunard line could only injure the public service; that a subsidy enabled the Cunarders to "underquote our rates of freight," although they had as good a fleet as Cunard. And Inman at that time declared his willingness to perform the services for the postages only. I know nothing of the circumstances that have made the two old enemies now confederates. It is enough to say, in respect to the claims of the Inman line, that it is just as much entitled to a subsidy as the Cunard line. It offers an honest service in exchange for high pay, while for still higher pay the Cunard line offers a service which is anything else but honest. I have called it a fraud on the public, and here is the proof.

The Cunard line proposes to perform two weekly services, the Inman one. The Cunard is to receive double the subsidy of the Inman. The claim to a subsidy is based on regularity and speed. In fact, those two things, regularity and speed, are so dependent on either that they cannot be separated. It is useless for a vessel to start regularly if she arrives irregularly, or if her speed is so slow that she regularly delivers her mails late. The Cunard Company run what may be called two lines of steamers from Liverpool to New York. They start a slow freight and emigrant ship from Liverpool for New York via Boston every Tuesday. Their regular passenger line leaves Liverpool on Saturdays. Under the new contract they receive the same subsidy for the cargo line and for the passenger line. Mails are at this moment actually made up every week in London, and forwarded by the slow Tuesday boats which call at Queenstown for letters on Wednesday. These boats make average passages of, I think, more than fourteen days, and are sometimes sixteen and seventeen. I believe I should be perfectly safe in saying that they never reach New York until after the arrival of the Inman ships, which sail a day later. I have not the record of voyages by me, and to avoid contradiction I will say, seldom or never. That is why I describe this arrangement as dishonest and a fraud on the public, which pays £35,000 a year for a service which is no service. It is, in fact, worse than worthless, being a positive annoyance and hinderance to business men or others whose letters require a speedy delivery. In London, I can direct that my letters, if written on Tuesday, shall not be posted till Wednesday, in order that they may not be sent by the Cunard cargo boats. But what is a man to do on the Continent? The new arrangement came into operation while I was to Madrid. At first I was ignorant of it, and used to post letters to reach London on Tuesdays so that they might be sure to go by the Wednesday mail. The result was, they were sent by the slow Tuesday Cunard boats and reached New York a day or more after the Inman mails of Wednesday. Afterward I indorsed on the envelope, "Not to be forwarded by the Tuesday Cunarder," but I don't know whether the post-office people paid any respect to my prohibition. Mr. Seely, who is a cautious man, says these boats are "generally overtaken by boats which left one, two, and in some cases three days afterward." Could there be a greater absurdity than to forward mails by such lagging ships as these? I believe it has happened more than once that the Tuesday Cunarder has arrived in New York not only after the Inman ship of the following day, but after the regular Cunarder which left on Saturday—four days later. It would be trifling with the public to send letters by this cargo line on any terms. If the Messrs. Cunard would take them for nothing, they ought not to be allowed to receive them. What is to be said of a contract by which the Government not only allows letters to be thus detained, but pays £35,000 sterling a year for their detention. I challenge an answer.

The Cunard advocates in Parliament wisely avoided the fact of the case. They rest their claim on what the line has done in the past. I could say a good deal in reply to that, but I have no space in this letter to set forth, as it deserves, the policy of the Cunard Company. They gained a good reputation when they had few or no rivals, while they are now equaled in regularity and surpassed in speed and comfort by at least three ocean lines to New York. During a part of the year, when travel is greatest and they have most to fear from competition, they run their fastest ships on Saturdays. Those ships then carry the mails, and the service during that part of the year is tolerably performed. I say tolerably, and I avoid using a stronger adjective, because the Cunard service at its best is far from being what it should be, and seems to be deteriorating rather than improving. A letter posted in London on Saturday is taken by the Cunarder for Queenstown on Sunday afternoon. It ought to be delivered in New York on Tuesday of the following week, and a merchant would then be able to send his answer by the steamer leaving New York on Wednesday. The answer should reach Queenstown Thursday night or Friday morning of the next week but one, and be delivered in London on Saturday morning—exactly three weeks from the date of the first. This is perfectly possible, and the Cunard line sometimes does it. If they would build more fast ships and be a little less economical of coal, they could make the rule what is now the exception.

But the Cunard fleet does not keep pace with the improvements in ship-building, nor with some of the competing lines. It has at this moment but one ship which can be called first-class in every respect—the Russia. The Scotia is fast, but she belongs to a race of which she will be the last example. No more paddle-wheel steamers will be built for ocean navigation. The Scotia is no swifter than the Russia, and burns two tons of coal to her one. Besides these two vessels, there is not one of the Cunard fleet which is equal to the new ships of the North German Lloyds or Hamburg-American lines. The China, Cuba, Java and vessels of that class, are, however, probably good enough to do the work which—as I have explained above—ought to be demanded from them. They can make the voyage from Queenstown to New York in less than nine days, so as to complete a correspondence between London and New York in three weeks.

But the Cunard Company do not use the ships they have. They put their slow cargo boats even on the Saturday passenger line. In this morning's London paper, three Cunarders are advertised to sail for New York on three successive Saturdays, and two out of the three are slow freighting ships—the Siberia and Samaria. On the other lines the old slow ships are being rapidly replaced by new ships of great power and speed. The Hamburg line has been driven, by the mean policy of the British Post Office, from Southampton and Havre, and is out of the question for the present as a mail line, unless the Government throws overboard the Cunard contract, and accepts service from all lines on equal terms. But compare the Hamburg and Cunard ships. Out of the eight of the Hamburg boats advertised this morning to leave Havre, five are new ships; one of the five having her first voyage yet to make. What has the Cunard line to show in comparison with the Hammonia, the Holsatia, the Cimbria and the Westphalia? Or take the North German Lloyd line from Bremen to New York, still leaving Southampton on Tuesdays, the same day on which the cargo Cunarders leave Liverpool. Out of four ships advertised three are new, the Deutschland, Main and Donau, and there are no faster or better ships afloat. The Rhein, the Union, the Weser, and others, are equally good. This line leaves New York on Thursdays, one day later than the Cunard, and delivers its mails with regularity in London on Mondays with the Cunard mails, which are twenty-four hours older. The Hamburg ships, leaving New York on Tuesdays, frequently deliver their mails in London on Saturdays, and are sometimes forty-eight hours ahead of the Cunard mails, leaving twenty-four hours later. For instance, the Hammonia, which left New York Tuesday week, arrived early this morning at Southampton, and her mails are already distributed in London. The Cunarder, which left New York twenty-four hours later, has not even been telegraphed at Queenstown, which she ought to have reached as soon as the Hammonia did Southampton—there being nearly a day's difference between the two places. Her mails will not be in London till Monday morning. But the British Government in its eagerness to show favor to its pet Cunard line, withdrew from the Hamburg line even the privilege of carrying the mails for the postage only; and unless the House refuses to sanction the new Cunard contract, the mails are to be withdrawn also from the North German Lloyd. Luckily, the British Post Office does not control the American, so that we still receive mails by both the German lines—and a great boon it is. I wonder that New York merchants have not discovered how great. They still send the bulk of their mails on Wednesday. The Cunard ships bring sometimes a hundred sacks, the Southampton steamers commonly not more than forty, though I see the Hammonia today has eighty.

Mr. Seely's motion for a committee of inquiry was carried on a division by 115 to 86, the Government not actively supporting, but not opposing it. They talked about etiquette, and such nonsense, as a reason for leaving it wholly for the House to say whether a scandalous job perpetrated by the old Ministry should be overhauled.

Finally, the exposure was so complete, Mr. Gladstone had to get up and say he did not think the inquiry could be resisted. The contract must be disapproved within a fortnight or cannot be rescinded at all, and it is a very doubtful matter whether a committee can be appointed zealous enough to get through its investigation and make its report within that time. It can be done if the Government really wants the bargain broken up, and so honest competition for honest service at an honest price.

The same correspondent, in a subsequent letter, says:

The report of the House Committee on the Cunard job has at last been printed, together with the evidence. The Committee, by a majority vote, recommended that the contracts should be canceled, but the adjournment of the House for the Easter holidays prevented the taking a vote on the report, until after the date within which the contracts became complete by lapse of time. Had the vote been taken there can be no doubt the job would have been repudiated. Not only is the evidence overwhelming, but the Government, after some vacillation had at last made up their mind to throw over the contract, as too bad to be defended. The difficulty is, they did not decide soon enough. The interior history of the business is one which I should be glad to relate, and which the public has both a right and an interest to know, but I am precluded from stating the facts by a subsequent request of my informant to regard the conversation as confidential.

The evidence most damaging to the Cunard Company is that given by Mr. Burns, one of the partners and managers of that Company.

Mr. Burns commenced his testimony by stating, in a majestic way, that he did not intend to come before the Committee at all, but finally, out of respect to them, had consented to appear. This effort to put the Committee under a sense of obligation, did not, however, succeed. The Chairman replied quietly—though his reply is not in the printed evidence—that the Committee desired Mr. Burns' evidence, and that if he had refused to come they should have sent for him. I believe he did not say send the Sergeant-at-Arms; but Mr. Burns, like all others present, understood what was meant, and he became comparatively docile. The incident is only worth mentioning as an illustration of what an Englishman would call the very "swell" style in which the Cunard people treat the Government and their other patrons. Mr. Burns then proceeded to testify that this Cunard Company consisted of Sir Edward and Mr. William Cunard, Messrs. MacIver, his brother and himself—that these six or seven individuals were the sole partners. Doubtless the Committee felt a sense of relief on discovering that this association, heretofore surrounded with a kind of awful mystery, was only human. Mr. Burns was asked as to the Tuesday service, which formed one part of their tender. At first he protested against the Tuesday boats being called "slow cargo boats," but in the end he had to admit that they deserved that name. "The Tuesday service," he said, "was never contemplated to be a service of such great excellence or such great speed as the Saturday service." Asked whether, even now in the event of the ratification of this very contract, procured on the strength of an offer to carry the Tuesday mails, he meant to make the Tuesday service as good as the Saturday? Mr. Burns said No. The Tuesday mails are to be carried for eight years, apparently, in such tubs as the Tarifa, the Siberia and the Samaria. He justified the payment on the ground of the extra expense incurred by calling at Queenstown, but presently had to admit that the expense of calling at Queenstown would not exceed £10,000 a year, while he received £35,000 for it, and moreover that these Tuesday vessels had called and would call at Queenstown for passengers, whether they took the mails or not.

Of first-class vessels Mr. Burns admitted they had but six in their whole fleet; yet he testified also that to keep up one efficient mail service weekly eight or nine were required. The contradictions in his extraordinary testimony are so numerous that I can only select here and there a sample. Mr. Seeley asks if, without a subsidy, the Company would not still dispatch their ships at fixed periods. "No," replies Mr. Burns, bluntly; "that depends entirely on trade requirements." A few minutes later the question is repeated: "Supposing you had no subsidy, should you run steamers regularly to the United States throughout the year if you did not carry the mail-bags?" Answer—"I hope so."

"You intend to do so, do you?" Answer—"Yes, fully."

I think anybody who takes the trouble to follow Mr. John Burns a little way through the winding course of his evidence, can have no difficulty in coming to a conclusion on the merits of the case. The North German Lloyd and Hamburg Companies have built, within the last two or three years, some twelve or thirteen very fast ships. They are admirably managed, and in their attention to the comfort of passengers they have greatly surpassed the Cunarders. Passengers have found out the facts, and are crowding the German lines. The Cunard Company have built no new vessels for two or three years, and only two since 1864. They have in all but five first-class ships for mail and passenger traffic. On their own showing, eight or nine such ships are requisite for a single weekly service. To support their failing line, heretofore enormously subsidized for one service, they have obtained a fresh subsidy of £70,000 a year for eight years, on the pretense of carrying two mails weekly by a fleet insufficient for one service. The job, shameful as it is, has just escaped being repudiated, and in spite of the evidence now published, the Company will fatten for the next eight years on money plundered from the Treasury for a service they will not and cannot perform. It is unpleasant, but things have been so managed that there is no help for it.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, April, 1869.

I have so long been permitted to occupy a space in the columns of the MAIL, that I am quite sure many of your readers have become familiar with me; and so long as they do not protest against it, and no detriment to the service, nor to its influence and usefulness results therefrom, I presume you will not shut down on me. I am free to confess that I rather like these monthly privileges; and while I do not know that my contributions have wrought any general improvement in the management and arrangement of post offices, I do believe that certain appreciative officials have benefited much from my suggestions and expositions, and have instituted and perfected reforms which are highly creditable to themselves and beneficial to the Department. It has never been my desire to indulge in improper ridicule or censure of official conduct, nor have I at any time distorted facts, or aggravated descriptions in my pen pictures of exceptionable localities. I have only sought to elevate the standard of official dignity; to promote the efficiency of government offices, and to enhance the importance of the Post Office Department in all its ramifications. It is too huge in its proportions, and too young in years to expect perfection in its widely diffused administration; but if companionship with its progress, sympathy with its operations, and a cheerful obedience to, and careful observance of, the rules which govern it, are regarded by its subordinate manipulaters as paramount under all circumstances, it will soon lose its unwieldiness, and will work together in all its parts as harmonious as a well regulated time-piece—at least such is the view I take of this mighty, all pervading, popular system, and may its shadow never grow less. There certainly can be no harm in any citizen feeling a deep interest in this important branch of our national household—exercising as it does a controlling influence over all our public and private business and domestic affairs—and the great aim of my letters has been to convince both officials and civilians that mutual aid and mutual forbearance would tend to promote perfection, while sectionalism, selfishness, jealousy and improper criticism would produce diametrically opposite results. This kind of doctrine of course does not suit the Durdledot style of postal officials—but as that class of sluggard functionaries is fast fading out, and from the appearance of things at present will soon become extinct, it is of little consequence what views they may hold or what opinions they may express. Fossils avaunt!

The country is beginning to look beautifully inviting: verdure is just beginning to show its emerald face; buds are swelling, and birds are caroling, and the snow, except in hidden recesses and mountain fastnesses, has gone where all the snow goes to every spring. It went off in a hurry, too, and the way it helped into swell the little streams in big ones, and the big ones into unmeasurably bigger ones, was frightful to those particularly interested. In my wanderings I witnessed some sad sights and some funny ones from the sudden floods. In one case I nearly collapsed with laughter at the almost maniac efforts of a Hibernian to save a family of swine, his only earthly possessions, except his wife, I was told, and came very near drowning himself in the attempt; while a few moments after, my blood was almost curdled at the shrieks of a poor woman, whose infant had been washed from her arms as she was endeavoring to escape from the avalanche of waters which swept her cottage from the river bank. Of course, I had adventures of one kind or another, but it looks immodest for an old fellow like me to be parading my "escapes by flood and field," and I think I will forbear for this time at any rate.

I was going on to say that the country was beginning to look sweet and enchanting, and I experienced no small pleasure I assure you in going out for a few days. Our "Buth and Beverage Society" will be out in full force this season again, and as Corresponding Secretary I will be expected to furnish all the necessary valuable information required for working purposes. To do this, I took time by the forelock and went out early, prospecting and visited a good many localities that were familiar to me, but I confess that I perceived a most extraordinary change in the demeanor and conduct of several postmasters that I cannot avoid speaking of, although I may appear impertinent. I can't help it if it does. One office in particular, where courtesy was never cultivated, politeness unexpected and discord the order of the day, was so completely reversed that I could scarcely realize the fact that I was in the same place. The first thing which struck me was a cardboard sign on the delivery-window, "Civility and Official Courtesy are due to All." My first impression, of course, was that it was a sarcastic bit at the Postmaster, but when I inquired for letters and received the most polite replies in the gentlest tone, and saw that the urbane individual who was waiting on me was no other than that formerly pugnacious, irascible and disobliging individual. I succumbed and experienced anew the reality that wonders never cease. After reading a letter I took the liberty of looking inside through a half-opened door, and upon the walls inside, and easily seen from the outside, I saw several other legends such as "We Study to be Polite," "Decorum and Patience," "Our Time is Years," all of which, together with the general air of cleanliness, and the geniality of the Postmaster most favorably impressed me; and I almost felt like apologizing to him for ever having thought him anything but a gentleman; and I believe I should have done so if the skycracking gong of the only hotel had not summoned me to dinner. But while eating that dinner the mystery of the post office was explained, for I learned that seven applicants were after the position; and the claims of each one were based upon the grounds of his being affable, industrious, cleanly and obliging; and that the present incumbent could not arrogate to himself any of these attributes, which assertion he was endeavoring to falsify by his present mode of operating, but which he told a friend of his privately would kill him sure if it lasted long. I have since learned that he was weighed in the balance and found wanting, at least he found that his services were not wanting, and he has retired to private life. Several other sunny spots were visited, in all of which there was a marked improvement, and a new order of things seemed to have been inaugurated. And I felt as if I would like to be able to do with those reconstructed officials, as after-a-while mollified old fathers on the stage do with their recently-forgiven children, join their hands and say "This is the happiest day of my life."

I do not intend to scold or coax any body this time, but if Providence permits I will take occasion to spy out the land in the month of flowers, and then nous verrons.

MONS. TONSON.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Editor U. S. Mail:

In your April number you say that the "newspaper interest" will oppose prepayment. I can understand very well why newspaper publishers who adhere to the credit system, sending their papers without prepayment, should do so. But on what grounds will those oppose it who exact advance payment for their papers? To all such it would seem to me that there would be a direct pecuniary interest in having prepayment of postage compulsory. And in this wise—that it would give to the publishers the use during the year without interest of a sum of money equal to half the postage. Thus the New York Tribune sends forth, including Daily, Semi-Weekly and Weekly, what would be equal, perhaps, to 100,000 weeklies; the postage on which, at twenty cents per annum, comes to $20,000. This sum they would receive in a lump at the beginning of the year, and would enjoy its use without interest to the end of the year; diminished weekly one-fifty-second part of the sum in hand at the commencement of the year. This would give the Tribune virtually the use of $10,000 for a year without interest.

I believe, too, that most persons taking a newspaper would prefer paying their twenty cents postage at the time of subscription to being bothered with paying five cents four times a year.

OUTSIDER.

Dear Mr. Editor—The author of that most witty little book called "Mother Goose for Grown Folks," under the text of

> "Fire on the mountains—
> Run, boys; run, boys!
> Cat's in the cream-pot—
> Run, girls, run!"

writes:

> "So when some rousing deed is to do,
> To save a nation;
> Or, in the mountains, to subdue
> A conflagration;
> Woman, the work is not for you;
> Mind your vocation!
> Out from the cream-pot comes a mew
> Of tribulation!"

Now I know that there is a good deal of truth in this assertion, and moreover I have a great horror of the opposite extreme of opinion—the strong-minded woman phase. In this, too, agreeing with the above-quoted author:

> "I don't stand up for Woman's Right;
> Not I—no, no!
> The real lioness fight—
> I let it go."

Such being the case I feel not a little diffident in presenting myself, however anonymously, to the UNITED STATES MAIL. My claim to be heard is very small, indeed, for I am "only a woman," and not even a postmistress in my own right, but merely a postmistress' assistant.

Yet I am moved to utterance; and the consideration that the editor has the free and unembarrassed choice of putting my communication into the fire or into the paper emboldens me to venture.

Poor U. S. MAIL! Are not your moral instruments almost worn out with adjusting and tightening all the "loose screws" which from month to month are brought to your official notice? Do you ever hope to get the Postal Machine in such perfect order that nobody will find any part of it that wants mending?

But now, without further delay, let me contribute my quota of fault-finding. I do not mean to attack the newspaper postage system; though if the vote could be taken I am sure it would be universally conceded that if this evil were only out of the way all other "ills that (post office) flesh is heir to" could be cheerfully put up with. My reticence on this subject is all the more commendable, because I have an admirable plan devised for getting rid of the nuisance. No woman could endure it a single quarter without setting her wits to work to discover a remedy; all the more readily, perhaps, because if her plan (making, first, the mild supposition that it should ever be adopted) were found defective in its practical working, she could make such a graceful and dignified defense on the ground that the "modus operandi" fell to the part of clumsy man! But no, I don't propose to turn my feeble battery against such a strong old postal Goliath as the Newspaper Postage system.

My little sling-stone is aimed at the heads (though, alas! I fear it may but fall harmlessly at the feet) of city letter-carriers. I don't believe these men are all honest; and, in any city especially, I am driven to a suspicion that the honest ones are the exception. This is the only hypothesis upon which I can account for the fact that several letters containing money, and addressed to different parties, have never been received at their destinations in said city, while the whole host of moneyless letters mailed daily to the same office has never failed to come safely to hand.

Of course I preach money-order and registered letter, and never allow the smallest amount to be sent in any other way, through our mails, if I can help it; but when a poor woman comes to me in sore distress, telling me that she has sent $5 or $10 in a letter to a needy or suffering relative in ——, and it has never been received, and when, to my inquiry, how she could do such a foolish thing, with both money-order and registered letter at her service, she tells me that said sister or daughter is a working woman, or ill, and, moreover, living upon the outskirts of the city, and cannot take the time to go to the post office to draw a money-order, or sign for a letter, then I acknowledge I feel a burning indignation at the thought that there is not honesty enough in all departments of the postal service to secure a money-letter going through the mails without being stolen.

UNITED STATES MAIL.

Where does the fault lie? Perhaps not with the luckless letter-carrier whom I accuse. But my suspicious fasten npon him because I can see no possible check, by which, if he were dishonestly disposed, he would be withheld from taking as many letters as he chose on the route of his delivery.

Now, might not some plan be devised which would operate as a safeguard for all letters that are to be delivered at the house? Or, rather, could not the present admirable Registry system be modified so as to provide for the delivery of the letter at the residence or place of business, as the case may be, of the person addressed, the letter-carrier giving a receipt to the postmaster and taking one of the party receiving the letter, just as, now, every other official does who touches a registered letter?

And now, I have said my woman'a bold say, and to prove to you that the sex can relapse into silence when that is done, I take my leave, promising not to bother you soon again, and not at all, should the non-publication of this letter administer a hint to that effect.

Yours, very truly, P. M. A.

Our correspondent does not seem to be aware of the fact that in many cities registered letters are delivered by carriers. There is no good reason why they should not be so delivered in all cities; and we hope that ere long they will be. The sub-offices or "stations" in the larger cities should also be money order offices; and we do not donht that an arrangement of that kind will in time be made.

"P. M. A." will permit us to say that, thengh "only a woman," she seems to be "au fait" in one athletic exercise, viz., jumpling at a conclusion. There is nothing in the facts she presents which will justify any special suspicion of "the letter carriers," or any of them. We suggest that she place the matter, in official form, before the proper anthorities.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
Washington, April 9, 1869.

SIR—In accordance with information just received from the Post Department of the North German Union the following rates of postage will hereafter be chargeable upon the letter correspondence posted in this country and addressed to Sweden, via North Germany, viz.:

Prepaid letters by closed mail through England, 19 cents, and by direct mail to Bremen or Hamburg, 14 cents, per each half ounce or fraction thereof. Unpaid letters 21 cents via England and 16 cents by direct mail per each single rate of half an ounce or under.

The rates of postage, conditions of prepayment, etc., apon printed matter of all kinds and samples of merchandise addressed from this country to Sweden, via North Germany, remain the same as heretofore, no change being made therein by this modification.

I have also to add that the international register fee of 8 cents per letter will continne to prepay the cost of registration from the United States to destination in Sweden, via the German mails.

I have therefore to request that yon will please amend the table of postages in the next issue of the MAIL, by substituting the modified rates of letter postage chargeable to Sweden, via North Germany, for the letter rates now published therein as chargeably thereto by this route.

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Superintendent Foreign Mails.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
Washington, April 27, 1869.

SIR—I have to request that yon will please insert in the May number of the U. S. MAIL the following notice for the information of persons mailing letters to Russia for transmission in the mails to the North German Union.

HOW LETTERS TO RUSSIA SHOULD BE ADDRESSED.

The General Post Office at Berlin has called attention to the circumstance that letters are frequently received in the mails from the United States to North Germany for despatch to Russia, on which the place of destination is expressed in Russian characters, and the locality not clearly indicated, and a request is made that the public in the United States be informed that when on letters for Russia the place of destination is expressed in Russian characters it is recommended that the sender add the same in German, French or English, as the Russian characters are not sufficiently known in the North German post offices. And it is further requested that on letters addressed to the smaller towns or places in Rnssia, the situation of the place of destination be distinctly and fully designated on the address.

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Snperintendent Foreign Mails.

J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor U. S. Mail.

REGISTRATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND YOKOHAMA, IN JAPAN, AND SHANGHAE, IN CHINA.

We are requested to state that arrangements have been made for the registration of letters between the Post Office of San Francisco and the United States Postal Agencies at Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China. Such letters only as are addressed to Yokohama or to Shanghae respectively, can be registered under this arrangement.

The fee for such registration chargeable from any part of the United States to Yokohama or Shanghae is fixed at 8 cents per letter, in addition to the rate of ordinary postage to and from the same. Registered letters for the places in question will be made np at the San Francisco office only, and consequently, when posted at any other office in the United States, should he at once forwarded to San Francisco in the usual conrse.

New Postmaster at New York.

General PATRICK H. JONES has been appointed, hy President Grant, Postmaster at New York City, in place of James Kelly, Esq., whose commission had expired. The appointment seems to give general satisfaction, as Gen. Jones is well known as an active and energetic gentleman, of good executive abilities, and with an excellent record as a gallant and efficient officer during the war.

☞ The reappointment of General HENRY H. BINGHAM as Postmaster at Philadelphia, is one on which both he and the citizens of that place are to be congratulated. He has proved himself to be eminently qualified for the position hy faithful and intelligent performance of its duties, nnaccompanied, too, hy any special flourish ot trumpets, blown hy himself, proclaiming his own efficiency and "indefatigability."

Forgery of Money Orders.

A recent statute (Sect. 5, Act of July 27, 1868), provides a penalty of imprisonment, from two to five years, for the crime of forging a postal money order or any material signature or indorsement thereto. Previous to the enactment of this law, the forgery of the signature of an endorser or a payee of a money order was only punishable under State laws, and though the offence was occasionally committed, the officers of the Post Office Department could not take official cognizance of it. Though the Department is liable to no further claim after a money order has been paid, hy whomsoever presented, this fact does not absolve those who pay such orders from the duty of exercising proper care and vigilance in making payments. And we would recommend that in all cases where there is anything suspicious in the appearance or conduct of a person presenting an order for payment, the most searching questions (in addition to the ordinary ones which he is required to answer) be put to him before payment. In case of an evident or admitted forgery, an arrest should be made at once.

RETAINING MAIL BAGS AND LOCKS.—Sec. 431 of P. O. Regulations, instructs postmasters that "all mail-bags not in use should be immediately returned to the office from which they were sent; and if received from points unknown, or where not needed, they should be forwarded to the nearest mail-bag depot"—(a list of which will be found in Sec. 436). The disregard of this regulation by postmasters who allow large numbers of mail bags to accumulate in their offices, leads to great inconvenience and embarrassment at the larger offices, where it has not seldom happened that letter mails have been obliged to be dispatched in senled canvas newspaper pouches, for lack of the lock-ponches and locks which were lying by the dozen in offices which had no need of them. We hope this reminder will be acted on at once hy any of our readers to whom it may apply.

POST OFFICE MUTUAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATIONS.—We have received a circnlar of the "Ohio Post Office Mutnal Benefit Association," the object of which is, as stated by the circular, "to secure an insurance, hy the mutual benefit plnn, so successfully adopted among railroad condoctors and other organized bodies of men, on the lives of such postmasters or post office employés who are sworn into the service of the United States and die dnring the period of snch service."

The plan adopted is based on the rule that

"Any Postmaster or Employee sworn into the Postal Service, and en dnty in the State of Ohio, npon the payment of an initiation fee of One Dollar and subscribing his or her name to an Applicatica for membership, which binds them to pay the sum of One Dollar, to the Secretary of said Association within thirty days after notice having been given by the Secretary of said Association of the death of a member, and shall agree to pay the sum of One Dollar on the first day of January of each year, toward defraying the necessary expenses incurred by said Association, shall become a member thereof."

There is a simllar Association connected with the New York Post Office, which numbers about 700 members, who are assessed two dollars each on the death of a member. As most employees of the Post Office Department are entirely dependent on their salaries, such associations as the above should receive their support, and we would he glad to see one established in every State in the Union.

Snndry P. O. Matters.

The mention in our last of the postmaster who could not encourage registration of valuable letters, has called forth several communications, which speak in high terms of the present system. One postmaster is even willing for a small per cent. to insure the safe delivery of money through registered letters. Another writes: "I have registered letters during the last quarter of '68 containing over $1,200, sent to Philadelphia, east, and to Idaho, west, and they all reached the parties for whom they were intended." Another, in addition to his commendation, states that he seals his envelopes with wax, and suggests that it be required of all postmasters. We are aware that there is considerable negligence in sealing registered package envelopes; postmasters should not he satisfied with wettiog the mocilngs on the tongue of the envelope, hot should see that it adheres thoroughly over its whole surface. Were this done, opening the envelope surreptitiously would be almcet impossible. We would also recommend that the postmark be placed on the back of the package envelope (jost where the tongue enters the slit prepared for it), as well as on the usual place on the face of the envelope. While we thos commend the registration system, we would advise, for remitting money, that a preference be given to money orders, where they can he procured, and for large sums, bank checks are preferable to either money order or registration. Also, several communications on the prepayment of newspaper postage, one of which is accompanied with a blank receipt for postage on printed matter, which the writer had printed at his own expense, and asks if he will be allowed to charge the cost in his quarterly returns. We answer no; blanks are furnished hy the First Assistant Postmaster-General, and postmasters who desire others must have them printed for themselves.....Aoother inquires if he is right in sendiog certain letters to certain distributing offices. We can only reply, that letters required to be sent to a distributing office mns be sent to the distributing office through which they should first pass on the proper ronte to the place of their destination, unless the mailing office he a distributiog office. — Sec. 93, Reg. 1866....We have the past month rather above the usual number of "good words" from our sobscribers; one "intended to discontinne, but very soon found the U. S. MAIL was a necessity;" another, with a salary of only $5 75 for three months, "cannot spare the U. S. MAIL;" another is lost without the MAIL, and renews his subscription for a year, although he "expects to give np the post office at the close of the current quarter;" another would rather "do with less bread and butter than without the MAIL," and so on. In this connection we would say, that there is still a large number of our subscribers who have not remitted for renewal, though we know that they intend to do so. To them we say, stand not upon the order of your doing, hut do at once.

☞ We find hy our letters, that the use, by the larger post offices, of stamped envelopes for official correspondence, has given rise to a misapprehension of the late law respecting the franking privilege. The use of postage stamps or stamped envelopes to cover official correspondence is not a necessity hy law, but is for the convenience of the postmasters at such offices; for as franks most be written, the nnmber required would, in some offices, take the postmaster's whole time to furnish, and for this reason stamped envelopes are used. All communicatious on official bosincss between postmasters may pass free throngh the mails if franked with a written frank.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Business Hours for a Post Office.—F. R. P., P——, O.—The time which it is required a post office shall be kept open is during the usual hosiness hours of the place where located. As these hours are not alike in all places, every postmaster must judge for himself what hours will accommodate those within the delivery of his office.—Sec. 27, Reg. 1866.

Post Office Signs.—C. R. V., A——, N. H.—There is nothing in the laws or regulations respecting post office signs; but postmasters are expected to furnish their own signs and all other fixtures, except in certain cases a cheap plain desk is allowed.—Sec. 323, Reg. 1866.

Insufficient Prepayment of Postage.—M. McM., H——, N. C.—The law respecting forwarding insufficiently prepaid letters does not apply to such letters, as the person depositing them knows are insufficiently prepaid. Such letters should he returned to the writers, er sent to the Dead Letter Office, stamped "Held for Postage."

Writing in Circulars.—J. G. O., L——, Iowa.—Circulars cootaining any kind of writing, even the "iatrodnction of prices in pencil," are subject to letter postage, whether in sealed or unsealed envelopes.

Mail Train at Flag Stations.—R B., B——, Mo.—A postmaster cannot force a mail traia to stop at a flag station, if it is not in the schedule of the running time of the train.

Postal Laws and Regulations.—C. E. G., G——, Mass.—The latest edition of the postal laws and regulations will be furnished to yon on applicatica to the Postmaster-General, and charged in your account at $2 a copy

Wrapping Letters.—J. Y. F., F—— M——, Pa.—Postmasters are instructed to wrap letters, except those whose post offices are supplied wholly or in part by railway post offices; such are to be governed by instructions from the superintendent of the railway mail service. Sec. 88, Reg. 1866.

Forwarding Mail Matter.—B. H. L., O——, N. Y.—Mail matter should not be forwarded except at the request of some of the parties interested. In case, however, of a letter arriving at an office for a person who receives his mail matter at a neighboring office, if such letter is not called for withiu a reasonable time, it would he proper to write to the postmaster of the other office, and state that such a letter was waiting delivery, and ask him to inquire if it should he forwarded.

Stamp Duty on Quarterly Returns.—J. C., W——, Me.—A five-cent stamp must be affixed to the affidavit of the Postmaster which accompanies the Quarterly Returns.

Publishers' Exchanges.—J. F. M., S——, Va.—The privilege of exchanging free is confined to publishers, and exchanges not sent to the office of publication shonld be charged with postage. Sec. 214, Reg. 1866.

Franking under the New Law.—D. F. T., O——, N. H., and many others.—The new law, respecting franking, makes no change whatever in the privilege of franking, but simply requires that the frank he written by the person franking, and makes illegal the use of the fac simile stamp, which had become so common and so very much abused. The privilege is still the same, whether for mail matter sent by or to the person possessing it. We would here state, that the use of post-paid envelopes by many large offices, for official business, is not in pursuance of any requirement of the law, hut because the postmasters have not time to frank the large number of envelopes reqoired for their daily use. We cannot go further into the questions of some of our correspondents and tell them who have and who have not the franking privilege, but must refer them to chapter xv. of the Regulations. To the list of persoos mentioned there must he added the Commissioner of Education and the Congressional Printer. The printed copy of each copyright work required by law to be sent to the Librarian of Congress, may also be sent free, if indorsed "Copyright." The Internal Revenue Law also confers a limited franking privilege on assessors and collectors, and their respective assistants.

It is not "official business" for a postmaster to send to the Postmaster of a Money Order Office for a money order, and hence such business cannot be done under the franking privilege. Franked matter, when once delivered accordiog to its address, cannot be remailed, to the another person, under the same frank.

Newspapers.—E. E., S——, Pa. and W. K. D., S—— B——, Wis.—Papers that are refused, are not to be returned, nnless provision is made for the payment of the postage, hnt must be sold at the end of the quarter. You should, however, notify the publishers, according to sec. 392 of Reg. 1866. Your office being within eighty rods of the railroad station, the company is reqnired to deliver the mails to yoo. Sec. 471, Reg. 1866.....T. E. H., O——, Minn.—By sec. 3 of Law of July 27, 1868, postmasters are required to deliver from their offices, but not by carriers, weekly papers, properly folded and addressed to regular snbscribers, free of postage when deposited at the office nearest to the office of publication. .....J. W. S., M——, Mich.—Your question would puzzle Solomon. One half the paper you refer to is printed in Chicago, with stories, advertisements and other general matter, it is then sent to a town near yours where the other half is printed with local and county news, etc., and the paper published as a county paper. The law specifically provides that the paper shall be "printed and published" in the county. A strict construction of this law would seem to reqnire the payment of postage io the case you mention. The publisher had better lay the whole case before the Department.

Registration.—T. W. H., F——, Ind.—A dead registered letter, when sent to the Dead Letter office, should he registered. Such letters "must be carefully wrapped, addressed to the 'Third Assistant Postmaster General,' indorsed 'Dead Registered Letters,' and forwarded under cover (that is, in a registered package envelope), to the postmaster at Washington." Sec. 373, Reg. 1866.....H. H. P., C——, N. Y.—We think our article in the last MAIL on sections 7 and 18 of the Registration Regulatioos answers your question.....S. R. K., R——, Mich.—The receipts taken by postmasters for registered package envelopes, passing through the mails, should be kept on file at least two years, when they may he sold with other old post office accounts.....J. T. M., C——, Miss.—1. The numbering of registered package envelopes must commence anew, at the commencement of every quarter. Sec. 11, Rgs. Reg. 2. A postmaster who stops letters not addressed to his office and delivers them, unless addressed to a discontinued office, violates sec. 63, Reg. 1866, and should be reported to the Appointment Office.....P. M., B——, Mich.—A dead foreign registered letter should be treated the same as though it were domestic. See above and Sec. 373, Reg. 1866.....T. M. C., C——, Ga.—The latest Regulations were issued October 1, 1868. You should apply to the Third Assistant Postmaster General for a copy.

Postage.—M. E., M——, Pa.—The postage on a weekly paper to Europe is chargeable on each paper, according to the rate in the Foreign Postage Table: that is, there is no quarterly postage on regular newspapers to Europe, hnt each paper is charged as though it were transient. In most cases prepayment is compulsory. See "Miscellaneous Information" on the third page of the MAIL.....J. C. K., M——, Pa.—The fraction of a stamp has not a fractional value: in other words, one-half of a stamp is not worth for postage one-half of the whole stamp; consequently one two-cent stamp and half another are not worth three cents in payment of postage.....C. H. P., M——, Ill.—A postmaster is not required to select the route hy which to send a foreign letter, he can state the different rates and routes to the person mailing, and let him choose. Letters are sent by the Offices of Exchange, according to the postage paid.....R. A., M——, La.—The postage on regulnr papers, etc., is stated in chapter XX. of the Regulations of 1866. It would take too much of our space to publish the chapter.....W. M. R., S——, Ill.—See under tha head of Franking .....B. J. D., B——, Vt.—San Juan del Norte is now called Greytown; the rate of postage can be found in the Foreign Postage Table, under that name.

Several changes have been made in our Table of Foraign Postages in accordance with the official correspondence in another column.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is stated on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM GREAT BRITAIN.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Odiutz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tuitcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 3.)

5. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 8 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 8 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain any word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addressee of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana (or by American packet, leaving New York 23d each month), the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Prepayment compulsory.

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, and Belgian Mails.

Philadelphia and Chicago are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Baltimore and San Francisco offices of Exchange for British Mails only.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.) 30 "

For Tri-Weekly, " " 15 "

For Semi-Weekly, " " 10 "

For Weekly, " " 5 "

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.	6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz.	3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.	1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in their publications, bills and receipts for the same, free of postage. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

CIRCULARS, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Post Office Blanks.

The agency for supplying postmasters with blanks is located at Washington, D. C.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Mails are due at the New York Post Office.

PROSPECTUS OF

Frank Leslie's Publications.

Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

The aim of this paper is to furnish a pictorial history of current events. Between thirty and forty illustrations appear in every weekly number, including eight engravings of the pictorial spirit of the foreign press, events of national or local interest, railroad or steamboat accidents, amusing and thrilling incidents, comics, etc. The literary matter comprises, besides well-written editorials on the leading questions of the day, and descriptions of the engravings, a serial story of thrilling interest, entertaining narratives and tales, humorous anecdotes, choice poems, etc.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Chimney Corner.

A purely literary pictorial. Excluding events of the day, its aim, as its title indicates, is to furnish amusement for the leisure hour. Its contents consist principally of original stories by able writers—including a serial, accounts of remarkable adventures, biographical sketches of self-made men—with portraits, descriptions of manners and customs in remote countries, short poems, fairy stories, enigmas, conundrums, charades, etc. Illustrated with large and spirited engravings, of which there are from fifteen to twenty in each weekly number.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

The New World.

This handsome, large eight-paged weekly is addressed to all classes—to the young and the old, the lettered and the comparatively unlearned, the rich and the poor. Its columns are filled with serial and other literary matter, prepared by writers whose names are familiar to readers of romance, travel and discovery; students of science and admirers of poesy; and its pages are liberally enriched by the pencils of leading artists, to whom is intrusted the task of illustrating its stories; and papers upon topics of graver moment. THE NEW WORLD is particularly favored in the list of its contributors, two hundred of whom have engaged to write for it. Among these may be mentioned, Hon. E. George Squier, ex-Minister to Peru, whose researches in the wilds of Central and South America have greatly added to our knowledge of the ethnology and past civilization of the Western Hemisphere; Prof. A. C. Joy, lecturer on applied chemistry at Columbia College, New York; A. K. Gardner, M. D., Professor of Diseases of Women, and author whose works on Pathology have become text-books with the faculty; Professors Emery and Allen; William Ross Wallace, Edward Fawcett, Barry Gray, Mary J. Austin, Virginia F. Townsend, Captain Mayne Reid, Delia Maitland, M. A. Denison, and Nellie Ames.

Subscription price, $3 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustrirte Zeitung.

A pictorial newspaper in the German language, containing a large number of engravings illustrating events of the day, exciting and amusing incidents, adventures and manners and customs in all parts of the world, with a large amount of literary matter, including numerous interesting tales. This paper combines for the German reader the attractions presented in the illustrated Newspaper and the Chimney Corner.

Subscription price, $4 per year.

Frank Leslie's Illustracion Americana.

An illustrated paper in the Spanish language, with all the attractive features, pictorial and literary, that have made Frank Leslie's other publications so popular.

Subscription price in the United States, $12 currency.

Frank Leslie's Boys and Girls' Weekly.

One of the cheapest pictorial papers ever published. Intended for the amusement of youth of both sexes. The illustrations and literary matter are such as especially recommend themselves to the young. It contains, besides a continued story and well-written tales, accounts of wonderful adventure, descriptions and illustrations of foreign manners and customs, anecdotes and pictures of animals, familiar and funny fables, parlor magic, etc. From twenty to twenty-five engravings appear in each weekly issue.

Subscription price, $2 50 per year.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine.

The leading fashion periodical in America. Each monthly number contains a large colored plate of the latest fashions, from designs sent from Paris as soon as invented, which are thus published simultaneously in New York and Paris; also a four-page uncolored fashion plate, embracing the various leading styles. These are accompanied with full descriptions and explanations, with numerous other illustrations. Every number contains an original letter from Paris, describing the very latest modes, by a lady whose position gives her access to fashionable society. The literary portion of this magazine comprises a continued story, numerous interesting tales, poetry, anecdotes, etc. The whole profusely illustrated with fine engravings.

Subscription price, $3 50 per year.

The Young Lady's Budget.

Fashion, Fiction and Entertaining Knowledge. A monthly publication, of which the features are such as especially commend it to the favor of young ladies. A large proportion of its pages are devoted to Fashions, in which the newest styles are presented, fully illustrated with engravings and a beautiful colored Fashion Plate. A great variety of engraved patterns for netting, crotchet-work, needle-work, embroidery, etc., are also given. In each number appears a page or more of new and popular music, selected especially with a view to the tastes of young ladies.

Subscription price, $2 00 per year.

Frank Leslie's Pleasant Hours.

The cheapest periodical in the United States, containing eighty large octavo pages of letter-press, with from twenty to twenty-five illustrations besides two full-page engravings, on tinted paper, in each number. A continued story, and well-written tales and stories of adventure, with numerous anecdotes, descriptions of manners and customs, amusements for young people, etc., constitute the reading matter.

Terms of subscription, $1 50 per year.

a.—When the letter a is prefixed, the foreign postage (which in each case is 13 cents) is increased by an additional rate for every 7½ grammes (¼ oz.) or fraction thereof. The United States inland and Atlantic sea postage (which in each case is 10 cents the single rate) is increased by an additional rate for every 15 grammes (½ oz.) or fraction thereof.

b.—Where the letter b is prefixed, an additional rate is to be added to the foreign portion of the postage for each 4 ounces or fraction thereof, if the newspaper exceeds 4 ounces in weight. The foreign postage, in each case, is ascertained by deducting from the amount set down the sum of 3 cents, which is the United States portion of the postage on a single newspaper, regardless of weight. In all other cases the postage is for each newspaper without regard to its weight when sent to British mail.

c.—The book and pattern post to Egypt via British mail extends only to Alexandria

VOL. IX., NO. 9. NEW YORK, JUNE, 1869. WHOLE NO. 105.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, May, 1869.

In plying my vocation as a general observationist, curiosity prompted me to visit, during the last month, an Alpine village in a remote part of one of the Middle States. To reach the locality by vehicular conveyance was entirely out of the question, and my object, therefore, could only be accomplished by pedestrian or equestrian means. Both were objectionable, the first on account of my obesity and brevity of stretch, and the other from a constitutional horror of being at the mercy of a four-footed brute with the probable disposition and positive power of incontinently unseating his rider by a sudden elevation of of his fore or after quarters, or by an unexpected shy, or forward plunge, against which there is no protection for a freshman in equine exercises. In addition to this, the route lay up along the side of a steep mountain, and yawning gulfs and frightful precipices were too numerous to mention, as I have been informed by one who had "been there." But I was determined to go, and leaving the railway at the station near where I was to enter the bowels of the land, I was rowed over the river by a stalwart Indian, and found myself at the starting point. It was a wild region, and as gloomy as misanthropy could desire. The only building within sight was a tenantless, antiquated, dilapidated saw-mill, in the midst of a swampy clearing, from which protruded numberless grim and black-looking hemlock stumps, while all around on the hill-sides great towering trees, some with naked branches, and some clad in sombre foliage, seemed to look down like stricken mourners upon their mutilated brethren below. My ferryman, after pointing silently in the direction which I was to go, went back and left me alone. Following a rude road for about a half mile up a gloomy glen, it turned abruptly into a pretty little valley hidden between the hills, which bore evidence of careful cultivation, and revealed a little hamlet of cosy farm-houses and capacious barns indicative of thrift and comfort. Indeed, the transition was so sudden from the dreary solitude I just left to this enchanting little landscape in the mountain's lap, that it almost seemed like an act of scene-shifting. My time was too limited to indulge my surprise and delight in apostrophizing this level spot, and I hurried on to where I saw humanity plowing and planting. Telling my business, and making my wishes known, I was furnished with a meek and gentle-looking horse, and supplied with the proper directions to guide me to my destination. It was a toilsome job for the poor animal to struggle up the apparently never-ending ascent with me upon his back; but after some weary hours we reached the summit, and both of us felt glad, at least I did. A spire in the distance indicated my objective point, and after a brief breathing-spell we moved on, and soon reached the end of our journey out. Proceeding at once to the transaction of the business upon which I had come, and having ordered the "hostler to provender my quadruped, while I discussed my chop," I was enabled to prepare to return about five o'clock in the afternoon. It was intimated to me that a thunder-storm was brewing, and I had better wait until it was over, as thunder-storms in the mountains thereabout were something more than small showers, but I was not to be persuaded; start I would and start I did, and my horse having been regaled with a square meal of oats, and probably appreciating my kindness in catering for him, moved off with alacrity, and we soon reached the brow of the mountain down which we plunged.

The sky certainly wore a black-browed appearance, and the growing twilight seemed decidedly premature, nevertheless onward and downward we went, and the last vestige almost of daylight was left behind I confess to a little trepidation, and was almost inclined to turn back. On I went, however, the gloom becoming more palpable and the way more obscure; soon we came to the junction of two roads, between which I could not discriminate, but trusting to the sagacity of my horse, I allowed him to choose, and took it for granted that it was all right. Just at this moment a thunder-burst, unannounced by any preliminary growls, crashed against the hill-side, and its echoes ricochetted down the steep declivity until they seemed to bury themselves in the earth's centre. This acted as a signal-gun to wake the artillery of the skies. Peal after peal broke overhead and all around; thick night, in its most funereal blackness, shrouded everything in impenetrable obscurity; forked flames flashed a lurid glare on the surroundings, giving us a momentary view of the road and then subsided into deeper gloom, leaving me half blind and wholly bewildered: and to add to the horrors of the time the rain began to pour down in a deluge, and soon the roaring and rushing of waters were added to the terrifying incidents of the occasion. Perfectly unprotected from the fearful, pitiless storm, we moved slowly along, the poor animal under me cautiously feeling his way, and I, in such a state of functional desuetude as to deprive me of wish or will, swayed to his every motion—a false step, a slight stumble or a sudden step would have dropped me from the saddle—down, down, heaven knows how far, without an effort to save myself, so completely chilled and helpless I appeared to be.

A flash of lightning, more vivid than any which preceded it, woke me from the apathy which had taken possession of me and revealed to me that we had reached the foot of the mountain, and for a brief instant showed the roadway in front. Suddenly my horse stopped, but only for a moment, and then without any urging from me walked on. Presently I heard his hoofs splashing in the water, and I tried to remember where we were; but I could not recollect that any stream, large or small, crossed our way as we came out. Then it occurred to me that the swollen streams from the mountains had overflowed their boundaries, and had inundated the lowlands. All at once I felt the horse sink under me, and now I perceived he was swimming. Merciful powers! where was I? The darkness was so profound that I could not see an inch from my nose, and my only hope now was in the struggling animal under me. Oh! what a state of suspense I was in! A dozen deaths were crowded in the minutes passed there—though each minute seemed an hour. On we went, but very soon I perceived that the strength of the poor beast was fast becoming exhausted; his breathing was labored, and he began to tremble violently. A crushing sense of the fearful situation burst on me, and I commenced to despair. Hitherto I seemed to be dazed or indifferent, but now, shrouded in gloom, out, far out, on some unknown water, with no hope of help to buoy me up—and with the maddening thought that I should die and leave no sign—oh! it was bitter to think of it! In my extremity I spoke encouragingly to the faithful, failing animal beneath me—the first words I had uttered for hours—and it seemed to thrill and strengthen him. He appeared to acquire new vigor, and, raising his head, he gave a snort that woke up the all-pervading quiet, and the next moment I felt his forefeet strike terra firma.

I knew it to be a sloping bank or a hill-side. I tried to urge him forward, but he would go no further; so seizing the saddle with both hands, I half dismounted and felt carefully round for a resting-place for the sole of my foot before I let go above. Finding a solid foundation, I got down; but I was so stiff and benumbed that I should have fallen into the water had I not providentially caught hold of a small tree and saved myself. The storm had nearly subsided, but it was still pitch dark. My horse stood as motionless as a statue, and after putting myself in a position of comparative ease I followed his example—fearful that if I stirred, my support would give way and I should be sent flying in some direction other than upward. It seemed an age since I had reached the spot, and hope, faith and patience were beginning to weaken materially in their sustaining efforts, when, to my great joy, I noticed a small light in the distance, which, from its oscillating, I judged to be an approaching lantern, and very soon its gleams, reflected upon the water in a straight line, showed that the good genius who was carrying it was coming directly toward me. I felt sanguine of relief, and although the light was still some way off, I could wait—when, O horror! it was suddenly extinguished.

Finding there was no time to lose now, I shouted "Hallo!" at the top of my voice, and waited a little for a response, but none came. Again I opened my lung valves, and with a strain that was bound to be heard or crack the instrument, I gave out a prolonged "Hullo-o-o-o!" and like an echo it returned with the addition—"Who in thunder are you, and where are you?" It was easy to tell who I was, but where I was was more difficult, because I did not know myself. In the briefest manner, however, I bellowed back the situation of things; and was requested to "hold on" a minute and he would bring a boat over. I did hold on literally and figuratively, but it was certainly the longest minute that I ever experienced. But I did not care, I was so overjoyed at the prospect of being saved. At last I saw a light coming, and presently the splash of oars indicated that aid was at hand; and, as the boat drew near the shore, the light in the bow showed that we had landed on a steep hill-side, and discovered my horse standing in an almost perpendicular position and his rider on a projecting rock firmly grasping a laurel bush, and just then the happiest man alive.

"My God! how did you get there?" was the first sally from the boatman—"and a horse, too." I informed him as near as I could, stating that I did not notice this body of water as I went out, and probably had got into a wrong road returning. He told me that was the case, and that he had crossed a mill-pond at least a quarter of a mile wide, through which there was a very narrow winding channel with depth enough to float a ship, and that the horse must have followed it, for had he gone a yard out of the way he would have sunk in the mud deep enough to bury himself and me and a good-sized tree on top of us; and if he did follow the channel he must have swum nearly a mile.

How much I was indebted to the sagacious animal I hardly knew, for I was not certain but that he might have taken some safer route; but I learned next day that the heavy rains had submerged all the roads round there, and he had probably mistaken the way across the water as the nearest way home, until he struck the mill-pond channel, and had instinct enough to follow it until he brought up on land. Having taken a seat in the boat, and being informed that the horse—the saddle and bridle being removed—would be left behind till morning, unless he took to the water again on his own motion, I was rowed back to the opposite shore and conducted by my rescuer to his house, which, to my amazement and delight, was one of the most inviting, cheerful and hospitable dwellings I had ever sojourned in. My host was a different man, too, at home, from what he appeared to be in the boat. He was courteous and intelligent, and took every pains to consult my comfort. Dry garments substituted for wet ones, and a princely supper, had such recuperating effect upon me that I really believe I never felt so well in my life, and the delightful evening spent with Mr. Amicus' family, consisting of himself, his wife (an amiable lady) and two very pretty and accomplished daughters, will never be forgotten. The trying circumstances which had conjoined to make me a partaker of this unexpected hospitality made me as well a fit subject for sympathy, and I submitted—for who could have resisted, placed as I was? The fact is my joy was unconfined, if I did have Mr. Amicus' clothes on, which were a shade too tight for me, particularly about the waist, and rather long in the arms and legs.

After the ladies had retired pipes were introduced, and so was another gentleman, who was introduced to me as the brother of my entertainer, who was there temporarily on a visit. He resides at Hobson's Choice, and had recently been appointed postmaster there; and as he expected to confine himself closely to the duties of his office, he had concluded to take a few days to visit his relatives prior to his entrance into official life, for he knew not when he might be able to do so again. He seemed to be a very worthy gentleman, and expressed a good deal of solicitude at the responsibility he was about to assume, and which he appeared to desire to talk of in preference to anything else. After a while we were left alone—as neither of us felt like retiring, although it was growing late—and then, as some return for his brother's kindness, I told him I would give him my ideas of the position he was to fill, the duties he was to perform, and if they were of any use he was welcome to them. He said he wished I would, and putting fresh charges in our pipes, I said: "The selection of a man or woman for postmaster in a large or small office should always be based on the eternal fitness of things. Intelligence is as requisite in one office as in the other—the larger offices, of course, afford greater scope for executive capacity and require larger discretionary powers to decide on questions of present local import; but functionaries in all offices should be learned enough to be entirely conversant with postal jurisprudence, for it is so simple 'that he who runs may read.' The laws and regulations are written in plain common-sense English, which any schoolboy can read and understand, and a neglect to become familiar with them should not be attributed to want of ability to comprehend them. Therefore, the first thing you do, familiarize yourself with the Postal Laws and Regulations—and subscribe for the UNITED STATES MAIL.

"Put your office in order and keep it so; inherit no rubbish, and clean out all unsightly things. Inculcate the doctrine that 'cleanliness is godliness,' and practice what you preach. Establish rules for the government of your office, neither too rigid nor too lax, but as far as they go, positive, irrevocable and to the purpose; and under no circumstances permit carelessness to become a system.

"Exclude from the working departments of your office every unauthorized person; make no distinction; you will not be blamed for their sins, and you will spare yourself the mortification of seeing this favored class arrayed against you every time a complaint is made against your office.

"Make yourself entirely familiar with the duties of your office, and do not show your weakness by having to apply to your clerks for information in regard thereto—it neutralizes your prestige. Curb your own and the curiosity of your clerks in regard to letters to and from your office; this is a disease, and generally comes on in a mild form, but very frequently becomes incurable and leads to fatal consequences.

"Prohibit smoking during business hours, and rebuke all improper language and impertinent remarks to any one calling for letters; there may be unintended provocation, but there can be no excuse for bitter answers or sulky replies. Don't be afraid to correct irregularities and abuses of the mail service within your jurisdiction, although it should be outside of your office, for fear of hurting the feelings of a stage-driver or railway employé, or even if it should result in your being refused a 'free pass' on the road.

"See that your mail-bags are emptied entirely of their contents before they are thrown aside, and do not let an ounce of old paper leave your office until it is carefully examined, to see if some letters have not accidentally been left among it; and by all means have it bagged ready for waste-paper buyers, and do not allow them to help themselves, as is done in some shamefully-managed offices. Many letters are, no doubt, lost in this way. Ascertain what blanks you need, and order all you have not got, and when you have a full supply, have a place for everything and everything for a place.

"See that every record which is to be kept for reference or inspection is promptly written up to current dates, and by no means allow any matter of mail to pass from, into or through your office without the prompt and proper notice being taken of it; and be sure and see that all letters are skilfully and properly mailed and sent away, and the stamps cancelled according to the strict letter of the instructions.

"See that mis-sent letters are not allowed to lie over, forwarded letters delayed, and dead letters kept beyond the time indicated for their return.

"See that letters delivered to individuals and opened by mistake are properly indorsed by the individuals who open them.

"Discountenance the mutilation of newspaper and magazine wrappers when it is unnecessary, and unqualifiedly prohibit the taking of printed matter of any kind from wrappers for reading purposes.

"Frown down all attempts of sharps and swindlers to use your office to prey upon the unwary, and strive to make all the credulous individuals in your delivery swindle-proof.

Dismiss every clerk you find patronizing dealers in fancy pictures and literature and lottery swindles. These things create a want of money, and dishonesty suggests the way to get it. Prompt action will save you from trouble, and may save the clerk from something worse. In fine," said I, "follow the teachings of the Department first implicitly, and then bring your judgment, intelligence, progressive knowledge and authority to bear, and you'll find that you have not got so much of a task on your hands as you suppose, but that it will be a source of gratification to you and the community you serve." Amicus thanked me, and said I seemed to know a good deal about it, and asked me if I had ever been a postmaster. I told him I had not, but that anybody could learn all I had told him and a good deal more by studying the books and peeping into post offices occasionally. I told him I might think of something else in the morning, and, bidding each other good-night, we went to bed.

I fear the length of this epistle will try your patience; but if there is no room in the paper there is in the waste-paper barrel—choose ye!

COMMUNICATIONS.

BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND LEAVENWORTH.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL: Having been a reader of your paper for the last two years, I have noticed almost everything published in the same during the time, and never having seen anything from this central part of the United States, I wish to occupy a small space in one of your columns. I have been engaged in a post office which might be called a separating office for several years, and have had ample opportunity of seeing mail matter in all its various shapes, styles and conditions. I noticed F. E. H.'s remarks in his letter to the MAIL, and agree with him in what he says concerning the carelessness of some P. M's in putting up mail matter for the D. P. O's. I think we must take it for granted, that there are some postmasters that don't know what a D. P. O is for, and don't know which direction their proper D P. O's are from them; and as to making up mail for them properly, they don't pretend to do such a thing. For instance, we receive the largest sized bags full of papers, pamphlets, etc., and on opening them find papers, etc., for all parts of the world, the most of which should have been sent direct to a D. P. O., instead of to us. I hope we may succeed in inducing those careless postmasters to do their business up in better style. I think and know their knowledge and practice would be greatly improved if they were to subscribe for the U. S. MAIL, and read it carefully for a year. They could not, or would not, do without it if they would get in the habit of reading and referring to it; for a great deal of valuable information I find in each number, which is not in the P. O. Regulations.

I should judge there are a great many such P. M's as MONS. TONSON describes Majordomo Dardledot to be, from the appearance of some of the mail and the manner in which the stamps are canceled and letters postmarked and tied up. I seldom find them put up, wrapped and mailed as chapter X., of Reg. of 1866, directs.

As to the prepayment of postage, I am one more that would encourage the same. I say, prepay everything that passes through the mails. I think the Department would do better if the rate was reduced one-third. I don't say this because I judge others by myself in collecting three and five cent bills; for as to our paper account, I think it will compare with any third-class office in the country. It was between $75 and $100 for the quarter ending March 31, 1869. If they can beat that, I would like to hear from them. I hope it will not be long until the MAIL will be thought as much of by all P. M's as it is by myself.

EDITOR U. S. MAIL: I notice by the MAIL that a great many postmasters have trouble in collecting newspaper postage. Now, I would like to see a law passed to have the postage paid at the mailing office; but as long as it is not so I believe every postmaster may collect his postage without trouble, if he will make the effort. My office is a country office, and I will give you my experience in collecting newspaper postage. Under the old law, I lost about one-fourth of the postage, but when the new law came in force I adopted the following plan: I made out my bills for postage and box-rents, and distributed them in the boxes one week before they were due. I then wrote out a copy of the oath attached to the account current, together with a notice that I should not give out any mail matter under any circumstances until the postage was paid in advance. There were a few grumblers at first, but after one or two quarters it worked like a charm; and now they all expect it as much as they expect to pay for their papers. I put them out a week in advance, so that they can see them and be prepared the next week. Sometimes, in the January quarter, I have to make out some new bills, owing to changes, etc., but what I used to lose will doubly pay for the time and expense in making them. I would recommend this plan to all postmasters, and if they follow it strictly it will give affront to no man whose friendship is worth keeping.

C——, Iowa, April 15, 1869.

Editor U. S. Mail:

I notice in your April No. a communication berating postmasters for carelessness in not delivering foreign letters to their addresses promptly. I was happy to see that you came to our rescue in your remarks on the same. While I do not doubt that there are cases of negligence on the part of postmasters in this regard, I apprehend that the gist of the matter lies in the illegible address or misdirection of the letters, as you observe. The great bulk of our foreign letters, especially out here in the West, come from the lower or uneducated and illiterate classes, and it is sometimes impossible even for their own countrymen to decipher the address. My rule is when I have a foreign letter that I cannot "translate" to show it to persons of the same nativity until I can find one that can solve the mystery. It is thus very seldom that I have to send them to the Dead Letter Office.

While in this connection I cannot withhold saying that these evils, and numberless others, would be immeasurably mitigated by the abolition of "rotation in office" as applied to postmasters. If there is any position in the world, the recipient of which should have a "life lease" of, it is pre-eminently the postmaster. With close application the diligent postmaster may become tolerably well posted in all the duties of his office, in his term of from one to four years practice of his "profession" and then, just as he feels himself fitted to do justice to himself and the Department, a new administration is inaugurated and, presto, change! In the "twinkling of an eye" he finds himself disrobed of his "brief authority" and "Othello's occupation's gone." In stalks the "coming man" as verdant in postal matters as the forests is leafy June. But no matter, his great-grandfather's uncle, had, sometime down the vista of the past, been acquainted with some of the predecessors of the "powers that be;" and, by way of remembrance, he is invested with the panoply of Uncle Sam's Agent at the "corners," which he wears under great tribulation till he in turn is relieved of command. To-day there are from five to one hundred hungry bangers on striving with might and main for every post office in the land, an matter if the salary is insufficient to keep soul and body together three months out of the twelve.

When our public functionaries get to see that the life or death of our postal system depends on retaining good, efficient postmasters during life or good behavior, and make no removal except for cause, then shall our system become self-sustaining, and an honor to our age and people throughout the nations of the earth.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, May 20, 1869.

SIR—I have to inform you that Book-Packets may now be forwarded from the United States to places in the United States of Colombia upon prepayment of a postage charge of 10 cents per each four ounces or fraction thereof; and I have, therefore, to request that you will please make the necessary insertion in the next issue of the U. S. MAIL.

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN, Supt. Foreign Mails.
J. GAYLER, Esq., Editor "U. S. Mail."

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, June 1, 1869.

SIR—In accordance with information received from the General Post Office of the North German Union, the rates of postage chargeable upon printed matter and samples of merchandise forwarded to Moldavia and Wallachia, via the North German mails, have been reduced to the following amounts, viz

Upon newspapers via closed mail through England, 7 cents per each four ounces or fraction of four ounces; and by the direct mail to Bremen or Hamburg, 6 cents per each four ounces or under; prepayment compulsory.

Upon book packets and samples of merchandise by closed mail through England, 11 cents for each four ounces or fraction of four ounces; and in the direct mail to Bremen or Hamburg, 9 cents for each four ounces or fraction of four ounces; prepayment compulsory.

You will, therefore, please insert the above rates in the next issue of the "UNITED STATES MAIL" in lieu of those now published therein, as being the amounts of postage chargeable upon printed matter and samples from the United States to Moldavia and Wallachia (Roumania) via North Germany.

No change has been made in the rates of postage or conditions of prepayment upon letters from the United States for the places in question via the North German Union.

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Supt. Foreign Mails.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, June 2, 1869.

SIR—I have to request that you will please publish the following notice in the next number of the U. S. MAIL, for the information of postmasters and the public.

Very respectfully,
JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN.
Superintendent.
J. GAYLER, Esq.,
Editor U. S. "Mail"

Book-packets INCLUDING PRINTED MATTER OF ALL KINDS) admitted into the mails exchanged with the Colony of Hong-Kong and dependent Chinese ports.

An arrangement has been concluded with the General Post Office of the Colony of Hong-Kong (China) for an exchange of book packets including pamphlets, printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.) in the mails transmitted via San Francisco, by means of the direct line of U. S. Mail Packets plying between that port and Hong Kong, China, at the following rates of postage, viz.:

Book-packets posted in the United States and addressed to Hong-Kong, or the dependent Chinese ports of Canton, Swatow, Amoy and Foochow, are subject to a U. S. postage of ten cents for each weight of four ounces or fraction of four ounces, prepayment required, which pays the full postage to destination.

Book-packets posted in Hong-Kong and dependent Chinese ports, and addressed to the United States, are in like manner required to be fully prepaid at the place of mailing in China, at the rate of six cents per each weight of four ounces or fraction of four ounces, and are to be delivered at the office of destination in the United States free of charge.

The regulations applicable to book-packets exchanged in the mails between the United States and Hong-Kong and dependent Chinese ports are the same as those already in operation between the United States and Great Britain.

This arrangement goes into effect immediately.

Post-Office Complaints.

There is a new word needed in our language—and we hope the next edition of "Webcester's Unabridged" will supply it—expressive of the frantic desire to 'rush into print" which possesses the souls of a large portion of our population. "Cacoethes scribendi" is all very fine when one wants to display his classical acquirements; but they had no newspapers when that term first came into use, and the English equivalent fails to express the idea. "Typomania" would be a better name for the malady we refer to, and we respectfully submit it for the consideration of the editor of the Dictionary above named. We do not propose to write an essay on the subject, but only to refer briefly to that class of sufferers who are moved, while under the influence of this mania, to write communications to the newspapers concerning their postal grievances. A strongly marked case of the kind appeared lately in the columns of the New York Evening Post. It appears that a short time since one of the lamp-post letter boxes in that city was accidentally broken down and was not immediately replaced by a new one. A "typomaniac" doing business in the vicinity at once improved the occasion to write a letter to the Post (possibly on account of some confusion of ideas connecting in his mind the post-office, the lamp-post and the Evening ditto), complaining of the inconvenience. The Post printed the letter, and doubtless its writer's organ of self-esteem has since become abnormally developed in consequence. If the postmaster at New York reads the Post he may have read the letter and have given the matter attention. To be sure, if the letter had been addressed to him, its ostensible object would have been likely to be more readily attained—only Mr. Typomaniac would have been deprived of the intoxicating joy of seeing his grievance displayed in "glorified type."

In that case, however, the disease "ran itself out" harmlessly; but there have been some instances in which its effects have been more serious. More than once we have known the plans of officers of this Department who were seeking to discover the cause of postal irregularities, to be defeated by the cackling in the newspapers of some goose, who thereby put the author of the troubles on his guard, and postponed, if not altogether prevented, his detection.

If a citizen conceives that he has suffered inconvenience, loss or wrong at the hands of post-office officials—whether through their incompetency, neglect or dishonesty—common sense should prompt him to adopt the same course which he would take if a debtor had defrauded him, his grocer's clerk overcharged him, or the teller of his bank insulted him, viz.: apply for relief to those whose business it is to investigate the facts and furnish a remedy. We do not mean to say that in some cases an exposure through the press would not be appropriate and wholesome for any negligent or incompetent public official; but in no case does it appear to us to be just and sensible to begin by a howl in the newspapers.

NO REVENUE STAMPS ON QUARTERLY RETURNS.—In our "Answers to Correspondents" last month, we erroneously stated that a five-cent revenue stamp must be affixed to the affidavit of a postmaster, which accompanies his quarterly returns. Such a stump was formerly required, but is not now. If any of our subscribers have been led into using an unnecessary stamp by our mistake, we have no doubt the Secretary of the Treasury will accept their apologies if they will send him an explanation of the circumstances.

Change at the Post Office Department.

General W. H. H. Terrell has been appointed Third Assistant Postmaster-General in place of Hon. A. N. Zevely.

A SHOT.—During a call at the Registry Department of the New York office we were shown by a clerk, who was making up registered matter for foreign countries, quite a number of letters which were not postmarked. "I wish," said he, "you would give these fellows a shot," and we will. As the letter bill for foreign countries must contain the names of the original mailing offices of the letters as well as the addressees, it will easily be perceived that this negligent practice of not postmarking letters most give a great deal of trouble that would not be necessary if the letters were properly postmarked. There is no excuse for this negligence, for "circular postmarking stamps are now furnished to ALL post offices, and postmasters not now furnished should at once apply for such stamps to the First Assistant Postmaster-General."

In any of these negligent postmasters are subscribers to the MAIL, we hope this shot will prove to be a "dead shot." But if it should not hit any subscribers, and we surmise it will not, let them shoot it further at some brother postmasters, not subscribers, until it strikes with telling effect.

Sundry Post Office Matters.

Registration is again the subject of a part of our general correspondence, the principal communication on which refers to delay in the transmission of registered package envelopes. Our correspondent says, "In my experience they are sometimes four or five days behind letters of advice mailed the same day," and we say—certainly, it is this very delay that constitutes their safety, for while ordinary letters should be hurried along by often closely-connecting schedule times, registered package envelopes must be delayed, if necessary, in order that accounts may be taken of them, or clerks or route agents having them in charge must retain them until they can be placed in the personal charge of other clerks or route agents. Celerity is not so much the object as security, in forwarding registered letters. To the same correspondent we would say that no discount is allowed to postmasters on the sale of stamps; it is only in a few of our large cities that certain authorized agents are appointed, who are allowed two per cent. discount..... We are asked to suggest the color of the ink that will most effectually cancel the new stamps. Section 176, Regulations of 1866, provides for the use of black printer's ink, which is as good a substance as can be used. Have a good ink pad, and ink it "just enough," then with a clean defacer and a quick, square, accurate stroke, you will effectually cancel all the stamps you strike..... A suggestion, modestly made, that we designate changes in our Foreign Postage Table by a mark in the margin, we could not follow even if we were so inclined; but there is no necessity for such a mark, the caution at the head of the Table, to "always consult the latest issue," if heeded, will prevent any mistakes in rating postage, and if not heeded, and a former "issue" is consulted, the marks in the latest would be of no use..... A friend encloses us a slip from a newspaper, wherein it is stated that a female postmaster has taken unto herself (we were going to say a rib, but that would be a sort of bull, so we say) a master, she's "gone and got married;" and that the husband is anxious to know if he has married into the post office, or married the post office out of the family. That's it—just the latter; the Post-Office Department is a little jealous concerning its female postmasters, and allows of no other master than itself. In the words of an old song it says, "Fair one, choose between the two." The lady above named having chosen, will have to give up the post office..... In reply to one who asks if the Department is not bound to notify a postmaster before removing him, we say no, nor to return his bond.... Kind words still flow in upon us, and though we know the MAIL is invaluable to postmasters, we must confess when a subscriber sends kindly greeting, and says he must have the MAIL though his salary is only eight dollars a year, we are inclined to think it indispensable as well as invaluable. Another says: "You may hook me as a subscriber while I live; shall want it long after I die officially, for my grandchildren to read to me." .....Another returns the bill for renewal sent to him, indorsed "Not wanted"—but that is not on the complimentary side of the account. Well, no matter, we receive so very few of such that we can well afford to let this one remain in the good company it finds itself, ourselves wondering what manner of postmaster he is, and what manner of office he keeps, who can return our bill for renewal endorsed "Not wanted." We venture to hint that the people dependent on his office for mail facilities do not agree with him.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Carrying the Mail between a Post Office and Railroad Station.—A. E. P., C——, N. Y.—A postmaster is not prohibited carrying the mails between a post office and a railroad station, but he cannot draw pay for such service. Sec. 471, Reg. 1866.

Letters Mailed on the Cars at a Railroad Station.—H. O. C., R——, N. Y.—If there is not a post office within two miles of a railroad station, the route agent in attendance is obliged to receive and forward letters handed to him, provided they are duly prepaid by stamps. He is also required to receive all such letters written after the mail is closed, without regard to the distance of the P. O. from the station. Sec. 470, Reg. 1866.

Newsdealers Sending Papers, etc.—W. B., C——, Or.—A newsdealer has the same privilege as a publisher; he may send to regular subscribers, without prepaying postage, with certain provisions as stated in Sec. 225, Reg. 1866.

Unpaid Letters, Unaccompanied by Post Bills.—Z. N., C——, Mass.—Post bills should accompany all unpaid letters sent for delivery; and if such letters are received without post bills, and the charges marked on them so blurred as not to be legible, a postmaster should use his judgment in charging postage. If a domestic letter, charge the legal rate of three cents a half ounce; if foreign, charge according to the probable rate in the Foreign Postage Table of this MAIL.

Forwarding Letters.—G. L. R, R——, Me.—A letter once delivered to any one authorized to receive it, cannot be forwarded without additional postage. To be forwarded free, the letter must not have been out of the custody of the Post Office.

Route Agents Paying Board on Steamboats.—J. J. M., C——, O.—Route agents on steamboats are not entitled to their board free—nothing but their passage and a room to assort the mails, and that only while on duty.

Possession of Boxes, Papers, Books, etc.—M. L. B., G—— L——, O.—You cannot get back the purchase-money for boxes, unless you sell them to your successor, but you get the rents in your salary. Study Chapter XLII., Regulations of 1866..... All the property of the Post-Office Department in your office should be turned over to you by your predecessor, for which you should give receipts, according to Chapter III.; his failure to do so is an offence for which he can be prosecuted.

Notice to Publisher.—E. S. M., W—— R——, N. Y.—Notices to publishers should be placed in the green envelopes furnished for that purpose by the Department, this printed part on which shows how they are to be forwarded. If you have none of these, inclose the notices in common envelopes; direct them to the postmasters, indorse them, For Publisher of ——, naming the publication; frank them with your written frank, and they may pass free through the mails. Sec. 392, Reg. 1866.

Official Envelopes.—J. Y. F., F—— M——, Pa.—The Third Assistant Postmaster-General furnishes various styles of official envelopes, according to the class of offices. You can learn by addressing him what you are entitled to.

Post-Office Hours.—J. B. B., U—— S——, N. Y.—Section 27 of Regulations, 1866, fixes the post-office hours. Of course we are unable to give an opinion in individual cases, as the conveniences of the public in one place might be a great deal of inconvenience in another.

List of Post-Office Blanks.—E. E. J., U—— M——, Wis.—It would take too much of our space to publish a list of all the blanks used by the Post-Office Department—a great many of them are not used in the smaller offices. The accounts for the quarterly returns, for which blanks are needed, may be found named in Chapter XXVIII, Regulations of 1866, except that the account of unpaid letters sent, and the account of registered letters received and sent, are no longer kept, having been discontinued since the regulations were issued. Besides the blanks for the quarterly returns, the First Assistant Postmaster-General furnishes a number, some of which are used in small offices. You can get a list of these blanks by writing to that officer for it. Ask for Form No. 39.

Money-Order Office.—W. F. D., N—— M——, Ind.—If you wish to have your office made a money-order office, write to the Superintendent of the Money-Order Department, Washington, D. C., stating distinctly the reasons why it should be done. He will consider the matter, and grant or refuse your request as may seem the more proper.

Postmasters' Assistants.—L. B. S., P——, N. Y.—The appointment of a clerk or clerks in a post office, continues good as long as they are employed in the office, whether there is a change of postmasters or not. If an incoming postmaster wishes to retain the services of clerks employed by his predecessor, no new appointment or oath is necessary, but if any are employed not already sworn into the service, they should take the prescribed oath before entering on their duties.

Blank for the General Account.—J. D., B——, O.—The blank for the general account is furnished by the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post-Office Department.

Detaining Mail Matter for Postage Previously Due, etc.—S. F., H——, Ky.—1. There should be no credit for postage at a post office; a postmaster who gives credit violates his oath; but if he does trust for postage, he cannot detain matter afterwards received until he is paid; it he cannot collect the amount due, his only way is to pay it himself and become a "wiser and a better man," and strictly adhere to the requirements of Section 152, Regulations of 1866. 2. For a reply to your question respecting registered package envelopes, see below. 3. The postage on drop-letters where free delivery is not established, is one cent the half ounce. Sec. 261, Laws 1866.

Error in Report of Box-Rents.—G. W. G, G—— L——, Mich.—Your question is not clear to us. It is generally difficult, and often impossible for us to give an opinion on the accounts of an individual office.

Registration.—J. B. P., P——, Iowa.—The name of the office to which you send the letter, is the one to enter in the registered letter bill; if you send the letter to a distributing office for distribution, enter only the name of that distributing office, if you send the letter direct, then enter the name of that office. Sec. 10, Reg'n Reg. 1868.... C. L. S., W—— C——, N. J.—The Account of Registered Letters in Transit is to be kept—and faithfully and accurately kept—notwithstanding the receipts from office to office. See "Getting Careless," an editorial in our April number. .....J. R. L., P——, N. J.—1. The numbering anew of registered letters should not necessarily commence with the time a postmaster takes charge of an office. The regular time is the commencement of a quarter, and there are no exceptions. 2. A registry fee, but no postage, is required on a package of mutilated currency to the Treasurer of the United States.... D. F., B—— S——, O—It is not contrary to the regulations for a postmaster, at the request of a friend, to inclose money in and register a letter. He may do the whole business, receive the money, write the letter, address and register it, if he pleases, but we think it better that a postmaster should confine himself exclusively to his official duties in such matters, for in the event—improbable though it be—of a loss, or the denial of the receipt of the money with the letter, we should prefer knowing nothing of it but as an officer of the Post-Office Department. See notes on page 6, Reg'n Reg., 1868.... B. W., S—— V——, Pa.—Write to the Contract office for the name and address of the Special Agent, to whom you should report losses. Every postmaster should inform himself on this point .....R. B. H., F—— C——, N. M.—1. Registered letters as well as registered package envelopes, are numbered consecutively, 1, 2, 3, etc., beginning with each quarter. 2. Postmasters must frank by their written signatures. 3. See below. 4. The red envelopes—not the red-striped registered package envelopes—covering registered business should be sent, tied up, as ordinary letters..... H. M. H., P—— P——, Mont.—The wording of Section 8, Reg'n Reg., 1868, is, "on domestic letters to any part of the United States," etc., as in other places in the Section mention is made of letters and packets, it follows that of domestic mail matter, only letters can be registered to places in the United States..... S. F., H——, Ky.—The registered package envelopes that are not received at an office with registered letters are to be kept in the office at least six months. (Sec. 12, Reg'n Reg., 1868). You doubtless confound the used envelopes referred to by this section, and which were received from other offices, with those "spoiled by misdirection, or otherwise rendered unfit for use," at the mailing office, referred to in Section 7.

Postage.—R. B. H., F—— C——, N. M.—An insufficiently prepaid package, bearing no evidence of having been sufficiently prepaid, should be charged at the delivery office with the deficient postage. Sec. 150, Reg. 1866. .....A. V. P., P——, Kan.—You did right; postmasters are authorized to examine all packages sent at less than letter rates, provided it can be done without destroying the wrapper, and to charge letter postage if proper, and when this examination can not be made without destroying the wrapper, letter postage must be charged. See Secs. 212—216, Reg. 1866.....A. D. B., P——, N. J.—New Caledonia belonging to France, the rate of postage would be found under the head of France; but letters may also be sent there via Australia. It is not practicable to include in our table all the minor places to which letters may be sent..... F. E. D., S—— F——, Cal.—The postage on letters to Newfoundland is rated according to Section 270, Reg. 1866, and must be prepaid. You seem to mistake the meaning of ship letters, as no ship letters are forwarded to foreign countries from the United States unless the postage is fully prepaid..... E. L. B., L——, Ind.—The postage on drop letters where free delivery is not established is one cent the half ounce..... Postage is chargeable on letters sent to Mail Contractors, although they are indorsed P. O. B. ....F. A. F., R——, Vt.—Proof-sheets "whether corrected or not," are chargeable at miscellaneous rates. Sec. 37, Reg. 1866.

County Papers.—M. E. A., B——, Iowa.—Only subscribers living within the county of publication are entitled to receive their papers free. Sec. 228, Reg. 1866.

Franking.—Many Inquirers.—The fact that we receive so many inquiries on this subject, proves to us what we otherwise could not admit; that is, that the laws relating to franking are not clear enough for some minds; but then, could they be made so? The last two numbers of the MAIL alone, in connection with Chapter XV. of the Regulations, contain all the information we can give, and so plain, so clear, that we think a child should understand it he will only read. The law says the franking privilege shall cover correspondence to and from certain parties, and yet we are frequently asked if mail matter can go free to persons having the franking privilege. Is it any clearer for us to say it can than for the law to say it? We do not want to find fault with any of our correspondents, but we must suggest a closer study of the Laws, Regulations and the MAIL.

A Growl at the New Stamps.

TARHEEL DEPOT, May 1, 1869.

DEAR MAIL: The "long-looked-for has come at last"—everybody rushed to view the superb (!) new postage-stamps, and turned with contempt plainly, stamped on their faces; while many were not slow to insinuate something about doing away with the good old stamps to give somebody a fat job to get up the miserable new ones. The fact of the business is, that the new stamps are poorly engraved and badly printed (especially those in two colors); and are so insignificant in size and scant in sizing, that, like some diminutive urchins, no amount of licking them on their backs can make them stick to their letters much longer than they are under your thumb and eye.

The stamps that the Department is now discontinuing were engraved in the highest style of the art, besides being protected from being counterfeited by the lines of geometrical lathework thereon, while the new ones have no such protection given them, and are so miserably engraved and printed that an ordinary handler of the graver can produce a counterfeit equal or superior to the genuine.

This time the Department certainly was forward in going backward.

Yours, to the rescue,
M. QUADRAT.

We have received one or two other communications of nearly the same tenor as the above; and we have noticed some severe criticisms of the new stamps by the press. One of the objections to them, at least, seems to us to be not well founded. They are not "poorly engraved" though the printing of some of the denominations (notably that of the twenty-four cent) is not what is should be. One advantage the new stamps certainly possess over the old ones: the figures denoting their value are so conspicuous that "the wayfaring man," or a near-sighted postmaster making sales in a hurry, need not err to his own damage by selling a twelve-cent or fifteen-cent stamp for two cents. And as for the designs of the new issue, most of them have unquestionably better claims to originality and beauty than those of any stamps which have heretofore been in use. Will anybody pretend, for instance, that it is not a relief to be rid of that ghastly caricature of General Jackson which disfigured the "good old" two-cent stamp?

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISOELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

MODE OF INDICATING THE PREPAYMENT OF POSTAGE UPON LETTERS RECEIVED FROM FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a fine on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arriving in the United States, the fine is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

REGISTERING FOREIGN LETTERS.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Rhetimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. Letters can be registered via San Francisco, to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

CANADIAN CORRESPONDENCE. — Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

Letters addressed to Canada must be mailed to a United States Exchange Office. Letters cannot be sent direct to Post Offices in Canada.

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

COLLECTIONS IN COIN.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. TO OR FROM FRANCE, ALGERIA, &C., IN FRENCH MAIL OR VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Mesina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mitylene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.
2. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA) AND TO OR FROM BELGIUM AND THE NETHERLANDS, BY CLOSED MAIL VIA ENGLAND.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepaymcut required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 8 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment reqnired. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.
3. TO OR FROM ITALY AND SWITZERLAND, BY CLOSED MAIL, VIA ENGLAND, BELGIUM AND GERMANY.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 3.)
4. TO OR FROM THE NORTH GERMAN UNION (INCLUDING ALL THE GERMAN STATES AND AUSTRIA), BY DIRECT MAIL VIA BREMEN OR HAMBURG.—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from FRANCE AND ALGERIA must, in all cases, be collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. NEWSPAPERS AND OTHER PRINTED MATTER.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. BOOK-PACKETS.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

3. PATTERNS OR SAMPLES OF MERCHANDISE.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic valne.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length or 12 inches in breadth or depth, or 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns or samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana (or by American packet, leaving New York 23d each month), the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Prepayment compulsory.

Ansgada,	Dominica,	*St. John,
Anguilla,	Grenada,	St. Lucia,
Antigua,	Gronadines,	*St. Thomas,
Barbadoes,	Jamaica,	St. Vincent,
Barbuda,	Montserrat,	Tobago,
Cayman (Great & Little),	Nevis,	Tortola,
	St. Christopher,	Trinidad,
Caymanbrack,	*Santa Cruz,	Vieque,
Cuba,	St. Eustatius,

* To St. Thomas, St. John and Santa Cruz, via Havana, the postage on letters is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each.

To the Bahama Islands, (which consist of Great and Little Abaco, Andros, Crooked Islands, Elenthera, Great Bahama, Great Exuma, Great and Little Inagua, Long Island, Mariguana, New Providence, Providenciales, San Salvador and Watling Islands), the postage on letters is three cents per half ounce, (to be prepaid on letters sent, and collected on letters received)—on newspapers, 2 cents each; on book packets, 4 cents per four ounces. The mails for the Bahamas leave New York once a month by direct steamer to Nassau. See Table of Dates of Departure of Foreign Mails.

To the following islands the postage on letters, via Havana or St. Thomas, is 18 cents per half ounce; on newspapers, 4 cents each:

Buen Ayre,	Guadeloupe,	Oraba,

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, and Belgian Mails.

Philadelphia and Chicago are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Baltimore and San Francisco offices of Exchange for British Mails only.

DOMESTIO POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as an official privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 124 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months) ..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.)		30	"
For Tri-Weekly,	"	15	"
For Semi-Weekly,	"	10	"
For Weekly,	"	5	"

WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

POSTAGE PER QUARTER (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on NEWSPAPERS and PERIODICALS issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz.	6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	18 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz.	3 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz.	1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz.	2 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz.	3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

PUBLISHERS OF NEWSPAPERS AND PERIODICALS may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in their publications, bills and receipts for the same, free of postage. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

NEWSDEALERS may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printing matter.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

BOOKS, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; over twelve oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

CIRCULARS, not exceeding three in number, to one address, 2 cts.; over three and not over six, 4 cts.; over six and not over nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 8 cts.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Post Office Blanks.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. O. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Mails are due at the New York Post Office.

UNITED STATES MAIL
AND
POST OFFICE ASSISTANT.

VOL. IX., NO. 10. NEW YORK, JULY, 1869. WHOLE NO. 106.

Monsieur Tonson Again.

BETWEEN BOSTON AND BUFFALO, June, 1869.

I did not experience the slightest inconvenience from the unexpected shower and immersion-bath of which I spoke in my last letter; but, on the contrary, I rose from my bed invigorated in mind and body, and encasing myself in my own garments, which had been put in good condition and quietly placed by my bedside whilst I was asleep, I descended to the breakfast-room, where I found the happy family all assembled awaiting me. After the usual morning salutations, we seated ourselves around the table, and full justice was done to an excellent breakfast. When we got through, we repaired to the front porch to enjoy a smoke and talk over the incidents of the night before; for nothing had been said upon the subject at the table, and a proposition was made and accepted to go and view the route over which I had passed, and at the same time a boy was dispatched to bring over my horse. We had just risen preparatory to starting, when three horsemen were observed riding toward the house in hot haste. Reaching the front of the house, they threw themselves from their saddles, and without waiting an instant to fasten their horses, two of them jumped over the fence and the other one burst open the gate and rushed up the gravel path as if Old Nick was after them. I had only time to recognize two of them—the owner of the horse and the Indian ferryman—when I was rudely seized by the collar by the third and unknown party, instigated thereto by the other two, who pointed me out, exclaiming, "That's him—hold on to him." My host and his brother were the pictures of dismay, and I felt exceedingly surprised at this abrupt and unexpected demonstration—but I was soon enlightened as to the cause by a gruff interrogation from my custodian, accompanied by a mastiffian shake: "Where is Ringworm's horse?" and a screeching response from the Indian before I had time to reply: "He know plenty; can't fool Cattarangus Indian much, may be anyhow, wid a glass eye, bully." My new-found friends understood the mistake as quick as I did, and in a very brief time the whole thing was explained, the horse produced and his owner compensated. I felt a little cross with the human brute who had bandled me so roughly, but I did not think it worth while to demand an apology. The Indian, however, seemed to feel ashamed of the suspicions he had entertained, and before going away he gently said, "You heap good man; old Cherrypit too much quick. You come back in my boat to Depot to-morrow. Yesterday last week plenty, you no me pay nothing 'tall." We indulged in a hearty laugh at the indicrous mistake, although I could not help thinking (and it did not occur to me before) that if the horse had strayed away, or got drowned, it would have been a serious thing, humanly speaking, in a pecuniary point of view.

A survey of the winding, watery way I had traversed in my night ride filled me with awe; and the narrow escape I had made stood out in all its thrilling reality. I can only account for it upon the hypothesis that my time had not come. In language as forcible as I could command, I tendered my thanks to Mr. Amicus and his family for their ever-to-be-remembered kindness and a stove-pipe hat, which Mr. Amicus' brother presented me with, as I had lost my broad brim in the storm, and, after promising to call at "Hobson's Choice," bade them farewell, footed it to the ferry, and was conveyed across the river by the aboriginal boatman, who sturdily refused to be remunerated therefor, and in a little while I was whirling across the country in the express train, toward sunset.

I don't believe there is any place in the world so well adapted to profound meditation as in a railway passenger coach; and having secured a comfortable seat and turned over the back of another to make a resting-place for my feet, I gave way to reflection and soon fell—asleep. How long I had indulged in this soporific luxury I know not, but I was suddenly roused by a severe shock and a stunning blow on my head and shoulders, which knocked all drowsiness out of me, and I was at once aware of the fact that an accident of some kind had happened, and that I was a badly damaged individual. Shrieks and groans on all sides filled my ears, and exerting all the presence of mind I could, and collecting my scattered senses, I endeavored to look round, but all was dark. A sense of pressure upon my brows prompted me to raise my hand to my head, when I found my hat had been driven over my eyes with such force as to make it no inconsiderable job to remove it. (Stove-pipe hats are objectionable on this very ground.) I finally succeeded, however, and a scene of frightful confusion presented itself. The opposite end of the car was entirely torn away, and I could see that two or three others in the rear were crushed together and in ruins. In a moment I was alone, for my fellow-passengers had hurried out, or had been taken out dead or alive, and I made my exit as soon as possible.

On reaching the side of the railway track, I noticed among other interesting objects an elderly lady bending over the form of a venerable gentleman, who was obviously sleeping his last sleep. Humanity prompted me to go to her assistance. She raised her head as I approached; and, great Heaven! it was my long lost Jane Mary, for many years a contented if not a happy wife, but now a newmade widow through that accident. I need not prolong the scene, suffice it to say that recognition was mutual, and the old love long buried came up at the call of memory, like Lazarus from the tomb. . . . A Justice of the Peace lived hard by and—well, at last—with the weight of over a half hundred years upon me, I led the love of my youth to the hymeneal altar. The next day, I joined with Mrs. Tonson in the funeral obsequies of my predecessor. Dr. Myth preached a feeling discourse that affected us both deeply; and then, instead of returning as I intended to town to report to the B. and B. Company, we set out on a bridal tour to Mammoth Wallow, New Jersey. Thus it will be seen that the negligence of a P. O. clerk has deprived me of about thirty years of domestic bliss (Coofound him!), but at last I have found my haven of rest, brain strong, heart strong and arm strong.

At my suggestion, Mrs. Tonson has commenced an action for ten thousand dollars against the Bay of Fundy and Walla Walla R. R. Company for the slaughter of her first matrimonial venture, and as a devoted husband it will be my duty to look after it; and as the Company will, no doubt, carry it up to the Court of Appeals, where it will probably arrive after the usual delay, my attention most likely will be entirely engrossed with it, and I will have to forego the pleasure of praising, and be freed from the pain of finding fault with, post-office people. But if I do not take the trouble to look after the delinquencies and short-comings of slip-shod and shiftless officials, some one else will, and while he is looking he will find many bright spots and brave souls, and some the reverse. The symbol of this self-imposed duty will be appropriated by some one who will go forth with the cry of "Speed, Malise, speed," from real or imaginary sufferers ringing in his ears, and he may effect much good without the infliction of injury, as I have tried to do. In my last letter I gave the then recently appointed postmaster at Hobson's Choice some good advice, which both old and new officials may follow to their decided advantage; and in closing this (probably, although possibly not the last) epistle I would suggest some simple rules for official guidance which will insure success and popularity in the administration of every office in which they are adopted:

Don't flatter yourself that you hold an official life lease, and can do as you please.

Don't strive to convince yourself that insolence and indifference add to the dignity of your station.

Don't foster the idea that your sins of omission and commission will not come home to roost.

Don't encourage the belief that you are a powerful landlord and all the people in your delivery tenants-at-will.

Don't cherish the thought that a post office and a bear garden should be conducted on the same principle.

Don't solace yourself with the notion that the office makes the man; that is a fallacy.

Don't patronize any of these heterodox opinions. Don't.

But on the contrary, take the opposite side, and be strong in your efforts to demonstrate practically, in words and works of truth and soberness, the advantages resulting therefrom, and when the question is propounded to your friends and neighbors, "Is it well with the postmaster and his clerks?" the response will come back without a dissenting voice, "Well, it is." But I will close, and bid

Farewell! a word that must be, and hath been—
A sound which makes us linger; yet, farewell!

MONS. TONSON.

COMMUNICATIONS.

POST OFFICE AWAY UP IN VERMONT, June, 1869.

Editor of U. S. Mail—I wish to suggest a word to postmasters who take and read the MAIL, in relation to their duty in lopping off some of the irregularities of those who do not take or read it—such practices, for instance, as mailing dry goods, etc., at transient rates. I know a postmaster who says he makes a practice of writing courteous letters to postmasters who are said to practice mailing such articles as stated at transient rates, asking a citation to the law allowing it; apparently seeking for information in relation to duty, etc. Some of them gave courteous answers, implying that he was misinformed, others kept mum, but the stamps were more plenty on the next package received. One reply cited laws and regulations, chapter and verse, and was rather severe upon those "thick-headed" postmasters who mailed such articles at transient rates, and closed his dissertation by recommending that the inquirer "take the UNITED STATES MAIL, a paper published in New York, at one dollar a year." The same inquirer (who takes the MAIL) found himself reported for imperfectly detacing stamps, and thereupon commenced to report each delinquent who sent letters to his office with stamps attempted to be canceled and left good for use a second time, and says he has within a year or over reported over fifty such cases, some of them several times. The result was, the stamps afterward got pretty well blacked. Now, I think we who do take the MAIL can do something by way of reforming those careless, lazy and "thick-headed" clerks who do not, as well as those postmasters who care so little about how the business of their office is managed as to let it "run itself," by giving them a chance to read through the other "mail," occasionally, a document marked "Official Biz." You may be sure it "works like a charm," and the writer, like the tippling constable, when asked by the owner of a horse that would not drink, what to do to make him drink, said, in reply, elect him constable and he will drink. I have been there and know that it makes them come down with the (postage) "stamps" in the one case and with the defacing stamp in the other.

Let us roll the ball.

A POSTMASTER.

P—— H——, CAL., May 24, 1869.

Editor U. S. Mail—I have read several articles in the MAIL in reference to the payment of postage on newspapers, but none have suggested a feasible plan for doing it.

Now, I have a plan which, in my opinion, I think is good, and would save all officials, as well as private individuals, a great deal of trouble. My plan is this: That all papers should be prepaid by stamps, in the office of publication. When a publisher receives a list of subscribers, and makes up the package of papers, let him put the stamps on to prepay for one quarter, six months, or for the term of subscription, just as he pleases; and when the papers arrive at their destination the postmaster will see (when he opens the package) for how long a time the postage is paid; and no one has to keep any account.

J. S. M., P. M.

POST OFFICE, W——, IND., June, 1869.

Editor U. S. Mail—Inasmuch as you wish postmasters all over this broad land of ours to give vent to their thoughts through the columns of the MAIL in relation to matters pertaining to the postal arrangements of our Government, I will say a few words in regard to the appointing postmasters to fill the various offices throughout the United States; and my plan is this: let the Postmaster General, through the proper Department of his office, advertise for proposals to fill the offices throughout certain districts. The lowest responsible bidder to receive the appointment, on giving the proper bond, etc. This would be similar to the way that the contracts for conveying the mails are now let. Say not less than four years being a term of office. This mode of selecting postmasters would be far superior to the present one, as it would save much ill-feeling between rival candidates, and much corruption in procuring appointments by M. C's, and it would further relieve our Senators and members of Congress from many annoyances that they are now subject to, and leaving them to do their more legitimate duties or lawmaking; and would, no doubt, be a great saving to the revenue of the Post-Office Department.

Respectfully submitted,

A. A. S., P. M.

"Let Out."

Postmaster Smith, since the Department has ordered a letter-delivery by carriers in San Francisco, is, like President Grant, "not lonesome." He has about two hundred applicants for about six places. Among others, a strong-minded lady, who is anxious that woman's sphere of usefulness should be widened, called on him, and solicited that two or three young ladies, healthy, hearty and good-looking, be appointed carriers—or carrier-esses. The Postmaster listened to the lady politely and attentively, and when, after a long time, it came to his turn to speak, he submitted various reasons why the places would not be desirable for females. All his objections were pooh-poohed or talked down by the lady. Finally he drew the last arrow in his quiver.

"Madame," said he, still very politely, "there is another objection, which I have not urged, but which I think will be fatal to the appointment you desire. It would be a violation of law"——

"Nonsense; there is no law to prevent ladies acting as carriers."

"Listen," continued the Postmaster. "The order which directs the appointment of these carriers, specifies also how they shall be dressed."

A perceptible start on the part of the lady.

"Now, if your female friends were appointed to carry letters, they would have to wear a uniform. Pantaloons of a particular color, coat cut in a peculiar manner, and a hat by which their business would be still further indicated. If"——

"Hold!" said the lady, raising her delicately-gloved hand to stop further speech on the part of Mr. Smith. "That lets me out."

The phrase was not very delicate nor feminine, but it was very expressive.

The season for watering places and summer resorts having commenced, postmasters at such places are called upon for extra vigilance and care in delivering and despatching mail matter.

Not the Way to Do It.

There was received, during the past month, at the publication office of the MAIL, a copy of the paper for May, wrapped in a piece of post-office wrapping paper, which had been twice used for wrapping letters. It was addressed to the "Publisher U. S. MAIL," but bore no postmark or any other evidence of the place or office whence it was sent. On opening the wrapper there was found written on the margin of the paper, "H. B. T——, left town." What town it was left for us to find out. When it is understood that our books are indexed by the name of the post-office, and not by that of the subscriber, it will readily be perceived how difficult it may be to find to what office H. B. T——'s paper is sent, and how difficult to discontinue sending it. Aside from the trouble thus occasioned to us, this way of "notifying publishers" is not the way to do it. And although the wrong way of doing a thing may practically result in success, yet success is only attained after a needless expenditure of labor, care, time and any elements that enter into a successful result, whereas the right way leads to success through an expenditure of the least of the elements named. For the benefit of postmasters and publishers—the credit of the former, the time of the latter—we will show for the Laws and Regulations provide a way, simple and satisfactory.

The Way to Do It—

The First Assistant Postmaster-General will furnish on application, blank "Notices to Publishers" (ask for form No. 29). Procure a supply of these blanks; also, if you are entitled to them, procure from the Third Assistant Postmaster-General a supply of the green envelopes indorsed "Notice to Publisher;" then "when any newspaper or magazine regularly sent through the mails has been refused by a subscriber thereto, or not called for by him for one month," take one of the blanks above named, fill it up with the name of your office, and State, the name of the subscriber, and the reason the paper or magazine is not delivered (blank space will be found for all these items), inclose the blank thus filled up in one of the green envelopes, address it to the postmaster at the publisher's place of business, indorse on it the name of the paper or magazine, then send it off with your other mail matter, no postage is needed if you frank it with your written frank. Do it in that way, and you will do it right and effectually. Do it as it was done in the case herein stated and you will do it wrong and ineffectually. Again, there is no authority to return free of postage a paper or magazine refused or not called for, and a postmaster who takes that method of notifying publishers violates his official oath. Such papers should be retained till the end of the quarter and then sold, and the proceeds credited to the Department, unless the publisher, on being notified, should request their return, and provide for the postage for such return.

Sundry Post-Office Matters.

We begin our usual article with a compliance with the request to "call the attention of postmasters to the importance of postmarking all letters plainly, so that it may be known beyond a doubt when and where they were mailed." But this is by no means the first time we have called attention to this subject. Circular post-marking stamps are now furnished to ALL offices, on application to the First Assistant Postmaster-General. Every postmaster should see that his office is provided, and should be careful that all letters, and especially registered package envelopes are clearly and distinctly postmarked.

.....To a question about retaining, in accordance with the order of the party addressed, request letters, beyond the time stated in the request, we would say that such retention would be improper. The request constitutes a claim by the writer of the letter, which commences at the expiration of the time named, and which a postmaster is not at liberty to disregard.....A communication on the matter of cancelling stamps with blue ink, claims our attention. It is accompanied by one of the new stampe, which has been cancelled with ink so nearly of its own color, that except by close examination and comparison, one would hardly think that the stamp had been cancelled at all. The regulation, Section 176, Reg. 1866, requires "cancelling to be effected by the use of black printing ink," a requirement which should be observed. If postmasters cannot procure such ink in their own towns, they can purchase a first-rate quality of some of the parties who advertise in the MAIL.....And now we take up a letter, wherein the writer says he has some uncorking to do, and does uncork to complain of those postmasters who neglect to forward receipts for registered matter in transit. Sec. 2, Regn. Reg., 1868. His virtuous indignation is justifiable; a postmaster who neglects those rules, made for the safe transmission of letters, and thus places them in jeopardy, after a fee has been paid to add to their security, becomes morally an accessary to any loss that may occur through his negligence, and no doubt legally, if not officially, responsible for it.....Where did a certain postmaster, in remitting for the MAIL, find authority to inclose his money in one of the green envelopes intended to cover notices to publishers? We make a point, and a strong one, on the proper use of the envelopes furnished by the Department. Their use as designed would simplify and reduce postal labor, especially among route agents and at the larger offices, while their indiscriminate use complicates and increases that labor, even beyond what it otherwise would be.....And now a letter of inquiry, whether "a postmaster is bound to answer a communication from another postmaster, signed only P. M.?" Although we generally confine our advice to matters of postal laws and regulations, we answer, yes, if on official business. But no one is obliged to answer an insulting letter. By the way, our correspondent's letter is a little deficient in suavity, and his request for an answer reads more like a command; possibly in his correspondence with his brother postmaster there was a like deficiency, for which a like allowance was not made, as we make, and hence the "insulting letter."

Letter Addresses.

Address written on the envelope of a newspaper mailed at Philadelphia on the 19th April, 1869. In order to understand the allusion in the third line of the fourth verse, the reader must bear in mind that all the words in this imprint, which are in small capitals, were written in red ink.

Oh, Postman! quickly bear this sheet
To WILLIAM HENRY FRY,
Who dwells in that far-famed retreat,
Which, placed midst mountains high,
In old VIRGINIA's broad domain,
Is known as CONRER's SPRINGS,
To whose sweet vale a joyous train
Of guests each summer brings.

Will you this package please to drop
At BONSACK's Post with haste?
And when en route, pray do not stop,
Nor e'en a moment waste.

BONSACK's POST OFFICE you will find
In COUNTY ROANOKE,
And if you there drop this (please mind),
Fry's thanks you will evoke.

If all these words do bother you
To make out his address,
Read only those of crimson hue,
And then you'll have success.

Uncle Samuel—
To your charge this letter I'll trust,
To forward to Providence (so get up and dust).
On one corner you'll find your miserable stamp,
Got up since the inauguration of Gen. Grant.
If it sticks till it reaches its destination
'Twill be a "big thing" for the administration.

At Pittsfield, Mass., there lives a man,
His name is William Mink;
He is a typographic artist.
At the "Eagle" Printing Rink.
He served his country faithfully;
And didn't jump nary bounty.
Propel this letter on to him,
Way up in Berkshire County.

Mr. (I do not no the name),
Sash & Blind, Mineola,
Near Mineola Station,
Leave in the Hotel L. I.
this Letter.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, June 16, 1869.

SIR—In accordance with information just received from the General Post Office of the North German Union, ordinary letters may now be sent from the United States to the States of the Church via the North German Union mails, either unpaid or prepaid, to place of destination, at the option of the senders; the rates of postage chargeable thereon remaining the same as those now collected in this country. The rates of postage chargeable upon printed matter and samples of merchandise for said States have, however, been reduced to the following amounts, viz:

Upon newspapers via closed mail through England, 7 cents per each four ounces or fraction of four ounces; and 8 cents by the direct mail to Bremen or Hamburg; prepayment compulsory.

Upon book packets and samples of merchandise by closed mail through England, 11 cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof, and 0 cents in the direct mail to Bremen or Hamburg; prepayment compulsory.

You will, therefore, please insert the above rates in the next issue of the UNITED STATES MAIL in lieu of those now published therein, as being the amounts of postage chargeable upon printed matter and samples from the United States to the Papal States via North Germany; and, at the same time, change the conditions of prepayment on letters for said States via North Germany from compulsory to optional.

Very respectfully,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Supt. Foreign Mails.

J. GAYLER, Esq.,
Editor "U. S. Mail."

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, June 4, 1869.

SIR—I have to inform you that, according to information just received from the General Post Office of the North German Union, the rates of postage hereafter chargeable in the United States upon the correspondence forwarded to Port Said, in Egypt, via the North German Union, will be the same, in all respects, as the rates now chargeable upon the correspondence for Alexandria, Egypt, by the same route.

I have therefore to request that you will please cause the necessary correction to be made in the next issue of the UNITED STATES MAIL.

Very respectfully,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Supt. Foreign Mails.

J. GAYLER, Esq.,
Editor "U. S. Mail"

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, July 3, 1869

Notice to Postmasters.

The attention of the Department has been called to the circumstance that the "Return Registered Letter Bills" for registered letters addressed to foreign countries are frequently forwarded by the postmasters at the mailing offices in the United States to the postmasters of the foreign offices to which such letters are addressed, under cover bearing their frank and endorsement of "official business." This practice is irregular and in violation of the regulations of the Post Office Department, the proper course in such cases being to forward the "Return Bills" on which such registered letters are entered to the United States Distributing Post Office to which the registered package containing the same is addressed. The general regulations prescribed by this Department for the receipt and dispatch of domestic registered letters is alike applicable to the receipt and dispatch of registered letters for foreign countries, with the single exception that no "return receipt" is required to be forwarded with the same.

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN.
Supt. Foreign Mails.

Readjustment of Postmasters' Salaries.

The First Assistant Postmaster General has issued the following circular to postmasters on this subject:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
APPOINTMENT OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, June 1, 1869.

SIR—To enable the Postmaster General to review and readjust your salary from and after the first day of July, 1870, upon a proper basis, as required by the act approved July 1, 1864, you are hereby required to keep an account of the total amount of stamps canceled at your office during the six months preceding and ending December 31, 1869; also, the amount collected on unpaid letters—on newspapers and other printed matter—and for box-rents during the same period.

On the first of January, 1870, or as soon thereafter as practicable, you will make out and forward to this office a sworn statement of the amounts arising from each of the above sources. In all cases where this return is not made within a reasonable time after the aforesaid first of January, the salaries will be readjusted upon the best data that can be obtained from the records of the Department, and fixed for two years from first day of July, 1870.

I am, respectfully, etc.,

GEORGE EARLE,
First Asst. P. M. General.

Accompanying this circular, and referred to by it, is a blank form for making a condensed report, to be compiled from the accounts kept in the office.

Reorganization of the Special Agent Service.

Postmaster-General Cresswell, since a short time after his accession to office, has had under consideration a plan for the reorganization of the Special Agency Service of the Department, which has now been perfected and went into operation on the 1st inst.

The plan embraces the division of the Special Agents into three classes, viz.: "Assistant Superintendents of Railway Mail Service," "Post Office Inspectors," and "Special Agents on Mail Depredations."

The first-named are charged with the supervision of the railway mail service, giving attention to all its details, seeing that the utmost celerity, certainty and security are attained in the carriage of the mails; promptitude and fidelity in those engaged in or connected with that duty—including local agents, route agents, railway post-office clerks, mail messengers and contractors; and to take cognizance of and report all violations of law by private expresses or other persons in sending or carrying mail matter unlawfully.

"Post Office Inspectors" are specially charged with the duty of inspecting the internal arrangement of post offices, to observe and report upon all irregularities of postmasters in that respect; to instruct them, when necessary, in the details of their duties; to give special attention to securing, on the part of postmasters, a strict adherence to the laws and regulations concerning the registration of letters, the collection and return of revenues from box-rents and newspaper and other postage; to inspect and verify the accounts of postmasters at Money Order offices; to see that postmasters take proper precautions against robberies of their offices by burglars, etc.; to aid, when required, the Assistant Superintendents of Railway Mail Service and the Special Agents on Mail Depredations in the performance of their duties.

To both of the above classes of Special Agents are assigned other duties, which it is not necessary to refer to here.

"Special Agents on Mail Depredations" are, as their title denotes, charged with the special duty of detecting, and securing the punishment of, violators of the criminal statutes referring to offences against the Post Office.

A general "Superintendent of Railway Mail Service" (George B. Armstrong, Esq.) has also been appointed, resident at Washington.

For the purpose of securing efficiency and system in the operations of the above officers, the following plan has been adopted:

The Union is divided into six divisions, which are sub-divided into Districts.

To each of five of these divisions is assigned one Special Agent, with the designation of "Assistant Superintendent of Railway Mail Service."

These six divisions are as follows:

I. Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

II. New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

III. Virginia (excluding the Eastern Shore), North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

IV. Ohio, West Virginia, Michigan (excluding the upper peninsula), Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee.

V. Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan.

VI. Embraces all that territory west of the 95th meridian and Louisiana.

The Districts of these six divisions are as follows:

FIRST DIVISION—1st District.—Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. 2d Dist.—Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

SECOND DIVISION—1st District.—New York. 2d Dist.—Pennsylvania. 3d Dist.—New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

THIRD DIVISION—1st District.—Virginia (excluding the Eastern Shore), and North Carolina. 2d Dist.—South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. 3d Dist.—Alabama and Mississippi.

FOURTH DIVISION—1st District.—Ohio and West Virginia. 2d Dist.—Indiana and Michigan, (excluding the upper peninsula). 3d Dist.—Kentucky and Tennessee.

FIFTH DIVISION—1st District.—Illinois and Iowa. 2d Dist.—Minnesota, Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan. 3d Dist.—Missouri and Arkansas.

SIXTH DIVISION—1st District.—Nebraska, Kansas and Dakota. 2d Dist.—Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona. 3d Dist.—Utah, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho. 4th Dist.—California and Nevada. 5th Dist.—Oregon and Washington. 6th Dist.—Louisiana and Texas.

To each of the Districts in the first five Divisions is assigned one Special Agent, with the designation of "Post-Office Inspector."

And to each of the Districts in the Sixth Division is assigned one Special Agent, without any designation other than that in the original text of his letter of appointment.

The Postmaster General has issued full and explicit instructions to each of the classes of Special Agents, from which we need only quote here the following:

The Postmaster General considers Special Agents of the Department as his representatives under these instructions, and as such all postmasters, contractors, and others in the service, are subordinate to them.

"Newspapers within the County."

As there appears to be considerable misapprehension and doubt on the subject of the Laws and Regulations respecting the delivery of newspapers within the county where printed and published, we publish, for the information of our subscribers, and all concerned, the latest statute on this subject, together with the instructions based thereon, issued by the Postmaster General. Section 3 of the Act of Congress of July 27, 1868, provides:

That Section 35 of the Act of March 3, 1863 [see Sec. 251 P. O. Laws, edition of 1866], shall be so construed as to permit weekly newspapers, properly folded and addressed, when sent to regular subscribers in the county where printed and published, to be delivered free of postage, when deposited at the office nearest to the office of publication; but nothing in this act shall be so construed as to require carriers to distribute said papers, unless postage is paid upon them at the rate of five cents per quarter, and such postage must be prepaid for a term of not less than one quarter or more than one year, either at the office of mailing or of delivery, at the option of the subscriber.

"This section is applicable only to weekly newspapers, issued from a known office of publication, when deposited in the post office nearest the office at which they are published. They must be properly folded and addressed, and the person to whom they are sent must be a regular subscriber thereto.

"If such papers are delivered by letter carriers they are chargeable with postage at the rate of five cents per quarter, payable quarterly or yearly, in advance; but if delivered by the post office no charge will be made."

The language of the law and regulation above quoted is clear and explicit; and there is no necessity for further misunderstanding concerning them, either by postmasters or publishers—the latter of whom seem to have been in rather a foggy state of mind respecting the matter.

☞ We are sure that there is not one of our readers who will not note with regret that the newly-assumed responsibilities of our esteemed correspondent, MONS. TONSON, are likely to prevent the appearance, for the present at least, of the very entertaining and instructive epistles from "between Boston and Buffalo," which have for so long enlivened the columns of THE MAIL. We are sensible that a strict adherence to the proprieties would call upon us to congratulate him upon the somewhat tardy realization of the dream of his youth consequent upon his unexpected and providential meeting with his long-lost Jane Mary; but, nevertheless, we cannot help, at the risk even of offending our respected friend, expressing our fears that it is just a little "late in the day" for him to realize, in wedded life, that unalloyed bliss which we doubt not would have been his had not that careless post-office clerk of years gone by, missent the letter to J. M., whose non-receipt so long parted two loving hearts. While hoping for the best, we will only say that the experiment he is trying has not always been successful; and if clouds should gather upon his matrimonial horizon, and break into storms (as such clouds sometimes do), we trust that he will seek relief by resuming his wanderings for his own benefit and his lively and facile pen for that of THE MAIL and its readers.

☞ MR. BRADY, the well-known photographic artist, has published a large-sized picture representing, in a group, Postmaster General Cresswell, his Assistants, and the Heads of Bureaux of the Department. The portraits are excellent, and the picture will form an appropriate ornament for post offices. It is furnished at a moderate price, as will appear by Mr. Brady's advertisement in another column.

"SHAKE THEM OUT."—Several cases have lately been brought to our notice of the reported non-receipt of Registered Package Envelopes at their destination, which were afterward found in the pouches in which they were placed, but from which the receiving postmasters had failed to take them. All of the nervous anxiety, speculation and suspicion which resulted in the meantime, would have been saved if a few more vigorous shakes, and a careful inspection of the pouches had been made when they were originally received.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Route Agents.—J. J., C——, O.—A route agent on a steamboat should be ready to deliver and receive mails at the shore end of the gang plank of the boat. He is not obliged to go further than this, and during the time he is away from the mail room in the boat, the room should be secure against any one entering it.

Making up Mails.—S. S. O., P——, N. Y.—All letters, except registered, for your own State, should be mailed direct. Sec. 93, Reg. 1866.

Post-Office Hours.—W. W. M., P——, C——, U.—The time required to keep a post office open is the usual business hours of the place, and when a mail arrives out of those hours, a postmaster is not obliged to open his office to deliver the mail matter, but there are very many instances when courtesy and a due regard for the convenience of the public, call upon him to do so. Sec. 27, Reg. 1866.... Z. J. B., M—— G——, N. Y.—Our preceding answer is also an answer here. The usual business hours of a place differ, according to locality, so that no hours can be named applicable to all offices.

Time of Closing the Mail.—McD. M. R., S——, Va.—At all except distributing offices, the mails are to close not more than half an hour before the time fixed for their departure, unless the departure is between nine o'clock P. M. and five o'clock A. M. Sec. 76, Reg. 1866. A postmaster is not required to receive a letter for a certain mail after that mail is closed, but the parties interested may hand such letter to a route agent to be forwarded. Secs. 99 and 470, Reg. 1866.

Red Envelopes.—J. B. P., P——, Iowa.—Apply to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General for the red envelopes.

Local Newspapers.—C. W. C., I——, N. Y.—Weekly newspapers properly folded and addressed may be delivered free from the post office nearest the office of publication. Sec. 3, Act of July 27, 1868. An answer to your question on franking may be found in any MAIL for the last three or four months.

Forwarding Request Letters.—H. S., A——, O.—A request letter returned to the writer may be forwarded free on his request.

Newsdealers.—W. L. S——, Cal.—Newsdealers have the privilege, the same as publishers, of sending papers, etc., to regular subscribers without prepayment of postage. Sec. 225, Reg. 1866.

Removing a Post Office.—S. McC., T——, Pa.—A post office may be moved from one location to another in a village, but must not be moved from the usual post road, nor must any material change be made in the site, without the consent of the Department. Sec. 33, Reg. 1866.

Envelopes.—C. S., U——, N. Y.—Envelopes for the general business of an office are furnished by the Department only to offices of the first and second classes, but envelopes for special business, such as registration, are furnished to all offices. Application should be made to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

Making up Foreign Letters.—T. E. M., W——, N. Y.—Letters for foreign countries should be sent to the first distributing office on the route, the same as domestic letters for other states and territories. Sec. 95, Reg. 1866.

Exchange Newspapers to Canada.—R. T. F., H——, Mont.—Editors in the United States may exchange, free of expense, with editors in Canada. Sec. 261, Reg. 1866.

County Papers.—R. M., W—— G——, N. Y.—The weekly paper which a bona fide subscriber is entitled to receive free must be printed and published in the county in which he resides, but he may receive it through a post office without the country, provided it is the usual office at which he receives his mail matter. Sec. 228, Reg. 1866. ....E. B., ——, ——.—One copy each of any number of different weekly county papers may be delivered free under Sec. 228. The privilege does not apply to daily papers.

Registration.—G. W. J., O——, Pa.—Registration to France is through that section of the treaty with England, which provides that letters may be registered through England to any country to which England registers, on the payment of the combined fees. These fees are not entered in our foreign postage table, because they are complicated and would be very little used, as to almost all important places except France the United States has a direct registration fee. ....A. W. S., S—— L—— C——, Utah.—The system of registration is based on a chain of continuous receipts, and if a through bag that has to go three hundred miles is always in charge of a route agent, so that he could give a receipt for registered matter, and retain such matter under his control until he could pass it over to another route agent or a postmaster and take a receipt for it, it would be proper to put it in the through pouch, otherwise not. 2. Request letters should be forwarded at the desire of the party addressed. The time of request does not begin to run till the arrival of the letter at the office of delivery, which is the office to which the party addressed requests all his letters to be sent. ....D. A. W., W——, N. Y.—Letters to the Commissioners of Patents may be sent free of postage, but if registered a registration fee must be charged. ....H. C. M., M——, Mich.—The preceding answer applies to letters to the United States Treasurer. ....F. J., M——, Cal.—It has been decided that a registry fee is chargeable on all letters to the heads of Departments, except on letters from postmasters to the Post-Office Department. Under this decision, letters from postmasters to the Postmaster-General or to the Auditor, may be registered free of charge.....C. B. W., B——, Vt.—The registered-package envelopes, referred to in section twelve, are those that have arrived at an office with registered letters in them.... J. D——, B——, O.—We did not intend to convey the idea that no account whatever of registered letters is to be kept. We were writing of the accounts and papers that constitute the Quarterly Returns, and meant to be understood that no money account of registered letters to accompany the Quarterly Return is now to be kept. An account—it would be better to call it record, for it is no longer an account—is to be kept in accordance with Sections 10 and 12 of Registration Regulations of 1868. You will see this stated further down in the same column. Our answers are replies to specific questions, but at the same time we strive to make them of general application. Usually we are successful; but occasionally we find we might better have used some other word or phrase, or qualified our language in some way. Such was the case in the "answer" in question.

Postage.—M. B., S—— B——, N. H.—A package of silk is chargeable with letter postage.....D. G. A., W——, W. Va.—Clerks at distributing offices are not authorized to open packages in transit to ascertain if sufficient postage is paid. On a package, sent at "paper" rates, that is chargeable at letter rates, the unpaid postage should be collected at the office of delivery. Sec. 158, Reg. 1866.... C. K. W., F——, Md.—There is no postage now chargeable on newspapers received from Great Britain.... F. W. W., N—— O——, La.—Circulars to foreign countries, except to Great Britain, are chargeable with postage at "book-packet" rates.... M. H. P., G——, Va.—A circular in a single copy of a regular newspaper subjects only that copy to postage at letter rates. Sec. 42, Reg. 1866.... H. B. A., C——, Mich.—Newspaper manuscript is chargeable with letter postage.... R. J. F., T——, Conn.—A full quarter's postage must be collected on a regular newspaper though it is sent only two months, or else transient rates must be paid at the mailing office.... A. B. C., P——, Ill.—A letter not prepaid one rate must be sent to the Dead Letter Office as unmailable. Sec. 369, Reg. 1866.... A "pair of breeches" is chargeable with postage at letter rates, and if not paid at the mailing office, the amount due should be collected before delivery. The postmaster who can find "breeches" mentioned among mailable matter of the second or third classes, or in Sections 250 and 256, Laws of 1866, must have a very different copy from what we possess.

MISCELLANEOUS INFORMATION.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Foreign Letters, &c.

Letters to foreign countries, where prepayment of postage is compulsory, when insufficiently paid, are sent to the Dead Letter Office, to be opened and returned to the writers, and are thereby delayed one or two mails, and, no doubt, in many cases, causing serious loss and annoyance to the writers.

More of Indicating the Prepayment of Postage upon Letters Received from Foreign Countries.

When the United States official postage entries on the letters received from Great Britain or the Continent of Europe, are in red ink, the letter is to be considered as paid, and is to be delivered accordingly; when in black ink, as unpaid, and the postage is to be collected on delivery.

Unpaid and insufficiently paid letters, to or from Great Britain and Ireland, or to or from the North German Union (including Austria and its States), the Netherlands, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are chargeable with a 6nc on delivery, in addition to the postage, when sent or arriving either by North German Union mail direct, or in closed mail via England. In the case of such letters arving in the United States, the 6nc is five cents on each letter. This is marked on the letters at the various exchange offices, and collected at the offices of delivery.

Registering Foreign Letters.—Letters can be registered in the United States for Great Britain and Ireland, for the North German Union, (including all the German States and Austria,) and for all of the countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the following places in Turkey: Alexandretta, Latakia, Mersina, Retimo and Tripoli; also for Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy and Switzerland. Letters to Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island can be registered, but not to Newfoundland. Letters can be registered (by British mail, via England) to Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, Constantinople, East Indies, Egypt (viz.: Alexandria, Cairo and Suez), Falkland Islands, Gambia, Gibraltar, Gold Coast, Hong Kong, Java, Lagos, Labuan, Liberia, Malta, Mauritius, Natal, New South Wales, Queensland, St. Helena, Sierra Leone, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, on payment of a registration fee (in stamps) of sixteen cents. This is in addition to the postage, which must be fully prepaid by stamps.

The registry fee to be charged on registered letters and other postal packets to Germany, (as well as on letters to all countries and places reached via the North German mails, except the places in Turkey mentioned in the preceding paragraph, and except also the Papal States and Egypt,) to Austria and its States, or to Belgium and The Netherlands, via North German Union, direct or by closed mail, via England, and to Italy and Switzerland by closed mail via England, is eight cents, and on letters to Canada, Nova Scotia New Brunswick and Prince Edward's Island, it is five cents—on letters and other postal packets to Great Britain and Ireland, eight cents. No other postal packets than letters can be sent registered beyond North Germany. The registration fee on letters to the Papal States via North German Union is twelve cents per half ounce—to Egypt, twenty cents each. Letters can be registered (via San Francisco), to Yokohama, in Japan, and Shanghae, in China, on payment of a registration fee of eight cents in addition to the proper postage. Such letters, like registered domestic letters, should be sent to the first distributing office on the route. All registered letters and other postal packets must be prepaid in full to destination.

Canadian Correspondence.—Irregularities having arisen in respect to Canadian correspondence, these directions must hereafter be observed:

The postage on a single letter to or from Canada is six cents per half ounce, if fully prepaid, and ten cents, if unpaid or insufficiently paid. Prepayments must be made by United States postage stamps—not in money.

Collections in Coin.—In pursuance of the provisions of a resolution of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, all postages due on unpaid letters received from foreign countries in the mails dispatched to this country from Great Britain and Ireland, France, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen or Belgium, are to be collected in gold or silver coin. Should, however, payment of such postage, and of the premium on a corresponding amount of coin, be tendered in United States notes, the same is to be accepted in lieu of coin. The amount to be collected in United States notes (in case coin is not offered), is marked on each letter on its arrival at United States Exchange Offices, and is charged in the post-bills. Hence, when coin is collected at the office of delivery, the difference should be entered in the account of Mails Received as an overcharge.

On out-going letters the former regulations remain unchanged, and, when prepaid, the regular rates (in currency) only are to be collected.

RATES OF POSTAGE ON PRINTED MATTER FOR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

1. To or from Great Britain.—Newspapers and circulars, 2 cents each. Book packets (including printed papers of all kinds, maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, etc.), and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction of four ounces, if four ounces or over in weight. For rates on less than four ounces see Foreign Postage Table. The above charges must be fully prepaid at the office of mailing, by means of U. S. postage stamps affixed outside the packet or its cover, and are in full to destination in the United Kingdom. If not so prepaid, the packet cannot be forwarded.

Newspapers, book packets, and patterns, or samples of merchandise, originating in the United Kingdom and addressed to the United States, will be received in the United States fully prepaid, and must be delivered free of charge to the party addressed at the office of destination in the United States.

2. To or from France, Algeria, &c., in French Mail or via England.—Newspapers, periodical works, books stitched or bound, pamphlets, catalogues, papers of music, prospectuses, circulars, and all other kinds of printed matter addressed to France, Algeria, or cities of Turkey, Syria and Egypt, in which France has post offices [viz.: Alexandria, Alexandretta, Beyrout, Constantinople, Dardanelles, Galatz, Gallipoli, Ibraila, Ineboli, Jaffa, Kerassund, Latakia, Messina, in Asiatic Turkey, Mityiene, Rhodes, Salonica, Samsoun, Sinope, Smyrna, Sulino, Trebizond, Tripoli, in Syria, Tultcha, Varna and Volo], can be dispatched to France direct, or by way of England, on prepayment of the following postage, viz.: newspapers, two cents each; books, periodical works, catalogues or pamphlets, four cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; to be in all cases collected in the United States, whether sent or received. France in like manner collects its own postage on all kinds of printed matter, whether sent or received.

3. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria) and to or from Belgium and the Netherlands, by Closed Mail via England.—Newspapers 4 cents each, if not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional rate of four cents for each additional weight of four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, 6 cents per four ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. If, however, the postage on any article shall be insufficiently prepaid, it will be, nevertheless, forwarded to its destination, charged with the deficient postage, and also subject to a fine on delivery.

4. To or from Italy and Switzerland, by Closed Mail, via England, Belgium and Germany.—The rates and conditions on newspapers, book-packets, prints of all kinds, and patterns or samples, are the same as the above, (paragraph 3.)

5. To or from the North German Union (including all the German States and Austria), by Direct Mail via Bremen or Hamburg—Newspapers, if not over 4 ounces in weight, 3 cents each, and if over 4 ounces an additional 3 cents for each additional weight of 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. Book packets, prints, patterns and samples, 6 cents per 4 ounces or fraction thereof; prepayment required. But unpaid or part paid letters and other articles insufficiently prepaid will be forwarded, charged with the deficient postage, and subject to a fine on delivery. The registration fees on registered letters or other postal packets is 8 cents to all the above mentioned countries; prepayment of postage and fee compulsory.

The above rates (paragraphs 1, 3, 4 and 5) are in full to destination; and no charge is to be made on the delivery of newspapers, book packets or samples arriving from Germany, Austria, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy or Switzerland, by the above mails, except the deficient postage or fine on such matter when insufficiently prepaid. But the postage on all printed matter to or from France and Algeria must, in all cases, be collected here, at the rates mentioned in paragraph 2.

REGULATIONS WITH RESPECT TO NEWSPAPERS, BOOK PACKETS, PATTERNS, SAMPLES, &c., TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The regulations to be observed and enforced in the United States with respect to printed matter of all kinds and other postal packets, addressed to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Belgium, The Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland and the North German Union, or to the countries to which they respectively serve as intermediaries, are as follows:

1. Newspapers and other Printed Matter.—Newspapers, circulars, pamphlets, periodicals, books or other printed papers, (including maps, plans, prints, engravings, drawings, photographs, lithographs, sheets of music, &c.,) must be wrapped or enveloped in covers open at the sides or ends, so as to admit of the inclosures being removed for examination.

No newspaper, pamphlet, periodical, or article of printed matter, may contain an word or communication, whether by writing, printing, marks or signs, upon the cover or wrapper thereof, except the name and address of the person to whom it is sent, the printed title of the publication, the printed name of the publisher or vendor who sends it; or, in case of newspapers or other regular publications, when sent to subscribers direct from the office of publication, the printed date when subscription expires. It must not contain a letter or any communication in writing, or other inclosure.

The law and regulation of this department which excludes all obscene books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of a vulgar or indecent character from the mails of the United States, are also to be enforced with respect to books, pamphlets, pictures, prints, or other publications of like character, addressed to foreign countries.

2. Book-Packets.—No book-packet may contain anything that is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection, nor must there be any letter, nor any communication of the nature of a letter, whether separate or otherwise, unless the whole of such letter or communication be printed. But entries merely stating from whom or to whom the packet is sent shall not be regarded as a letter.

No book-packet must exceed two feet in length, or one foot in width or depth.

Any book-packet which is not open at the sides or ends, or has any letter, or communication in the nature of a letter, written in it, or upon its cover, cannot be received or forwarded in the mail; and it is the duty of postmasters, whenever they have ground for suspecting an infringement of any of the above conditions, to open and examine book-packets, patterns, samples, or other postal packets, posted at or passing through their offices.

6. Patterns or Samples of Merchandise.—Patterns or samples of merchandise must not be of intrinsic value; which rule excludes from the mails all articles of a saleable nature, or whatever may have a market value of its own apart from its mere use as a pattern or sample; or where the quantity of any material sent ostensibly as a pattern or sample is so great that it could fairly be considered as having on this ground an intrinsic value.

No packet of patterns or samples must exceed 24 inches in length nr 12 inches in breadth or depth, nr 24 ounces in weight. Patterns or samples of merchandise exceeding the weight of 7 1-2 ounces cannot be sent by mail to the North German Union.

Patterns or samples must not bear any writing other than the addresses of the persons for whom they are intended, except the address of the sender, a trade mark and numbers, and the prices of the articles.

There must be no enclosures other than the patterns nr samples themselves. The particulars allowed to be furnished under the preceding paragraph must in all cases be given, not on loose pieces of paper, but on small labels attached to the patterns or samples, or the bags containing them.

Patterns or samples must be sent in covers open at the ends, so as to be of easy examination. Samples, however, of seeds, etc., which cannot be sent in open covers, may be enclosed in bags of linen or other material, fastened in such a manner that they may be readily opened for examination.

Patterns, samples or other packets containing liquids, poisons, explosive chemicals, or other articles likely to injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any officer of the post office, are positively excluded from the mails.

Rates of Postage to West Indies.

To the following islands, in British mail via St. Thomas or Havana (or by American packet, leaving New York 23d each month), the postage on letters is 10 cents per half ounce; newspapers, 2 cents each; books, 4 cents per four ounces. Prepayment compulsory.

United States Exchange Offices for Foreign Mails.

New York is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, Italian, Swiss Belgian and Netherlands Mails.

Boston is an office of Exchange for British, French, North German Union, and Belgian Mails.

Philadelphia and Chicago are offices of Exchange for British, French and North German Union Mails.

Portland and Detroit are offices of Exchange for British and French Mails.

Baltimore and San Francisco offices of Exchange for British Mails only.

DOMESTIC POSTAGES.

The law requires postage on all letters (including those to foreign countries when prepaid) excepting those written to the President or Vice-President, or members of Congress, or (on official business) to the chiefs of the executive departments of the government, and the heads of bureaus and chief clerks, and others invested with the franking privilege, to be prepaid by stamps or stamped envelopes, prepayment in money being prohibited. Postmasters can send official letters to other Postmasters free.

By a joint Resolution of the Senate and House of Representatives, the Adjutants General of the several States and Territories, are authorized to transmit through the mails, free of postage, any medals, certificates of thanks or other testimonials, awarded, or which may be awarded by the Legislatures of said States and Territories, to the soldiers thereof, under such regulations as the Postmaster General may direct.

Section 123, Regulations 1866, declares the franking privilege to be of two kinds, either a personal privilege or an official trust. All mail matter addressed to persons possessing the privilege as an official privilege, may be forwarded free, except in some cases where it is limited to a weight of four ounces. Mail matter to those possessing the privilege as an official trust can only be forwarded free if it appertains to official business. Section 134 names the persons or officers who have the franking privilege of either kind. Besides these, the Commissioner of Education possesses the official privilege; and all copyright books, maps, etc., may be forwarded to the Librarian of Congress, free of postage, provided the words "copy right matter" be plainly written or printed on the package. And postmasters are required to give receipts for such packages if required. Certain Revenue officers, also, besides those mentioned in the section above named, possess the privilege as an official trust, as follows: Assessors may frank on official business to Assessors, to Assistant Assessors and to Collectors; Assistant Assessors may only frank to Assessors. Collectors may frank to Collectors, Deputy Collectors and Assessors; Deputy Collectors may frank only to Collectors. No communication, official or otherwise, from these officers to private citizens can be sent free.

The Act of March 1, 1869, relating to franking, makes no change in the privilege, but merely enacts that the signature of the franking party must be written, and not printed.

The rate of postage on mail letters to any part of the United States is three cents a half ounce or fraction thereof. The rate of postage on drop letters, at offices where free delivery by carrier is established, is two cents per half ounce or fraction of a half ounce; at offices where such free delivery is not established the rate is one cent. All drop as well as mail letters must be prepaid.

Letter postage is to be charged on all handbills, circulars, or other printed matter which shall contain any manuscript writing whatever.

Daguerreotypes, when sent in the mail, are to be charged with letter postage by weight.

Photographs on cards, paper, and other flexible material (not in cases) can be sent at the same rate as miscellaneous printed matter, viz., two cents for each four ounces or fraction thereof.

Newspaper Postage.

Postage on Daily Papers to subscribers, when prepaid quarterly or yearly in advance, either at the mailing office or office of delivery, per quarter, (three months)..... 35 cents.

Six times per week, per quarter (3 mos.) 30 "
For Tri-Weekly, " " 15 "
For Semi-Weekly, " " 10 "
For Weekly, " " 5 "

Weekly Newspapers (one copy only) sent by the publisher to actual subscribers within the county where printed and published, free.

Postage per Quarter (to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance) on Newspapers and Periodicals issued less frequently than once a week, sent to actual subscribers in any part of the United States:

Semi-monthly, not over 4 oz..... 6 cts.
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz. 12 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz. 16 "
Monthly, not over 4 oz..... 8 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 8 oz..... 6 "
" over 8 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 9 "
Quarterly, not over 4 oz..... 1 "
" over 4 oz. and not over 6 oz..... 2 "
" over 6 oz. and not over 12 oz..... 3 "

Quarterly postage cannot be paid for less than three months. If a subscription begins at any other time than the commencement of an official quarter, the postage received by the postmaster must still be entered in his account for that quarter. Subscribers for short terms—exceeding three months, say four or five months—can pay quarterly postage for the actual term of their subscriptions—that is for one quarter and a third, one quarter and two-thirds, etc. The law only requires that at least one quarter's postage shall be prepaid, and not more than one year's postage. Any term between one quarter and one year can therefore be prepaid at proportionate rates.

Publishers of Newspapers and Periodicals may send to each other from their respective offices of publication, free of postage, one copy of each publication, and may also send to each actual subscriber, inclosed in their publications, bills and receipts for the same, free of postage. They may also state on their respective publications the date when the subscription expires, to be written or printed.

Religious, Temperance, Educational and Agricultural Newspapers of small size, issued less frequently than once a week, may be sent in packages, to one address, at the rate of one cent for each package not exceeding four ounces in weight, and an additional charge of one cent is made for each additional four ounces or fraction thereof, the postage to be paid quarterly or yearly in advance.

Newsdealers may send newspapers and periodicals to regular subscribers at the quarterly rates, in the same manner as publishers, and may also receive them from publishers at subscribers' rates. In both cases the postage to be prepaid, either at the mailing or delivery office.

Publications issued without disclosing the office of publication, or containing a fictitious statement thereof, must not be forwarded by postmasters, unless prepaid at the mailing office at the rates of transient printed matter.

Postage on Transient Printed Matter.

Mailable matter passing between Kansas and California pays the usual rates of postage from and after the 1st of October, 1868, repealing section 259, Postal Laws, and, of course, rescinding section 229 of Regulations.

Books, not over four ounces in weight, to one address, 4 cts.; over four oz. and not over eight oz., 8 cts.; over eight oz. and not over twelve oz., 12 cts.; [illegible] oz. and not over sixteen oz., 16 cts.

Circulars, not [illegible] number, to one address, 2 cts; [illegible]ed not over six, 4 cts.; over six [illegible]wer nine, 6 cts.; over nine and not exceeding twelve, 6 cts.

Exchange newspapers and periodicals cannot be remailed without being chargeable with postage.

Where packages of newspapers or periodicals are received at any post office directed to one address, and the names of the club of subscribers to which they belong, with the postage for a quarter in advance, shall be handed to the postmaster, he shall deliver the same to their respective owners. But this does not apply to weekly newspapers which circulate free in the county where printed and published.

Post Office Blanks.

The agency for supplying postmasters with blanks is located at Washington, D. C.

When the postages collected at an office amount to $100 a year, the name of the postmaster and of his office will be printed on the post bills. When the postmaster's compensation exceeds $12 50 a quarter, the postmaster is entitled to wrapping paper and twine, at the above agencies.

Orders for wrapping paper and twine must be on separate sheets from orders for blanks; but both may be inclosed in one envelope.

All postmasters whose compensation is less than $12 50 per quarter, can purchase a reasonable quantity of wrapping paper and twine, provided the net proceeds of the office exceed twenty dollars per year.

Applications for blank registers of arrival and departure of the mails must be made direct to the "Contract Office, Inspection Division, P. G. Dept." For special instructions, to the First Assistant Postmaster General.

Mails are due at the New York Post Office.

Post Office Department, Washington, D. C., Aug. 20, 1866.—I have examined "Stone's Post Office Account Book, for the Quarterly Record of Box Rents, Newspaper and Letter Postages," and believe it well calculated to facilitate the business of Post Offices, and to insure accuracy in keeping the accounts, and that its use by Postmasters will tend to increase the revenues of the Department.

St. John B. L. Skinner,
First Ass't P. M. General.

☞ A circular, giving full description of this system, sent free to any address.

COMMUNICATIONS.

P. O. INNUBIBUS, July, 1869.

ED. U. S MAIL:

So! and what are we Postmasters to think? say, do? It is with the most unbounded satisfaction with "the world and the rest of mankind" that I always take up my U. S. MAIL on the evening of its arrival, and, arranging my office chair, the light, my table and my legs in their comfortably, if not naturally, reintive positions, proceed to an instructive and amusing perusal. My plan is to opeo the paper to the second page, read first the "official" letters, if any, proceed then then to the editorials, then to sundry Post-office matters, I then turn hock to the first page, and running my eyes over it, read the headings to the various articles as a sort of appetizer for the feast before me, and commence it by an eager perusal of Moos. Tonson, follow this with the other articles on the same page, and then turn to the "Answers," winding up with o hunt among the "Miscellaneons" for new information and the advertisements. But a thunderbolt among a picnic party could not have made a greater scattering of its members than did your editorial announcing Moos. Tonson's withdrawal from the MAIL make with my systematic course of reading on that evening. I do oot swear, but that time I did say "Thunder," nod io my eagerness to turn to Monsieur's closing letter I tore my paper cleur across, and sadly marred it for its place on my neatly and smoothly-kept file. No novel-reading miss of eighteen ever devoured the last new novel with the eagerness which I read that letter, and as I finished I exclaimed aloud:

"That good old soul,
We never shall see him more."

"See who, sir?" said my first assistant, who was seated at the other side of the table, engaged in some private correspondence of his own. "Anybody dead?"

"'Dead!' Yes, no; Mous. Tonson has met with his early love, between whom and himself some careless post-office clerk, years ago, was the innocent but no less guilty means of causing a separation, met her under very afflicting circumstances, married her under these circumstaoces, and carried her to his home, and, expecting to be involved in a long lawsuit on her accouut, concludes he will not have time to write any more for the MAIL."

"That is bad," replied my assistant, as he continued to write; but there was a peculiar smile upon his features. I wondered if he did not surmise whether the letter he was writing might not be the means, through some such clerk, of long years of separotion and sorrow to himself. Not to disturb him in his pleasant employment I read the letter a second time, and when I came to the part speaking of the death of one and the marriage to another, I again exclaimed:

"The king is dead; long live the king!"

"Any of the crowned heads of Europe dead?" said my assistant, without stopping his pen.

"Nonsense," I replied, "I do not wish to interrupt you in your letter; are you not aware that a man under sudden surprise is like a boiler under a sudden increase of steam, bound to blow off or burst? I feel that I must 'blow off;' but you are in no danger if you keep quiet, though I could not say as much," I added in a low voice, "for the criminal who caused the railroad accident that has deprived us of our old friend Tonson."

"What! you don't say that Tonson's been killed in a railroad accident? Where, how, was it instantaneous?" and he laid down his pen and looked me in the face.

"Mr. Jones, I requested you not to let me interrupt you in your letter. You know, sir, I am generally a calm, quiet, dispassionate man, but such men do sometimes become excited, sometimes even angry; now I am not angry, but I do confess to excitement. and I claim the privilege of working or talking it off without interruption," and I resumed my reading.

"Who will take his place?" I said, after a few minutes.

"Whose place, sir, Has the cashier of the bank fully determined to resign?"

Now here was a state of things most uncomfortable. A few minutes previously I had taken my seat to enjoy myself over my favorite paper. Instead of the quiet pleasure I anticipated, I was becoming every moment more excited. What was I to do? I could not blame Mr. Jones, for he was a most attentive assistant, and ever ready to second me in my efforts to keep my office up to a high standard, and so had acquired the habit of prompt attention to me whenever I spoke; besides I did not know but that he was really amusing himself at my expense.

I rose up, seized my hat, and then stood still fully five minutes; at the end of that time, I replaced my hat on the table, myself in my chair, my legs near my hat, and my eyes on Tonson's letter, determined to read it through calmly and unexcitedly. I did very well until I approached the marriage, when my excitement commenced, and when I reached the recital of that, to him no doubt, happy event, but as unhappy to the readers of the MAIL, I exclaimed!

"'And the funeral baked meats
Served for the wedding dinner.'

"At his time of life what did the old f—; no, well, I am glad that at last the kind old gentleman is happy in the love of his long lost one, and some amends can be made on this side of the grave for the carelessness and wickedness of that post-office clerk."

This kindly thought had a more soothing effect on me than all my efforts at self-control. I resumed my perusal of the letter, and was very much pleased with the sound wisdom and advice with which it ended. "He is like the fireworks," I said to myself, "with which we ended the celebration of 'the Fourth,' the most brilliant piece at the last, and that ending in increased brilliancy." Sound wisdom, which, if every postmaster would but heed, would make postal duties, like things of beauty, joys forever; but alas, on how much rocky ground, or how much sandy soil, will these words of wisdom fall; but, nevertheless, there is some good ground they will reach, where they will bear good fruit. Many a postmaster and many a postal clerk will read and profit by these few, clear, ringing sentences.

We shall miss Monsieur Tonson, and shall hope that a few months, at most, will find him again in his old place, although the occasion should be, that the suddenly widowed quickly re-husbanded Jane Mary should prove to be a reservoir of clouds, rather than a source of sunshine, and that, as you suggest sometimes occurs, those clouds should break into storms, and drive our friend to travel and the pen for relief.

NICOTINUS.

P. S.—If you have a spare July number please send it to me to replace mine, that I tore so badly.

AWAY UP IN VERMONT.

Editor U. S. Mail—Uncork, is your request; so I venture to take issue with A. A. S. in the July number of the MAIL, in relatioo to the appointment of Postmasters. I am of the opinion we should find the inefficiency of the service greatly increased by his method. I have witnessed with pleasure the apparent disposition of the Department, and which, I think, is increasing year by year, so far as my knowledge extends, to let the office of postmaster be as nearly elective as the good of the service will allow; and with proper discrimination on the part of those who control the appointments at the smaller offices, I am inclined to believe the present system is about as good as any that could be devised; far better than a strictly elective one (by the voters).

A. A. S., your system won't work. You would find too "self-running" officers where there is one at present.

If the Department will only inflexibly adhere to its rules (one of which is to give postoffices to none as a sinecure), and in all cases require the appointee to give his personal attention to the business of his office, and send out a "Post-Office Inspector" to weed-out the inefficient ones, make all subscribe for the MAIL, and stir them up generally, I think we will find more of the present incumbents doing their work well for the pay.

A POSTMASTER.

W. P., MISS., July 16, 1869.

Editor U. S. Mail—I have been in the habit of glancing over the columns of your valuable paper, although not a subscriber, and have occasionally gain an amount of useful information to all connected with the Post-Office Department. I have often looked for an article which, I think, has never presented itself in your journal, and which, to my mind, is important to every distributing office. How many of such have clerks employed who understaod their business; who know, practically, the country for which they distribute? There is not, in my opinion, one distributing post office in the country which can boast of having "Dis." clerks who thoroughly understand their business as they ought. It is supposed, as a matter of course, that the Department intends to have the mails forwarded with accuracy and dispatch, which is now rapidly being done by the introduction of the Railway Postal Cars. A wiser or better measure could not have been adopted, besides the extreme economy of the institution compared to the distributing post offices and their numerous retinue of "Dis." clerks. It is a pleasure, no doubt, to every person connected with the Post-Office Department, to receive their individual letters as soon as possible; it should also be their study to forward to others their mail as promptly as they would wish their own.

An inquiry was made to the Department, a short time since, why mail between two cities (I will omit the names, but both boast of a population of thousands) should occupy ten days in transit, when by proceeding by the proper route it would only occupy forty-eight hours. This shows a lack of knowledge on the part of the clerks engaged in the distribution. But there are none that are perfect; and the larger the office the more mistakes are made—which shows the importance of having clerks practically acquainted with the distribution. I think it would be a matter of but little trouble to procure such clerks, and their services, especially in large offices, would repay the outlay. Mail matter for Kentucky, is, I think, with but few exceptions, sent to Louisville Distributing Post Office for distribution; and yet only one-third of the State belongs there. The proper distribution is as follows: Louisville Distributing Post Office, Louisville and Nashville Postal Car; "Dis." and Way—Cairo, Ill.; Cincinnati, O.; Evansville, Ind., and Memphis and Louisville Railroad. You can readily perceive that somebody's mail takes more or less time in reaching its destination, and many are the complaints in consequence; for some get mail in five or six days that ought to arrive in three.

Is there no remedy for all this? I am done; and if you deem this worthy to grace your columns you will have my thanks and those of others. If not, the basket is within reach, and always ready for one more, I remain,

Yours, very respectfully,
NEVER FAIL, Route Agent.

C. C. H., VA., July 29, 1869.

Editor U. S. MAIL—I notice in several of the late numbers of your valuable paper that the subject of the prepayment of the postage on papers and publications mailed to regular subscribers is being agitated. As I am one of the "green ones," perhaps it might be considered out of place for me to presume upon your space in a passing comment on this subject. I have had but little experience, it is true, in the duties of a village postmaster, but I can surely say that the plan in operation now for the collection of postage on papers and periodicals is a source of great vexation and annoyance. The keeping of the numerous little accounts, and the trouble and annoyance attending the collection of such small bills could be avoided if subscribers were required to pay their postage when they subscribe for their papers or other periodicals. The publishers, of course, would be put to a little more trouble, but not much more. They could pay the postage to the mailing office and charge the same to their subscribers. It does seem to me that it is right and proper that such an arraogement should be made; and I sincerely believe that it would not only be a great saving of time and annoyance to postmasters, but would materially increase the revenues of the Department, for it often occurs that a postmaster with a vast accumulation of business will fail to get the postage on all of the papers coming to his office.

Earnestly hoping that this question may be continually agitated until a remedy is reached,

I remain,
A ONE ARMED P. M.

The Dead Letter Office—Its Curiosities.

Perhaps no division of any department under the Federal Government is engaged in more important and responsible duties bearing directly upon the interests of the public at large than the Dead-Letter branch of the General Post-Office Department. Here are collected all manner of letters, coming from the wealthy and refined aristocrat and the humblest and obscure citizen. The office is under the immediate supervision of Charles Lyman, Esq., coming under the jurisdiction of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, Gen. William H. H. Terrill. There are employed in opening and recording letters received ninety clerks, male and female. The large amount of matter received daily in this division is immense. It is sent to the upper story, upon which floor the Dead-Letter Office is situated, by means of a dumb waiter. There are opened daily 10,000 letters, each clerk engaged on this particular business being required to open from 1,000 to 1,200 letters. All letters containing valuables are recorded, and the writers informed that they are held subject to their disposal. To give an estimate of the amount of matter that accumulates monthly in this branch of the Post-Office Department, we extract some items of interest in the last annual report of Mr. Lyman. Whole numbers of letters received, 333,365; whole number of letters and circulars destroyed, 157,836; total delivered to owners, 156,061; total money letters received, in value, $7,333 31 The prominent cause of the non-delivery of letters is the unmailable character of many of them. The largest receipts were during the war, when thousands of letters failed to reach the soldiers to whom they were addressed. Many foreign letters are not delivered on account of insufficient addresses. The geographical extent of the United States and Territories being as yet unsettled, and the constant arrival of emigrants in search of new homes in remote regions, and the continual changing of places of abode in a thinly settled country operate to increase the difficulty in the delivery of foreign letters, many bearing only the name, and addressed "United States." Many are addressed without any destination being attached, others are not stamped, and a great many are stamped with United States internal revenue stamps. From a pile of letters are selected the following addresses, some of which betray ignorance, but the majority gross carelessness: "Mister Makarti, Kare off Mister Muldoon, fornist the Protestaut Church, New York" "James Prince, Esq., California." "Harry C. Everzer, treasurer of the Excelsior base ball club, Illuois." "M Guillame Favie, Rue de Fremont, Ville de Casiliano, Des Etats Unis, Nord Amerique." "For Bill Clements, at the Cross roads, Burbon Kounti, Kintuky." "Heinrich Von Schappen, sitimil arkpensil." "Secretary of the Insurance Company, Philadelphia." "Mikul Kelly, hods man, Sinsiati." "Rev. Edward Cartwright, England." "Mr. Edgar Smith" (no city or State given). "To the member of Congress from Ohio." Many others might be given, but the above are fair specimens. In a small room adjoining the main office is contained a large collection of valuables of all kinds, which have been accumulating for some time. During the war a large number of soldiers' photographs were received through the mails, all of which have been preserved in portfolio form. Among the large number on hand, nearly every day some are recognized and returned to those having claims upon them. Among the list of other valuables is a package of cocoons and raw silk, which was mailed from San Francisco to Paris and sent to the Dead-Letter Office on account of non-payment of postage, the person to whom the package was addressed refusing to pay the same. A great variety of other articles are also to be seen, consisting of ambrotypes, pictures, teas, coffee, soap, apparel of all kinds, dolls, jewelry, and in fact almost everything for which the mails are considered a safe means of transmission. Every year or two a sale of miscellaneous articles of value, for which no owner can be found, is advertised in the public prints, and the announcements invariably attract large throngs of purchasers, some of whom hope to make good bargains, while others desire only to secure curiosities. The prices received are generally fair, and in some instances the bidding is brisk on certain articles which are valuable as curiosities or relics. Many of the articles, especially of clothing, stationery, perfumery, jewelry, etc., are really valuable and useful.—Washington Chronicle.

"Now, 'gals,'" said Mrs. Partington the other day to her nieces, "you must get husbands as soon as possible, or they'll be murdered."

"Why so, Aunt?"

"Why, I see by the papers that we've got almost fifteen thousand post offices; and nearly all of 'em dispatches a mail every day. The Lord have mercy on us poor widows," and the old lady stepped to the looking-glass to adjust her new cap.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF FOREIGN MAILS,
WASHINGTON, July 27, 1869.

SIR—I have to inform you that a reduction of one cent per single rate has been effected in the postage chargeable on the prepaid letters from the United States for Nnrway, via the North German Union.

You will, therefore, please make the necessary correction in the next issne of the "Mail."

Very respectfully,

JOSEPH H. BLACKFAN,
Supt. Foreign Mails.

J. GAYLER, ESQ.,
Editor "U. S. Mail."

REGISTRATION OF LETTERS, ETC., FROM THE UNITED STATES TO THE STATES OF THE CHURCH, via NORTH GERMANY.

We are requested to state that an extra national registry fee will no longer be charged on the registered letters from the United States for the States nf the Church, via North Germany; the international register fee between the United States and the North German Union, of 8 cents per letter, paying the cost of registration in full to destination. Also, that registration to said States, via the German mails, heretofore confined to letters, has been extended to incinde book-packets and samples of merchandise; the fee nf 8 cents for registration between the United States and North Germany, also paying the cost of same in full to place nf destination.

The letters registered for the States of the Church for transmission in the German mails should be placed under cross-hands, the flaps of the letters being securely closed with at least two seals of wax, by means of a regular seal. But in regard to the preparation of the registered book-packets and samples of merchandise, these precantions are not necessary to be taken.

Registration to Foreign Countries.

In our Table of Postages to Foreign Countries will be found the registration fee chargeable on letters to the greater portion of the places therein named. By article 9 of Postal Convention between the United States and Great Britain it is provided that "the United States Post Office may deliver to the British Post Office registered letters, etc., addressed to those countries or colonies to which registered letters can be sent from the United Kingdom." We give below a list of those countries and colonies to which registered matter can be so sent, which (on account of the peculiar rates of progression in the postage, etc., nn registered letters) cannnt be conveniently noted in the Table. The route in all cases named hers is "via England:"

FRANCE, ALGERIA, CORSICA, BOURBON, NICE AND SAVOY.—Postage on Registered Letters: 8 cents per quarter ounce, and 10 cents per half ounce additional. Registration Fee: 8 cents per quarter ounce, and 8 cents additional on each letter, irrespective of weight.

ALEXANDRETTA, TANDIERS AND TUNIS.—Postage on Registered Letters: 12 cents per quarter ounce, and 10 cents per half ounce additional. Registration Fee: 12 cents per quarter ounce, and 8 cents additional on each letter, irrespective of weight.

Censoring Gumbridge and Others.

Many postmasters have brought to our attention and to that of the Department, circulars which have been delivered through their offices, signed by "Gumbridge & Co." "Noyes & Co.," "Dailey & Co.," and others, of New York and elsewhere, offering to dispose of large quantities nf fac-similes and imitations of United States currency at certain rates named in the circulars.

We take this occasion to say that the abovenamed "firms" are not—as their circulars are intended to persuade their readers—dealers in counterfeit notes at all. They are simply swindlers, whose only object is to extract good money from those who are both dishonest and foolish enough to endeavor to procure counterfeit money with which to cheat their neighbors. "Gumbridge & Co." (whose real name has lately been discovered to be Tambridge, and whose letters are consequently sent to the Dead-Letter Office by the postmaster at New York as fast as they arrive) fulfilled his promises by sending the small photographic copies of Treasnry notes which are in common use as detectors of counterfeits. "Noyes and Co." do the same; while "Dailey & Co." (who promise to send fifty-cent. currency printed from a stolen genuine plate) send a (sample) good nots for twenty-five cents, in hopes of obtaining $20, with an order far $100 of the same kind as the sample; bnt the receipt of the $20 ends the transaction, so far as they are concerned.

Of course, any rascal who sends money to these swindlers deserves to lose it; and postmasters need not allow their minds to be disturbed about the matter. It may be prudent, however, in case any person who has received one of the circulars desires shortly afterwaid to register a letter or send a money-order to any of the firms named above, for the postmaster to take precantions as to the security of his hen-house while the sender remains in the vicinity.

ACCIDENT TO POSTMASTER-GENERAL CRESWELL.—We regret to hear that the Postmaster-General met with a serious accident on the 25th ult. By the fall of a chair on which he was seated, his left arm was badly fractured. He has since been confined to his house at Elkton, Md., where the accident occurred, but is recovering from its effects as rapidly as could be expected.

THE PACIFIC RAILWAY.—Mails are now being regularly received in New York bearing the San Francisco postmark dated seven days previnsly. Notwithstanding the advice given them to the contrary by their friend, Mr. Wendell Phillips—"the [nitrate-of] silver-tongued"—the red-skins have made, as yet, no serious attempt to destroy the track in revenge for their "wrongs."

☞ The bill introduced some time since in the British Parliament, placing the telegraph in the hands of the Post-Office Department, has been passed, and is now n law. Its provisions are in the main similar to those of the plan under which it was proposed, during last winter, to give our own Department a similar control of the telegraph. The practical working of the new system will be observed with interest, and we shall endeavor to procure for publication an outline of the detailed regulations under which it is to be put in operation.

Sundry Post-Office Matters.

First among our letters for our nenal article, is one from the land af Egypt, not the ancient and Biblical land of Pharaoh and the Israelites and the drowning of the natives in the Red Sea, bnt a part of the United States, away, where twenty years ago or more, was the Great West. Wherefore the place is called Egypt is not for us to say, bnt from a remark of our correspondent, we infer that its inhabitants live in no more light or honesty than some of their more Easterly neighbors. He complains that some of his neighbors never let slip a chance to use a stamp a second time if they could manage it; that he receives letters through the mail not postmarked and with stamps uncanceled; others insufficiently prepaid; others with the stamps cancelled with the postmarking stamp in violation of section 178, regulations 1866; and ends with the statement, that, by a mail just received, seven letters had the stamps uncanceled and twenty-three were insufficiently prepaid. This is a pretty good catalogue of bad doings; no doubt a postal missionary would find a fine field for labor in that Egypt. Our correspondent seems to be ahead of the times in his neighborhood, and without vanity we attribute this to his being a subscriber to the U. S. MAIL. But in one thing he errs, and that is, in rating insufficiently prepaid letters passing through his office. A letter rated before it reaches the office of delivery should be accompanied with a post-bill, as, where it is not so accompanied, the postmaster would be at a loss to know if the letter were billed or not. The regulations, sections 150 and 151, direct the postmaster at the office of delivery to charge and collect deficient postage; the matter of postage seems to lie between the mailing and the delivery offices, and not in transit, except in cases of letters sent to a distributing office for distribution.....From a friend, whom the Pacific railroad has brought within a few days of us, comes an inquiry why the Department will not give the county in which he lives a money-order office. He states his county does as much business as others near by that have one or more such offices, bnt that in his case several applications have failed. We wish we could, but we cannot, tell why; and to learn why does not come within the line of our knowledge or inquiries.....Some two nr three letters on removals from office, and the qualifications and mode of selection of postmasters come next. The first is entirely nntside our purposes, and thnngh, nn the second and third, we may have a personal opinion, the MAIL is not the proper organ for its expression....The new postage stamp comes in for a "shot" from the land nf clocks and native nutmegs, particularly the color of the three-cent stamps. In questions of art, especially of high art, the æsthetic principle has nn special standard; but, to somewhat change a homely preverb, "What is one man's beanty is another man's deformity."....A communication from a "naturally lazy" (we use his own words) postmaster next claims our attention, wherein he complains of a slovenly practice that has grown up within a few years, of not wrapping letters, and in many cases of sending loose several for one office. Wrapping letters is required by the regulations (sec. 88), except at post offices supplied wholly or in part by railway post offices; and if the requirement is not wholly complied with, postmasters should at least tie up in packages letters for the same office; for whether a postmaster or route agent is lazy or not, oftentimes the saving of time would be a matter of importance to those interested directly in the letters....Another asks to know how in common sense a postmaster can return a letter indorsed, "To be returned in ten days, if not called for, to me." The writer of that letter is evidently one of those few who are absent of the age. Postal science, even with its immense advance, has not advanced so far as to enable us to decide the question, and the only way we see is to send such a letter to the Dead-Letter Office. There may he cases where a letter so indorsed, if returned, could be properly delivered; as, so the story runs, when a young man inquired at a post office, "Is there a letter for me from my mother?" and the learned postmaster finding one addressed "To my son," concluded it was for him, delivered it, and proved to be correct in his judgment; bnt we cannot advise such a course....We cannot say that we fully agree with our correspondent who writes to us, "Whoever attempts to do without the MAIL, with the present potal laws, is a fool for the want of sense;" but we go so far as to say, we do not see how any wise postmaster can do without it.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Old Quarterly Accounts, etc.—M. W., K——, Conn.—1. Old quarterly nccounts should be retained two years, and then may be sold and the proceeds credited to the Department. 2. Write to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General respecting the twenty-four cent stamps for which you have no use.

Account of Mails Sent.—C. H. T., S—— C——, Kan.—The account of mails sent was discontinued last October, but letter bills, with proper charges entered thereon, should still accompany unpaid letters for delivery.

Paying Over Postage Collected for More than a Quarter.—R. G. R., S—— M——, Ill.—By Section 311, Reg. 1866, postage collected from regular subscribers, for more than one quarter, should be accounted for quarterly; consequently a postmaster should pay over to his successor all such postages as he does not account for to the Department. If his accounts are properly kept they would show the different amounts, if they are not properly kept no general rule will apply.

Post-Office Blanks.—E. B. S., G—— R——, Pa.—The account of mails seat has been discontinued, and also as a part of the quarterly returns, the money accounts of registered letters received and sent. Sec. 16, Regn. Reg. 68. But we must not be understood to mean that no account whatever of registered letters is to be kept. Section 6 of Regn., Reg. of 1866, expressly mentions the two accounts among those necessary, and sections 10 and 12 direct how the blanks are to be filled up.

Papers Stamped "Prepaid Quarterly."—J. K., A——, N. Y.—As a general rule a postmaster at the mailing office receiving quarterly postage in advance should notify the postmaster at the delivery office, but in some of the large offices, where very great numbers of papers are mailed, it would be impossible to do this except by the employment of a number of clerks. An exception is therefore made in respect to such offices, the postmasters of which are allowed to stamp such papers with a special stamp, "prepaid quarterly."

Distributing Club Newspapers.—J. A. B., O——, Kan.—Where a list of the subscribers is furnished, and the postage paid on the whole package for one quarter in advance, a postmaster is obliged to deliver, from the list, papers coming through the mail in clubs. Sec. 211, Reg. 1866.

Letters Bearing a Card of the Writer.—H. S., L——, Ill.—An undelivered letter bearing simply the card of the writer, with no request to return, should be returned to him thirty days after its arrival at the mailing office. Sec. 1, Act of July 27, 1868.

Express Carrying Letters to a Post Office.—W. L. H., C——, N. Y.—Express companies are prohibited from carrying letters over n mail route unless they are in stamped envelopes. See Chap. ix., Laws of 1868.

Sample Copies of Newspapers, etc.—H. M. McF., McF——, Ill.—Where sample copies of a paper are sent in the package of papers to regular subscribers the postmaster at the mailing office should be notified. Newspapers bearing a request to be returned cannot be so returned unless the postage for such return is prepaid.

Postmasters Opening Papers not Addressed to Themselves.—E. G. C., M——, Ky.—It is illegal for a postmaster to remove the wrapper from a paper for the purpose of reading it or allowing another to read it. The only cases where he is authorized to remove wrappers is to examine if the packages contain anything subjecting it to letter postage and papers coming to a club, under section 211, Reg. 1866.

Mutilated Currency.—F. C. H., P——, Fla.—The Treasurer of the United States will furnish you with printed instructions and a scale to guide you in taking mutilated currency.

Affidavits to Quarterly Returns.—A. B. S., F——, Conn.—A postmaster may make oath before any one entitled to administer oaths.

Distributing Weekly Papers.—J. W. H., S——, N. Y.—Section 3 of Act of July 27, 1868, applies only to weekly papers.

Increase of Mail Service.—D. F., V——, La.—Application for an increase of mail service should be made to the Second Assistant Postmaster-General.

Distributing Sunday-School Papers.—M. McL., C——, Minn.—Postmasters are not required under section 211, reg. 1866, to deliver to different persons the copies contained in packages of Sunday-school papers on which the postage is rated under section 202, at one cent for four ounces. Such packages must be sent "to one address."

Unmailable Letters.—L. S., R—— T——, Texas.—It does not matter who pays the postage on a letter, so that it is paid. A drop-letter held for postage should be delivered to the addressee, on his payment of the postage.

Drop-Letters, etc.—S. P. J., O——, Mo.—1. A drop-letter, bearing a revenue stamp, is unmailable and should be sent to the Dead-Letter Office, if payment of proper postage is not made before the letter is mailed. 2. The circular or handbill of a traveling physician is not a true supplement, and the inclosure of such in a regular paper subjects the whole paper to letter postage. Sec. 226, reg. 1866.

Post-Office Blanks.—D. C. H., D——, Wis.—1. Respecting post-office blanks, see above and the MAIL for June and July. 2. Regular papers cannot be forwarded free. 3. Sections 7 and 12 of registration regulations will inform you what registration blanks and other matter are to be sent to the Department. 4. Unpaid foreign letters, if outitled to be sent, should be merely post-marked and sent to the proper distributing office. No charges should be marked on them, and no bills are required to accompany them.

Registration.—W. P. H., M—— D——, Pa.—One receipt for registered packages in transit will do for as many packages as can be entered on it.....B. C. F., B——, Ga.—No registration fee is required on remittance of money-order funds from one postmaster to another.....W. F. S., H——, Pa.—Domestic mail matter to be registered must have the postage paid at letter rates.....G. A. D., E——, N. Y.—Section 12 of Registration Regulations, reads: "The number, name of person addressed, and post-mark (with date) on each letter, are then to be entered," etc. Is there any possible chance of contounding this with the registered package envelope? You and all other postmasters should thoroughly understand the distinction and difference between a registered package envelope and a registered letter. We recommend a complete study of the regulations, particularly sections 10, 11 and 12.

Postage.—A. F. P., H——, Mass.—Publishers have no right to send newspapers unpaid to others than subscribers. It is an offence punishable by a fine of fifty dollars. (Sec. 251, laws 1866.) Report such cases to the postmasters at the mailing offices.....I. N. P., S—— P——, Ill.—Stencil plates are chargeable with letter postage. If the parties to whom they are addressed refuse to pay the postage on delivery, they should be sent to the Dead-Letter Office. But if, as is probable, you could find the maker's name on the plates, by reporting the case to the proper Special Agent, no doubt the practice of mailing such matter at transient rates could be stopped.....Z. J., D——, Ark.—Postage should be charged on a magazine by its weight at the office where the postage is paid, and not according to a printed statement of the weight on the magazine itself. In other words, the postmaster, and not the publisher, is the judge of the weight.....S. P. S., A——, Minn.—There is nothing in the laws prohibiting the sending of cloth and small garments through the mail, but they do not come under the head or designation of mailable matter; hence the postage should be charged at letter rates, according to section 245, laws 1866.....W. A., N——, Pa.—Section 218, laws of 1866, was a part of the postal law of 1851, and was repealed by the later law of 1863, section 34 of which, being 250 of the laws of 1866, fixes the rate of postage on transient matter, except circulars and books, at two cents for four ounces. A postmaster may put up boxes at his own expense, but the rents thereof must be accounted for to the Department. He will, however, receive the amount back in the form of salary. See Chap. xlii., Reg. 1866.....J. B. F., P——, N. Y.—The postage on blank insurance receipts, or renewals filled in with manuscript or handwriting, should be charged at letter rates.....I. L., A——, Wis.—1. Postage on clothing must be charged at letter rates (sec. 245, laws 1866), and if by some mistake not prepaid at the mailing office, should be collected on delivery. 2. Packages of papers to clubs, distributed according to section 211, Reg. 1866, should have the postage paid in advance on each paper, for at least a quarter.....R. K. S., Mt. C——, Ill.—1. Legal notices on slips of paper are chargeable with postage even if deposited for local delivery. 2. Sunday-school papers, issued once a week, are chargeable with the regular quarterly postage of five cents.....C. A. F., B——, N. Y.—1. The right of publishers to exchange their publications is not limited by the value of the different publications, or by any private agreement between publishers as to the terms of the exchange; it is sufficient that the publications are bona fide, and do not exceed the prescribed limit of weight. Sec. 258, laws 1866. 2. Exchanges cannot be forwarded free of postage, nor should they be delivered free to other than the publisher to whom they are addressed, or, of course, his agent or clerk.

A new self-canceling postage stamp has recently been invented. The paper on which the stamp-head is printed is first wet in a cheap chemical solution. The stamp is then gummed and perforated as formerly. When purchased, the stamp is moistened as usual and attached to the letter. But when the post-office clerk takes up the letter to sort it irem others for different States, on his right hand thumb is a small cot on which is a sponge with a feeder, which is soaked in another chemical solution, kept secret for Government reasons. As the clerk takes hold of the letter to throw it aside, his thumb comes in contact with the stamp; an instantaneous combination takes place, and a defacement comes ont much superior to the present ink. This cancellation can only affect the stamp which is prepared; for if the thumb-sponge wet the envelope, it dries off without any mark. By a similar process revenue stamps are prepared. The stamp presents the same appearance as the present one, having been only soaked in the prepared water previous to printing; then, when dry, a coating of gum is applied over a stencil plate leaving the words "paid," canceled," "U. S.," or any of their equivalents. When the stamp is run through the perforator, it also passes through two huffers, where a powdered preparation is rolled in. When wanted for use, by wetting the stamp, as formerly, the saliva acts as an agent, combines the two chemical preparations, and immediately a black bar or the words "paid," "U. S.," come out, permanently canceling the stamp and doing away with the tedious and annoying practice now enforced of putting one's initials on the stamp.

We find the above in the New York Tribune, but cannot ascertain from any other source whether the system of cancellation "by rule of thumb" has been practically tested by the Post-Office Department. The plan announced for the cancellation of revenue stamps does not seem to have for its object the protection of the Government from fraud, but only the convenience of those who use the stamps. The absence of date or initials renders their repeated use a very easy matter.
